Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, IXM is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers, and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At IXM, we transport commodities to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that IXM has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.

- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Andrew Gray

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, 84 Lumber Company is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and their building projects and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At 84 Lumber Company we transport Lumber, OSB, and other miscellaneous building and construction projects alike to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that 84 Lumber has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Advanced Logistics and Distribution Systems LLC is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and businesses to ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Advanced Logistics, we transport fuels, foods, aggregates, heavy steel, and recyclables to markets around the world and the United States. This reduces the carbon footprint for a better future for our families. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Advanced Logistics and companies alike have a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including: Us Steal Mills and Petroleum Producers and Farmers of America.

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers and consumers nationwide.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

AGP
Ag Processing Inc

September 4, 2025

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman
Surface Transportation Board
395 E Street SW
Washington, DC 20423

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Ag Processing Inc a cooperative ("AGP") is writing to express its support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. AGP is a leading agribusiness cooperative owned by more than 150 regional and local cooperatives, which, in turn, are owned by over 200,000 farmers in the United States.

AGP depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet its business needs and serve the needs of both AGP's member-owners and AGP's customers. AGP transports agricultural products to markets across the United States and internationally, and the American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain as it allows for the movement of large volumes of products efficiently and sustainably. As a company that has been in business for over 40 years, we understand firsthand how rail networks need new investments and new commitments for growth and innovation, and how those investments can positively impact the transportation of products for the benefit of companies like AGP and the end-customer both in the present and into the future.

AGP is offering this letter of support because it believes that the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will enhance the American freight rail network and yield benefits for Union Pacific customers like AGP. Among other things, AGP feels a combined network will offer more direct rail routes and greater flexibility, thereby reducing transit times for AGP's products and increasing the speed and service that AGP is able to provide its customers. AGP also believes the proposed merger would provide it with better access to a broader geographical footprint and open new markets through East Coast export channels thereby improving the U.S. agricultural industry's ability to compete in the global marketplace.

AGP understands that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we appreciate the ability to comment on the proposed merger and the positive impact that we believe this merger will have. Thank you in advance for your consideration of our perspective.

Sincerely,

Chris Schaffer

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Aipat Oil & Gas LLC is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to transport diesel and gasoline safely and on time to our customers throughout the United States. The American freight rail network is an essential part of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of continued investment and innovation in rail to ensure a secure and competitive market.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

• Improved Service Reliability: A combined network will create more direct routes and greater flexibility, reducing the risk of service disruptions.
• Reduced Transit Times: Fewer interchanges will shorten delivery schedules by several days, enabling faster deliveries.
• Increased Investment: A stronger transcontinental railroad will support upgrades in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, improving capacity and safety.
• Expanded Reach: Access to a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new markets.

We encourage the Board to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader U.S. economy.

Thank you for your consideration. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, Alliance Shippers is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, Alliance Shippers competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and has potential to yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.

- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We are optimistic that the merger will lead to more competitive rail products—not only through improved service and efficiency, but also through innovation and responsiveness to customer needs. As the rail industry evolves, we believe this combination can help raise the bar for performance and value.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

To Whom It May Concern:

AllTrans Terminal Companies, LLC is a 30+ year customer of Union Pacific. In addition to a close working relationship with Union Pacific, AllTrans buys freight from all American Class I railroads. AllTrans provides terminal services, railcar loading and unloading, and first/last mile trucking for industrial products. AllTrans is responsible for hundreds of jobs in the Houston area, where we operate our steel terminals.

Both domestic and imported industrial cargo benefit from streamlined and cost-effective railroad transit. Industrial cargo on rail benefits the economy as a whole, due to its economic efficiency compared to and job creation, and to the environment, due to its lower carbon footprint. Industrial companies such as AllTrans always prefer rail transit over trucking transit, due to safety, cost-savings over truck, and the carbon efficiency of rail.

Having access to a trans-continental route, as proposed in the UPRR-NS merger, would allow companies like AllTrans to use longer and more economically effective rail rates to move industrial freight. With more efficient transportation costs, the industrial economy will realize lower costs of goods and services, and those benefits will flow into the American economy.

Please do not hesitate to reach out for follow-up, or for any specific questions.

Subject: Endorsement of the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a representative of the ATP–TPP–ISTASA group, I am pleased to express our firm support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Through TPP's longstanding and close relationship with Union Pacific at Guaymas, our group is fully informed about this process and actively involved in its progress.

TPP has a long track record in the handling and movement of bulk commodities for international transit clients—particularly copper concentrate and coal—from major production hubs in the United States. Our operations depend on dependable, efficient and cost-competitive rail services to meet customer requirements and guarantee the secure, on-time delivery of these essential goods.

As an important connector between U.S. producers, international ports and world markets, we recognize the critical role of the American freight rail network in sustaining national and international supply chains. This system allows us to move large volumes in a safe and environmentally responsible way, and we value continued investment and innovation to ensure growth, competitiveness and resilience for businesses like ours.

We believe the planned merger will reinforce competition and create tangible advantages for Union Pacific partners such as TPP, including:

- Greater Service Reliability: A unified network will provide more direct routes and increased operational flexibility, reducing exposure to service disruptions.
- Shorter Transit Times: Eliminating interchanges will shave several days off shipping schedules, helping us deliver copper concentrate and coal to our global customers faster.
- Enhanced Investment Capacity: The combined railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, equipment and technology to improve service quality, safety and capacity.
- Broader Market Access: A larger geographic footprint will allow us to serve current customers more effectively and expand into new territories.

We understand that regulatory oversight is a necessary part of the review process and respectfully urge the Board to consider the significant benefits this merger offers to companies like ours and to the broader U.S. and international economy.

Thank you for your consideration. We look forward to continuing our collaboration and to the improved services this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Aluminz Corporation is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of defense critical aluminum customers such as Spectro Alloys, Novelis, Arconic, Hydro and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Aluminz, we transport critical aluminum metal units to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific producers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more aluminum customers, faster and cheaper.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers, reach new ones, maximize our capital investment in Texas and hire more employees.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

We are primarily a customer of the BNSF and UP shipping crop nutrients in both our private and railroad supplied covered hopper cars. We recognize the critical role freight rail plays in supporting our crop nutrient dealer customers and their growers who produce agricultural commodities who feed America and the world. Reliable rail service allows us to connect our business to our customers and to the ultimate grower of America's agricultural commodities. They depend on American Plant Food to deliver crop nutrients in a reliable, efficient and cost-effective manner.

To that end, American Plant Food would benefit from faster, more reliable rail service. A more efficient and resilient supply chain would allow us to access to compete in new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to help allow us to grow our business by delivering single-line service and offering more direct routes.

We believe a merger that increases shipper transportation options, expands every freight railroad's geographic reach, encourages investment in infrastructure and technology is good news for us and every shipper. At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, maintaining and improving competitive access, sustainability, and long-term benefits to rail shippers like ourselves and our customers. We trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard these benefits when they

Freight rail contributes to reducing highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses, expand competitive access, increase rail carload volumes, and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

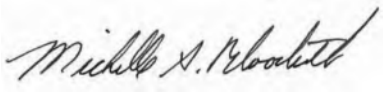
Subject: Proposed Merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of America's Power, the only national trade organization representing the fleet of U.S. coal-fired power plants and its supply chain, we appreciate the opportunity to submit these brief comments on the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern because rail transportation of coal is a crucial link in this supply chain.

The nation's coal fleet and its supply chain play an essential role in maintaining reliable and affordable electricity for American homes and businesses. Electricity ratepayers in 40 states rely on coal for some portion of their electricity because coal provides dependable power.



Coal's role has become even more important as the nation responds to rising electricity demand and warnings about possible electricity shortages in more than half the U.S. President Trump has sounded the alarm about this energy emergency driven in part by the rapid expansion of artificial intelligence and data center operations, along with the resurgence of domestic manufacturing.

Railroads transport roughly 70 percent of the coal used by U.S. power plants, and many plants depend solely on rail service for coal deliveries. This dependence on rail transportation underscores the importance of ensuring that the Board's review of the proposed merger takes into account the role of coal-based electricity and the supply chain that supports it. Timely and consistent coal deliveries allow coal power plants to maintain stockpiles of fuel that enable plant operators to match electricity supply and demand at all times. Thus, a healthy rail transportation system benefits electricity generators, energy producers, and electricity consumers.

The proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern has the potential to improve rail connectivity, increase reliability, and spur efficiency by creating a more integrated network with fewer interchanges and better coordination in both operations and future investments in the rail network. These improvements could help reduce congestion and delays, leading to more consistent service for industries that depend on rail, including those involved in delivering coal for electricity generation. We respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for industries like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service for shippers and communities across the country.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a proud supplier to Union Pacific, American Refining Group, Inc. strongly supports the proposed merger with Norfolk Southern.

At American Refining Group, Inc., we provide high-performance diesel engine lubricants for use in locomotive engines throughout the United States and Canada, which are essential to the safe and smooth operation of freight rail service across the country.

We believe that the proposed merger will yield significant benefits for Union Pacific's suppliers and partners, including:

- Business Growth: Union Pacific fosters an environment where suppliers can thrive while meeting the company's needs for safe, efficient and cost-effective solutions. We anticipate that our own business will grow as the company's supply demands expand as a result of the merger.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.
- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and increased operational flexibility, helping reduce service interruptions that can impact delivery of our products and services.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster. Moreover, reduced transit times will lower our investment in inventory, allowing us to further invest in our business and employees.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity and safety. Increased investment from the railroad translates to increased investment in our own business.

Dear Chairman,

Apex Cold Storage is writing to express our support for the Union Pacific and the proposed merger Norfolk Southern. As a customer working with the Union Pacific Railroad for some 30 years, we are in hopes this merger will reward Apex and its customers with faster transit times through the mid-west to the PNW.

As a small cold storage in the PNW, a lot of our business and customer base relies on the railroad network to move their goods. Pork from Smithfield is a long-standing customer, and Wayne Farms is now shipping poultry from the south to us almost weekly, to meet our customer Plymouth Poultry's sales demands. We are also sending products east now for several seafood companies, Westward, UniSea, and Glasier seafoods, getting their Alaskan Pollock to the East Coast processors for Government Bids as well as other customers' needs.

It seems after twenty-five years in this location; our customers are seeing the value added by shipping via rail. We see no reason with the improved availability of equipment, improvement of reliability, and improved transit times, will increase business, adding value to all business across the network. As business talks about the improved efficiency that has been added, it can only bring additional value to the country for expediting goods.

We understand there are processes and reviews that must be part of the process, so we urge the proper authorities to consider the positive impact this will have on our great country and help business large and small.

Thank you for your time and consideration. Looking forward to what the upcoming improvements might bring to our business.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Atlas Roofing is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our roofing customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Atlas Roofing, we transport complete roofing system, including asphalt shingles, underlayment's, and ventilation products to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Atlas Roofing has a bright future.

Atlas Roofing's support is contingent upon two critical factors:

1. Service Levels Must Be Maintained and Improved – It is imperative that current service standards, reliability, and transit times are not compromised as a result of the merger. We rely on consistent, predictable rail performance to meet customer demand and maintain efficient supply chain operations.
2. Competition Must Be Preserved – Maintaining a healthy level of competition among rail carriers is essential to prevent service degradation, cost escalation, and limited access for shippers. The merged entity must ensure open access, fair pricing, and transparent operational practices to preserve market balance and protect customers.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Re: Support for the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Chairman Fuchs and Members Schultz and Hedlund,

Barkley Seed, Inc. ships millions of pounds of agricultural grain every year, both domestically and internationally. Our supply chain relies on dependable rail service—particularly Union Pacific's routes that moves grain for delivery within the United States and export grain to Houston for export vessel loading. We believe the proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger represents a rare opportunity to strengthen that network and create meaningful advantages for U.S. agriculture and export trade.

Why This Matters to Our Business

- Stronger Service Reliability – A unified UP-NS system promises a single, integrated operating plan, which should translate to fewer hand-offs and less disruption during peak shipping windows.
- Faster, More Economical Access – Eliminating interchanges and expanding direct routes can reduce days from current transit times and make domestic markets now out of reach by rail economically viable.
- Broader Export Options – Additional Gulf and East Coast port connections could lower costs and add flexibility when scheduling vessels for our overseas customers.
- Commitment to Investment – A combined carrier is better positioned to invest in equipment, technology, and infrastructure that improve capacity, safety, and environmental performance.

Our Request

We urge the Board to weigh these benefits as it evaluates the transaction. For Barkley Seed, any improvement in cost-effective, reliable rail service strengthens our ability to serve growers, processors, and international buyers alike.

Thank you for considering our perspective on this important matter.

Respectfully,

Dwayne T. Alford

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Bay and Bay strongly supports the proposed merger with Norfolk Southern.

Our business relies on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet customer demands and ensure safe, timely deliveries nationwide. As an intermodal marketing company competing with over-the-road trucking, rail is essential to offering scalable, sustainable transportation solutions.

We believe this merger will deliver meaningful benefits, including:

- Greater Reliability: A unified network will reduce service disruptions and offer more direct routing.
- Faster Transit Times: Eliminating interchanges will shorten delivery times by several days.
- Stronger Investment: A transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment.
- Expanded Reach: A broader network will help us serve existing customers more effectively and reach new markets.

We're optimistic this merger will drive innovation, improve service, and enhance the overall customer experience. We also value marketplace flexibility. Continued access to other carriers like CSX and BNSF remains vital to our operations and the health of the freight ecosystem.

We appreciate the importance of regulatory review and encourage you to consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail services to meet the needs of Big Soo and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Big Soo Terminal we transport fertilizer, salt and other bulk products to markets throughout the Midwest. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Big Soo Terminal has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

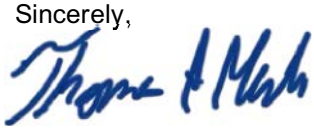
Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, and of other US Railroads, Binderholz Timber LLC, the Atlanta based sales branch of Austrian owned Binderholz is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

We are in the lumber business operating a US Sawmill in Live Oak, FL and Enfield, NC. These mills are located on the CSX Railroad. But we also import products to both East Coast and Gulf Coast ports which could ship either on the NS or Union Pacific.



The way the US Rail System is laid out and parceled up makes it difficult for us to reach customers in an efficient and cost-effective manner. Mergers that create companies that can seamlessly ship on one bill of lading with one rate can only be supported. Its ridiculous to ship from Lake Charles to the Northeast for example and being basically charged twice for the same railcar, making the entire transaction cost prohibitive.

This expanded reach argument makes the supply chain flexible and enables shippers to move things around in case of need. In particular, upcoming logistics challenges created through international conflicts will require such flexibility to create shock resilient supply chains.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Senior Vice President of Global Supply Chain of the Blue Diamond Growers farm cooperative, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to large and small businesses. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.
The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

More than 70% of California's almonds are exported worldwide, making dependable, flexible, and sustainable transportation important for maintaining profitability and resilience. Blue Diamond Growers has benefited from the Union Pacific's ability to integrate multiple ports across the United States, and we are supportive of this merger as it only further creates agricultural resilience for multiple port capabilities.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,

Steve Schult

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a customer shipping cementitious products, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our business to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

My business would benefit from faster, more reliable service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain and access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to help my business by delivering single-line service and offering more direct routes that increase transportation options, expand each railroad's geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, sustainability and long-term benefits to customers, and I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard these benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in its consideration of the proposed transaction.

Sincerely,

BROWNSVILLE GULFSIDE WAREHOUSE, INC.

October 7, 2025

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman
Surface Transportation Board

Washington, DC 20423

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Brownsville Gulfside Warehouse Inc. is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Brownsville Gulfside Warehouse Inc., we handle and transport a wide range of goods—including Aluminum Ingots, Aluminum Billets, Cal Flux 56, Lumber, Bagged Sugar, and Aluminum Fluoride—to markets nationwide and beyond. The American freight rail network is a vital part of our supply chain, enabling us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably.

We understand the critical role rail plays not only in our operations, but also in supporting our workforce and contributing to the broader national economy. We also recognize the need for new investment, innovation, and long-term commitments to strengthen our rail infrastructure. For companies like ours, the future depends on a modern, resilient, and growth-oriented freight rail system.

We believe that the proposed merger will deliver meaningful benefits to customers, the rail network, and the economy at large. These include:

- Improved Service Reliability: A unified network will enable more direct routing and greater operational flexibility, reducing the likelihood of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating handoffs and interchanges, the combined network can significantly reduce transit times, helping us serve customers more quickly and efficiently.
- Increased Investment: A transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further enhancing service, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: With a broader geographic footprint, we will have greater access to new markets and be able to better serve our existing customers.

We recognize that regulatory review is an essential step in the merger process, and we respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to consider the strong, positive impact this merger would have on shippers like Brownsville Gulfside Warehouse Inc. and on the national freight transportation landscape.

Thank you for your consideration. We look forward to the enhanced service and new opportunities this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Ernesto Gutierrez

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

CAD Logistics, LLC, one of the primary railcar produce handlers in America's largest produce market, is writing to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS).

Since the United States was connected by a golden spike in Promontory Point, Utah, in 1869, America has enjoyed the benefits of the greatest freight rail system in the world. Over 150 years later, a vision that is the work of countless American men and women stands to be realized: shipping a railcar under a single bill over a single railroad from coast to coast.

Like many industries in America, our company and our customers need efficient, reliable, safe, and truck competitive rail service to do our part to employ American workers and feed American families. From our perspective, the proposed UP and NS merger will help us do so and grow the U.S. economy from a combination of the following benefits:

Reduced Railcar Handling – By eliminating interchanges where railcars are handed off from one railroad to another, service times from coast to coast will improve by several days. Current interchange points of Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis and Memphis will be eliminated, which will keep railcars flowing more quickly from coast to coast. Less handling and delays also lessen the chance of product shift, damage and theft.

More Competitive Pricing – The UP and NS combination will result in more truck competitive pricing. Imagine when flying coast to coast; you receive a cheaper fare on a single airline than a combination of two, not to mention the additional delays and stops needed to travel across multiple providers. The same is true on rail through the reduction of interchange points and their associated costs. The watershed areas near current UP and NS interchange points along the Mississippi River will receive particularly enhanced economic competitiveness since the combined railroad will not have to charge minimum rates on short haul moves that make existing opportunities impractical.

Eliminate Cross Towns – Intermodal companies currently tasked with trucking their containers between UP and NS intermodal yards in Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis and Memphis will finally be able to leave their trailers and containers on railcars for the entirety of the move. This time and cost savings will help U.S. intermodal traffic grow over the next decade.

We only need to look north to Canada to see the benefits of a true Transcontinental railroad, where Canadian National and Canadian Pacific have both demonstrated the benefits of keeping railcars on a single line between their country's largest markets. The UP and NS merger will bring those benefits to America, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for taking the time to consider our perspective.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a decades long customer of Union Pacific, the purpose of this letter is to express our company's strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

CalPortland Company was founded in 1891. Since our inception, CalPortland has been producing quality cement and building materials and delivering them on time with integrity, reliability and consistency. Our cement plays a vital role in shaping America's infrastructure, from historic landmarks like the Hoover Dam to modern icons like Allegiant Stadium.

Our company depends on an efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to deliver our quality products across the country. CalPortland relies on rail to transport cement to our various terminals across the country. Our strategically located terminals provide cement to local customers and support construction and local economies. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that a company such as CalPortland can continue to help build America for decades to come.

We believe that the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific and CalPortland. Some of these benefits include:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more of CalPortland's customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a proud supplier to Union Pacific, Cedar Grove Warehouse, Inc., and Cedar Grove Logistics, LLC, strongly supports the proposed merger with Norfolk Southern.

At Cedar Grove Warehouse, Inc and Cedar Grove Logistics, LLC, we provide a network of food grade cold storage facilities, and utilize railroad owned assets as well as a fleet of our own refrigerated railcars. Together we move our nation's food across the country, not only to feed America, but also out to the ports to feed the world. The smooth, consistent operation of freight rail service across the country benefits us all as it forms the backbone of our nation's supply chain. The extension of the Union Pacific's reach from coast to coast, by expanding their freight rail network, will enable us to move products sustainably and even more efficiently. This, while supporting great paying American jobs and economic growth.

We believe that the proposed merger will yield significant benefits for Union Pacific's supplier partners, like ourselves, including:

- Business Growth: Union Pacific fosters an environment where suppliers can thrive while meeting the company's needs for safe, efficient and cost-effective solutions. We truly believe our own business will grow as the company's supply demands expand as a result of the merger.
- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and increased operational flexibility, helping reduce service interruptions that can impact supply schedules.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

Regulatory review is an important part of this process and should not be overlooked. We encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on supplier partners like us and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued growth, innovation and expanded partnership that this merger will bring.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a customer shipping building materials and lumber, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our business to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

My Business would benefit from faster, more reliable service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain and access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific-Norfolk Souther merger has the strong potential to help my business by delivering single-line service and offering more direct routes that increase transportation options, expand each railroad's geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, sustainability and long-term benefits to customers, and I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard these benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in its consideration of the proposed transaction.

Sincerely,

Carter Smith

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of Chemstar, LLC and Renstar, LLC, I am writing to express our support for the proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger.

Our businesses rely heavily on rail-based logistics as the backbone of our supply chain. Chemstar provides logistical and marketing solutions for crude oil, condensate, refined products, blendstocks, chemicals, NGLs, and LPGs, while our affiliate Renstar focuses exclusively on low-carbon fuels such as biodiesel, renewable diesel, and sustainable aviation fuel (SAF).

Rail service is central to our ability to move these products safely, efficiently, and at scale. The reliability and reach of the rail network directly impacts our customers and partners across the U.S. and Canada, especially in New England and the Great Lakes, where rail connectivity is critical.

We believe this merger will deliver important benefits to shippers like us, including:

- Improved service reliability and reduced transit times, which are essential for both conventional and renewable fuels.
- Expanded market reach through stronger rail connectivity, linking origin supply points with key demand centers.
- Greater investment in rail infrastructure and safety, supporting the continued growth of rail-based energy logistics.

Chemstar and Renstar are committed to building a sustainable energy future. To achieve that, we need a strong, resilient rail network that can support both conventional fuels and the rapid scaling of renewables. We respectfully encourage the Board to approve this merger and the service improvements it represents.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, CIG Logistics is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers such as Iron Oak, Exxon Mobil, and Chevron and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At CIG Logistics, we transport numerous products throughout 12 terminals across the USA to markets. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that CIG Logistics has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers and consumers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers and consumers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of CJ Bio America, a leading producer of amino acids and sustainable bio-based solutions located in Fort Dodge, Iowa, I am writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific Railroad and Norfolk Southern Railway.

As a manufacturer deeply reliant on efficient freight transportation, we recognize that the current rail system faces logistical challenges—ranging from inconsistent service schedules and limited network interoperability to congestion at key transfer points. These inefficiencies disrupt supply chains, delay deliveries, and increase operational costs for businesses like mine.

The merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern offers a unique opportunity to address these deficiencies by creating a more unified and responsive rail network. A consolidated system would enhance coast-to-coast connectivity, reduce handoffs between carriers, and streamline routing—resulting in faster transit times and improved reliability. It would also allow for better coordination of assets, more flexible scheduling, and increased investment in infrastructure upgrades and digital technologies.

For CJ Bio America, these improvements would translate into greater supply chain stability, reduced transportation costs, expanded reach, and improved service to our customers across North America. Additionally, shifting more freight from road to rail through an optimized network supports our sustainability goals by lowering emissions and reducing highway congestion.

We ask that you consider the long-term economic, operational, and environmental benefits of this merger. It can strengthen American industry and deliver meaningful progress for communities across the Midwest and beyond.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, we at Clearfield Recycling want to share our strong support for the proposed merger with Norfolk Southern.

Rail service is more than just a mode of transportation for us, it's a lifeline. Our business depends on reliable, efficient, and cost-effective freight rail to deliver recyclable materials including but not limited to steel and other ferrous and nonferrous metals that are the building blocks to our infrastructure and keys to growth as a nation. The American freight rail network plays a vital role in our supply chain, helping us move large volumes safely and sustainably.

We've built our operations around the trust we place in Union Pacific, and we've seen firsthand how important continued investment and innovation are to keeping that trust strong. That's why we believe this merger is a smart and forward-looking move—not just for the railroads involved, but for businesses like ours that rely on them every day.

We're particularly excited about the potential benefits this merger could bring:

- More Reliable Service: A unified network means fewer handoffs and more direct routes, reducing delays and disruptions.
- Faster Deliveries: Streamlined operations could shave days off transit times, helping us serve our customers more quickly.
- Stronger Infrastructure: A transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in technology, equipment, and safety—improving service quality and capacity.
- Wider Reach: Access to a broader geographic footprint will help us grow and reach new markets.

Subject: Letter of Support for the Proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-standing customer of Union Pacific, Cole Distributing Company is pleased to voice our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our business relies heavily on dependable, efficient, and cost-effective rail transportation to meet the needs of our customers and ensure timely delivery of our products nationwide. At Cole Distributing, we ship energy materials to markets across the United States and Rail service could play an essential role in our supply chain—supporting our workforce, our customers, and our ability to compete in both domestic and global markets. We recognize the importance of continuous investment in rail infrastructure to sustain economic growth and innovation for the future.

We believe this merger represents a positive step forward for the freight rail industry and for businesses like ours. The combined Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern network will provide meaningful improvements that include:

- Greater Service Reliability: A unified system will create more direct routes and operational flexibility, reducing congestion and minimizing service interruptions.
- Shorter Transit Times: Eliminating interchanges will streamline shipments, cutting days from delivery schedules and helping us better serve our customers.
- Enhanced Investment Opportunities: A larger, more efficient transcontinental network will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and safety initiatives.
- Expanded Market Reach: The merged system will give our company access to a wider range of destinations and new customer opportunities.

We understand that thorough regulatory review is essential, and we respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full consideration to the significant benefits this merger will bring to shippers, consumers, and the national economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Columbus Vegetable Oils is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Columbus Vegetable Oils, we receive millions of pounds of edible oil products via rail and package them for sale to markets worldwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Columbus Vegetable Oils has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to produce more goods to more customer faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

CORNERSTONE SYSTEMS

September 25, 2025

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman
Surface Transportation Board
395 E Street SW
Washington, DC 20423

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

At Cornerstone Systems, we've spent nearly three decades helping our customers solve complex logistics challenges with dependable, cost-effective transportation solutions. As a full-service, employee-owned 3PL, we specialize in intermodal, boxcar, truck brokerage, and railcar consolidation—moving freight across North America with precision and care.

Our long-standing partnership with Union Pacific has been instrumental in our ability to deliver on that promise. That's why we're writing to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

We believe this merger represents a strategic opportunity to strengthen the freight rail network in ways that directly benefit shippers like us. A transcontinental railroad would allow for more seamless service across regions, reducing transit times and minimizing handoffs. That kind of efficiency isn't just good for business—it's essential for maintaining supply chain reliability in a competitive and fast-moving market.

Beyond operational improvements, we see this merger as a catalyst for broader industrial growth. Rail is a cornerstone of American infrastructure, and a unified network would be better positioned to invest in the technology, equipment, and capacity needed to support the evolving needs of manufacturers, retailers, and consumers. It also enhances freight security—an increasingly important factor as supply chains become more complex and risk-sensitive.

At Cornerstone, we compete directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital part of how we offer scalable, sustainable solutions. The ability to access a broader geographic footprint, coupled with improved service reliability, would allow us to better serve our existing customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is a critical part of this process, and we appreciate the thoughtful consideration that goes into evaluating a merger of this scale. From our perspective, this combination has the potential to raise the bar for performance, innovation, and value across the freight rail industry.

CORNERSTONE SYSTEMS

Thank you for considering our perspective. We look forward to continuing our partnership with Union Pacific and to the enhanced service and opportunities this merger could bring.

Sincerely,

Tim Clay

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across domestic and global markets. Core Natural Resources is a producer of high-quality metallurgical and high-calorific-value thermal coals for the global marketplace, and the American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain – enabling the efficient and sustainable movement of large volumes of product. We recognize the vital role rail plays not only for our business, but also for our employees, our customers, and the broader national economy. We also understand firsthand that continued success requires sustained investment and renewed commitments to growth, reliability, and innovation across the rail network. Strong, forward-looking rail partnerships are essential to ensuring Core Natural Resources remains competitive and well positioned for a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers, including:

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Curtis Steel Co. is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Curtis Steel Co., we transport commercial steel products used in a variety of different industries to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Curtis Steel Co. has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers and partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

I'm writing to express our company's support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Cyclyx International, LLC (along with its affiliates, "Cyclyx") depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products. Our company converts post-use plastic waste into high-quality feedstock for both mechanical and advanced recycling applications. Our customers are multinational chemical companies that further process the materials and deliver them to markets around the world, often by rail.

The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing our customers to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so Cyclyx and other companies like ours have a bright future.

We believe the proposed merger will yield benefits for those, like us, who do business with Union Pacific. Those benefits include improved service reliability, reduced transit times, and expanded reach.

Regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to consider the positive impact the merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective.
Sincerely,

Re: Support for the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Drax is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the southern part of the country. At Drax, we transport wood pellets from our various southern plants to coastal ports and ultimately, to our global customers. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

· Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.

· Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.

· Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

· Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

DUNCAN & SON LINES

August 26, 2025

As an 83-year-old trucking company, we have seen dramatic changes in the logistics industry over the years and the creation of a seamless coast to coast rail carrier would be one more step towards improving the transportation infrastructure. We support the additional movement of goods by rail across the country while still maintaining a strong truck network for the final delivery miles. The potential improvement in transit times, and reduced transportation costs, across the US via a nationwide rail service is better for supply chains and consumers. We support the proposed Union Pacific - Norfolk Southern merger as the next phase of service improvements in the movement of goods within the US.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a customer of Union Pacific, EMTEK Matting Solutions is writing to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

When large projects necessitate that we reposition our rental fleet of access matting across the country, we rely on rail to make that move as efficient and cost-effective as possible. Utilizing rail allows us to move our product in a volume that isn't economically feasible by flatbed.

We believe that the proposed merger will yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver our product to the jobsite faster. Our projects usually operate on tight timelines, so reduced transit times would make transporting our product via rail a more attractive option for some of our shorter notice projects.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones. Having a fully integrated East-West network would help us service the entire country via rail (when applicable) with minimal confusion and headaches.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, EuroChem North America is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. EuroChem North America, we transport agricultural fertilizers and animal feed ingredients to markets nationwide as well as into Canada. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that EuroChem North America has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

EUROCHEM

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

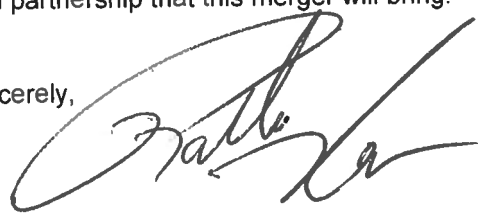
As a proud supplier to Union Pacific, Farmers Rice Milling Company strongly supports the proposed merger with Norfolk Southern.

At Farmers Rice Milling Company, we provide rice products to Mexico and throughout the United States, which are essential to the safe and smooth operation of freight rail service across the country. The American freight rail network is the backbone of our operations, enabling us to move products sustainably and efficiently while supporting jobs and economic growth.



We believe that the proposed merger will yield significant benefits for Union Pacific's suppliers and partners, including:

- Business Growth: Union Pacific fosters an environment where suppliers can thrive while meeting the company's needs for safe, efficient and cost-effective solutions. We anticipate that our own business will grow as the company's supply demands expand as a result of the merger.
- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and increased operational flexibility, helping reduce service interruptions that can impact supply schedules.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman Surface Transportation Board

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a customer shipping lumber products, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our business to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.
My business would benefit from faster, more reliable service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain and access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger appears to have a strong potential to help my business by delivering single-line service and offering more direct routes that increase transportation options, expand each railroad's geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology.
At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, sustainability and long-term benefits to customers, and I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard these benefits.
Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.
I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in its consideration of the proposed transaction.

Sincerely,

Fox Lumber Sales, Inc.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Frac Star Group is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of customers who operate in the Energy Sector and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Frac Star Group LLC, we transload products for the Energy Industry that is supported by the Union Pacific to markets in the Southwestern portion of the US. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that the Frac Star Group has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customer, faster.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a customer of Union Pacific, Frontier Carbon Solutions ("Frontier") is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Our company focuses on developing innovative solutions that enable freight customers to reduce their carbon footprint while maintaining efficient, reliable transportation. Frontier depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure safe, timely delivery across the country.

At Frontier, we specialize in decarbonization services and solutions, including CO_2 transportation and geologic sequestration, serving industrial emitters along Union Pacific's rail system. Our services are designed specifically for situations where CO_2 delivery via pipeline is not feasible, making rail transportation the critical link in the carbon capture and storage value chain. This collaboration represents a vital step forward in sustainable logistics, allowing Union Pacific's customers to meet their environmental goals while benefiting from rail's inherently lower carbon intensity compared to other transportation modes.

The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail infrastructure to our employees, our services, and our national decarbonization efforts. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks require continued investment and innovation to ensure that companies like Frontier can effectively support the nation's decarbonization goals.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions that could impact critical CO_2 transport schedules.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver CO_2 to our geologic sequestration hub faster and more efficiently.

- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety—all essential for handling specialized CO_2 transportation.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve industrial emitters across more regions and connect them to additional sequestration sites.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours, the emerging carbon management industry, and the broader economy's decarbonization efforts.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to continued partnership and the enhanced service capabilities that this merger will bring to support America's climate objectives.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Gilbert International, we transport all types of products. This includes but not limited to raw materials, food grade, alcohol, metals, and non hazardous materials. To markets nationwide and then onto the rest of the world. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Gilbert International has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers/partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers / consumers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longstanding customer of Union Pacific, Goya Foods, Inc. writes to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Rail transportation is a critical component of our business — enabling us to deliver high-quality food products efficiently, reliably, and cost-effectively to customers across the United States and international markets. The strength and competitiveness of our supply chain, and by extension the broader food distribution network, rely on a modern, resilient rail system capable of meeting evolving market demands.

We believe this merger represents a forward-looking investment in that future. The combined network would deliver clear and measurable benefits to shippers like Goya Foods, including:

- Greater Service Reliability: More direct routes and enhanced network flexibility, reducing the risk of service disruptions.
- Faster Transit Times: Elimination of interchange delays, enabling more predictable and timely deliveries.
- Enhanced Investment: A stronger platform for infrastructure, technology, and equipment upgrades that improve capacity, safety, and performance.
- Expanded Reach: Broader geographic access that supports growth into new markets and improves service to existing customers.

We recognize the importance of a thorough regulatory review and are confident the Board will see the significant value this combination offers — not only to individual shippers but also to the strength and future competitiveness of the U.S. freight rail system.

Thank you for your consideration. We look forward to the enhanced service and expanded opportunities this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of GPOD of Idaho, a longstanding customer of Union Pacific, I write to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

GPOD of Idaho depends on the American freight rail network to ensure the safe, timely, and efficient delivery of our fresh-packed Russet Burbank potatoes to markets nationwide, including a substantial volume to the Hunts Point Terminal Market in New York. Rail service is an indispensable component of our supply chain, providing the capacity, sustainability, and reliability necessary to serve our customers and maintain our role in the national food system.

We recognize that the regulatory review of this proposed merger must carefully balance competition, service quality, and the long-term health of the rail industry. Based on our direct experience as a shipper, we believe this transaction will strengthen the freight rail network and produce benefits that are squarely in the public interest. Some of the benefits GPOD sees from this merger are service reliability with a combined network will reduce operational redundancies, provide more direct routing, and decrease the risk of service disruptions. We believe there will also be transit time reductions by eliminating interchanges which will shorten delivery times by several days, improving supply chain efficiency and the reliability of time-sensitive shipments. Also, a unified transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to commit capital toward infrastructure, technology, and equipment, thereby enhancing safety, capacity, and resilience. Lastly with this merger we feel there will be expanded market access. The merger will broaden geographic reach, allowing shippers such as GPOD to serve existing markets more effectively while accessing new ones.

For businesses like ours, the benefits of this merger extend beyond corporate efficiency. They support agricultural producers, strengthen food security, and promote economic competitiveness at both the regional and national levels.

We respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to consider these benefits in its deliberations. The proposed merger offers a rare opportunity to advance service quality, efficiency, and long-term investment in the freight rail system upon which so many industries and communities depend.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a customer shipping specialty sand to various industry markets, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our business to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

As a 100% U.S.-based company, Green Diamond competes directly with materials imported into the United States. Faster, more reliable transportation service, a resilient domestic supply chain, and improved access to the Midwest, Southwest, and East Coast markets are critical to our competitiveness.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has strong potential to support our business by enabling single-line service, offering more direct routes, and expanding each railroad's geographic reach. These improvements would increase transportation options, encourage infrastructure investment, and modernize the rail network — all of which are essential to strengthening American manufacturing and supply chains. At the same time, it is important that these benefits are delivered in a way that supports long-term safety, sustainability, and fair access for customers. We trust the Surface Transportation Board will ensure that the final outcome delivers these broader public benefits, and we encourage support for this merger.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in it's consideration of the proposed transaction.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter.

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman
Surface Transportation Board

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Grey Point Systems, LLC is writing to offer our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. As a Minnesota-based logistics and industrial development firm specializing in rail-served site evaluation, freight optimization, and transload project development, our business depends on a freight rail network that is reliable, efficient, and capable of supporting long-term investment across the regions we serve.

Our work centers on aligning manufacturers, agricultural shippers, and industrial end users with the rail infrastructure that allows them to grow. A resilient, high-capacity rail system is fundamental to America's industrial competitiveness, and the proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern combination represents an opportunity to strengthen that system in ways that benefit both current and future rail-served enterprises.

From our perspective, the merger stands to deliver several meaningful advantages:

- Greater Network Fluidity and Reliability

A combined system would reduce interchanges, streamline routing, and enhance operational coordination across a transcontinental footprint. For industries reliant on rail—agriculture, manufacturing, energy, construction materials—these improvements translate directly into lower risk, fewer delays, and smoother supply chains.

- Improved Transit Times and Market Reach

The ability to ship across a unified western-to-eastern network opens the door to faster transit times and more competitive access to both domestic and export markets. For businesses evaluating new sites or expansions, an integrated network provides stronger value propositions and broader geographic optionality.

- Increased Infrastructure and Technology Investment

A larger, more financially resilient carrier will have the resources to invest in track capacity, terminals, modernized locomotives, and advanced digital tools. These improvements compound over time, raising service quality and supporting the continued growth of rail-oriented industrial development.

- Enhanced Opportunities for Rural and Industrial Communities

Projects like transload hubs, industrial parks, rail-served ag processing, and distribution facilities rely on predictable rail service. A strengthened network will encourage new capital investment and support the kind of long-term industrial growth that brings jobs, tax base, and opportunity to local communities.

Grey Point Systems supports robust regulatory review, and we encourage the Board to evaluate this proposal with both the economic and operational benefits in mind. From our vantage point as a firm working closely with railroads, shippers, and industrial developers, this merger has the potential to create a safer, more reliable, more competitive rail network that better serves American industries.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Hawkeye Commodities is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Hawkeye Commodities, we transport bulk grain in covered hoppers to markets Nationwide, and to Canada, and Mexico. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Hawkeye Commodities has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, and consumvers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a valued customer of Union Pacific, High Performance Services, LLC is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company relies on dependable, efficient, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our clients and ensure the safe and timely movement of essential materials across the country. At High Performance Services, we specialize in providing logistics and performance-driven supply chain solutions that often depend on rail transportation to move industrial materials, manufactured products, and project freight to destinations nationwide. Freight rail plays a critical role in our operations—helping us serve our customers reliably, reduce environmental impact, and to maintain our competitive edge.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance service quality and network efficiency in ways that directly benefit shippers like us. Specifically, we anticipate the following advantages:

- Improved Service Reliability: A unified network will allow for more consistent schedules and fewer handoffs, reducing delays and improving supply chain predictability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Streamlined routes between major regions will shorten delivery cycles, helping us better meet our customers' expectations.
- Increased Investment: The merged railroad will have greater capacity to invest in advanced technology, infrastructure, and equipment—enhancing safety, sustainability, and long-term competitiveness.
- Expanded Market Reach: Access to a broader, coast-to-coast rail network will help us reach new markets and serve our customers more efficiently.

We appreciate the importance of the Surface Transportation Board's review process and trust that the Board will recognize how this merger can strengthen the national rail system, promote innovation, and benefit American businesses and consumers alike.

Thank you for your thoughtful consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for the Proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of HOBO Renewable Diesel LLC, I write to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. HOBO is a Houston-based renewable fuels company, and a long-standing Union Pacific customer. Our operations rely on dependable, efficient rail service to move renewable diesel feedstocks and finished product to markets across the country.

Rail is a critical backbone of our supply chain—enabling safe, economical, and lower-emissions transport for high-volume shipments. In today's evolving energy landscape, a resilient and better-connected rail network directly supports our ability to meet customer demand, maintain cost discipline, and advance our environmental commitments.

We believe the proposed combination will strengthen national freight connectivity and deliver practical benefits to shippers like us, including:

• Improved service reliability: More direct routing options and better network fluidity reduce interchange exposure and lower the risk of disruptions.
• Faster transit times: Streamlined end-to-end movements shorten cycle times, helping us meet contractual delivery windows more consistently.

• Greater investment capacity: A unified system is better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment that enhance safety, capacity, and efficiency.
• Expanded market reach: Broader geographic coverage enables us to reach new customers and optimize lanes across key energy and industrial corridors.

We recognize the importance of the Board's review process and encourage careful consideration of the positive, system-wide impacts this merger can bring for shippers, workers, and the broader economy. Strengthening the nation's rail network will promote innovation, competitiveness, and long-term sustainability.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We value our relationship with Union Pacific and look forward to the enhanced service and network benefits anticipated from this transaction.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-term provider of intermodal solutions and a substantial customer of both Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern, Hub Group, Inc. (Nasdaq: HUBG) writes to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Hub Group was founded over 50 years ago in Illinois as a family-owned intermodal provider and has grown into a publicly traded company offering comprehensive transportation and logistics management solutions to shippers across a wide range of industries. As we have grown to approximately $4 billion in revenue and 6,000 employees, intermodal freight solutions have remained our core service offering.

Hub Group owns over 50,000 intermodal containers that it uses to provide cost-effective, reliable, and fuel-efficient Intermodal freight transportation to thousands of intermodal shippers in industries such as consumer products, retail, durable goods, automotive, and food and beverage. For several years Hub Group has partnered with Union Pacific in the west and Norfolk Southern in the east to bring the many benefits of intermodal transportation to our customers. We believe that the formation of America's first transcontinental railroad through the merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will accelerate the full realization of the benefits of intermodal transportation for our customers and the United States economy.

The American freight rail network is a critical component of Hub Group's service offerings and of our customers' supply chains, allowing us to serve shippers by moving large freight volumes efficiently and sustainably. As manufacturing in the United States further expands it is critical to have the reliable, efficient, and cost-effective freight rail service and offerings that Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern would more effectively provide as a combined company. Post-merger, Union Pacific and an integrated transcontinental railroad will provide significant competitive benefits, including:

- Eliminating Interchanges: Resulting in improved fluidity, shorter transit times for shippers and their end customers, enhanced fuel efficiency, and better asset utilization.
- Improved Service Reliability: Offering more direct routes and greater flexibility, thereby minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Increased Investment: Being better positioned to effectively invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: A broader, connected geographic footprint will allow Hub Group to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We recognize that the STB's regulatory review is an important part of the merger process, and we encourage the STB to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on the United States economy, shippers across several industries, and Hub Group and its employees.

Thank you for your consideration of Hub Group's perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-standing customer of Union Pacific, I.C.E. Service Group, Inc.is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, dependable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At I.C.E. Service Group, Inc., we transport hazardous commodities to markets and disposal facilities nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes safely, efficiently, and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that I.C.E. Service Group, Inc., has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more material to its destination faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I'm writing today to express my support as a cold storage business owner that uses rail for the pending merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our 487,000 square foot facility, served by rail is located in Council Bluffs IA, adjacent to a Union Pacific rail yard and we'll start shipping pork on rail for a customer, Tyson Foods starting in November, 2025. We've been preparing for this for quite some time.

We're especially excited about shipping what is produced in the heart of America (pork, beef and chicken primarily) to the ports and this merger will connect around100 ports across 43 states! This is much easier and faster for one railroad to handle the entire distance vs a transfer.

Please feel free to reach out if any questions.

Thank you,

Subject: Support for the Proposed Merger Between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of Infinite Recycled Technologies, I am writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

As a longtime Union Pacific customer, Infinite Recycled Technologies relies on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products nationwide. Our company transports recycled glass, also known as cullet, to markets across the United States. The American freight rail network is a vital part of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes of material efficiently and sustainably.

We recognize the essential role rail transportation plays in supporting our employees, customers, and the broader national economy. We also understand the importance of continued investment in rail infrastructure to ensure future growth, innovation, and sustainability.

We believe that this merger will enhance competition and deliver substantial benefits for both Union Pacific and businesses like ours, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: A unified network will create more direct routes and greater operational flexibility, reducing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating interchanges between carriers will shorten transit times, enabling us to serve our customers more quickly and efficiently.
- Increased Investment: A transcontinental system will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment—enhancing service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Market Reach: A broader, integrated network will allow us to reach new markets and better serve our existing customers.

We appreciate the critical role of the Surface Transportation Board in evaluating this proposal and respectfully urge you to consider the significant positive impacts this merger will have on small businesses like ours and the overall U.S. economy.

Thank you for your consideration. We look forward to the continued partnership and improved service opportunities this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the Vice President – Environmental, Health, Safety & Security of International-Matex Tank Terminals LLC, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Iowa Corn Processors, L.C. is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Iowa Corn Processors, we transport degermed, debranned dry-milled corn grits, meals and flours to the brewing, ready-to-eat cereals, snack food, batters and breading manufacturers nationwide, as well as exports. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Iowa Corn Processors has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President of the Jordan Foster Infrastructure Group, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,

John Goodrich

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Kens Foods LLC is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of customers and consumer and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Kens Foods LLC we transport Soy Oil, Canola Oil, Corn Syrup, Tomato Paste and Pepper Sauce to markets across all of the USA and do a little exporting to other countries. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Kens Foods LLC has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Key Cooperative is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of Key Cooperative's member owners and customers to ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Key Cooperative, we currently transport corn and soybeans to markets primarily to the West and Southwest. This merger would allow more reliable and efficient access to markets for our products in the East and Southeast. We also bring unit trains of crop nutrients which would benefit from expanded service corridors. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Key Cooperative has reliable and more efficient service far into the future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like Key Cooperative, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more timely and efficiently.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, Knichel Logistics is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, Knichel Logistics competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and has potential to yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will reduce transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We are optimistic that the merger will lead to more competitive rail products—not only through improved service and efficiency, but also through innovation and responsiveness to customer needs. As the rail industry evolves, we believe this combination can help raise the bar for performance and value.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

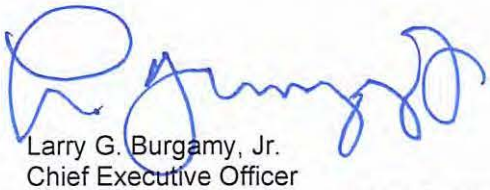
As a longtime customer of, and contractor to Norfolk Southern, Lincoln Energy Solutions and Lincoln Terminal Company, respectively, are writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our companies depend on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our shippers and end-use customers, and to ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Lincoln Energy, we ship large volumes of ethanol and biodiesel to markets across the US, but in particular to destinations in the Southeast. Specifically, in 2024 Lincoln Energy marketed and/or shipped nearly17,000 carloads of ethanol and biodiesel and nearly 16,000 carloads 2025 YTD. At Lincoln Terminal, we own, operate and/or control five rail-to-truck or rail-to-pipe transload facilities in the Southeast that are open to all interested customers. Further, we are working with Norfolk Southern to develop additional transload facilities in other markets and handling other commodities.

The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Lincoln Energy and Lincoln Terminal have a bright future.



We believe that the proposed merger will yield significant benefits for Norfolk Southern customers and service providers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more renewable fuels to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Lindsey & Osborne Pine Bluff, LLC is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers, which include GATX Transportation, CIT, Trinity Rail, Dow Chemical, Equistar Chemical and Union Tank Car. Since we store railcars for private car owners, our customers ship their equipment to markets in the United States, Canada and Mexico. It is imperative to provide safe and timely delivery of the railcars we store to the rail customers across the Western Hemisphere. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move our customers railcars efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees and the national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Lindsey & Osborne Pine Bluff, LLC has a bright future.

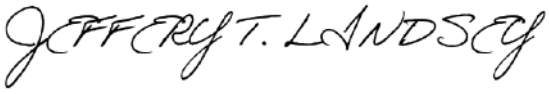
We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for our company and other Union Pacific customers, including:

Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.

Reduced Transit Times: Fast delivery of our customers' equipment is critical. By eliminating interchanges where railcars are handed off, the transit time to the end user of the railcars is reduced, allowing more turns of our customers' equipment per year.



Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, Loblaws is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, Loblaws competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and has potential to yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.

- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We are optimistic that the merger will lead to more competitive rail products—not only through improved service and efficiency, but also through innovation and responsiveness to customer needs. As the rail industry evolves, we believe this combination can help raise the bar for performance and value.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime Union Pacific customer and as a former Mayor here in California, I write in strong support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give this proposal careful and favorable consideration.

My company, Los Angeles Harbor Grain Terminal, is a third-generation, family-owned business and one of the largest agricultural export transloaders on the West Coast. Each year, we export over 1 billion pounds of U.S.-grown soybeans, corn, wheat, and other commodities—much of it originating from the Midwest, including points as far east as Ohio, Michigan, and Wisconsin—to key markets in Asia, the Middle East, and South America. Our success depends on timely, reliable, and cost-effective rail service.

In our experience, the current freight rail structure presents operational inefficiencies, particularly when shipments require interchange between carriers for cross country shipments. This merger represents a real opportunity to improve competition and modernize rail service in ways that benefit exporters like us and the broader U.S. economy. Specifically, we believe the combined UP–NS network would deliver the following benefits:

- Enhanced Service Reliability – A unified network that offers more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Quicker Transit Times – Eliminating redundant interchanges cutting multiple days for long-haul shipments, enhancing our global competitiveness and bringing exports to market faster.
- Private Sector Infrastructure Investment – A stronger transcontinental carrier will be positioned to invest in capacity, safety, technology, and infrastructure.
- Market Development Opportunities – A more extensive and cohesive network opens new domestic and international market opportunities for US agricultural products.

As a stakeholder who directly contributes to U.S. exports and rural economies, I urge the STB to recognize the real-world benefits this merger would deliver for shippers and the national freight system.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-term customer of Union Pacific, Martin Resource Management Corporation is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of contractors across the United States and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Martin Resource Management Corporation, we transport to markets nationwide and around the world. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Martin Resource Management Corporation has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more contractors, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Letter of Support for the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-standing customer of Norfolk Southern, I am writing on behalf of McPherson Oil (a division of The McPherson Companies) to express our full support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. We are a top distributor in the US for ExxonMobil and share a duty to provide our customers in our assigned territories.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our thousands of customers and to ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At The McPherson Companies, we transport oil, grease, diesel exhaust fluid and other critical-to-infrastructure products to markets throughout a territory ranging from the central US across the entire SE region of the country. We serve major industrial customers (steel, paper, drilling, mining, automotive), commercial and state services (ALDOT, MARTA) as well as numerous personal vehicle service locations.

The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that McPherson and all of our extended customers can continue to grow and prosper well into the future.

We believe that the proposed merger will yield significant benefits for Norfolk Southern customers like ourselves, including:

The McPherson Companies, Inc.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, MERASI is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

At Merasi, our business relies on dependable and cost-efficient rail service to keep products moving safely and on time to customers throughout the country. We specialize in transporting silica sand to Mexico's Foundry and Energy sectors, and the U.S. freight rail system forms the backbone of that supply chain.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Stronger Service Reliability: A unified rail network creates more direct routing options and added flexibility, which helps reduce the likelihood of service interruptions.
- Faster Deliveries: Removing interchange points—where cars are traditionally handed off—cuts multiple days from transit times, allowing us to move goods more quickly and efficiently to customers.
- Greater Investment Potential: With a continent-spanning system, there's more capacity to reinvest in infrastructure, modern technology, and upgraded equipment, all of which enhance safety, capacity, and overall service quality.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific and the Norfolk Southern railroads, Milano Railway Logistics is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Milano Railway Logistics, we transport wood, roofing shingles, and agricultural goods to markets internationally. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Milano Railway Logistics has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Minnesota Soybean Processors is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Minnesota Soybean Processors is a 2200 member cooperative that owns and operates a soybean crush facility and bio-diesel facility in Brewster, Minnesota. The MnSP mission is to provide the maximum value-added return to our investors by combining the latest soybean processing technologies with proven management. The Brewster facility started processing beans in our crushing facility in 2003 with the addition of the Bio-diesel refining facility in 2005. The process all starts with the farmer. Our farmers strive to deliver beans that are high in oil and protein content. Minnesota Soybean Processors goal, along with the assistance of our members, is to provide a high quality feed product for America's producers as well as providing a high quality renewable fuel source.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At MnSP, we transport soybean meal, soybean oil, soybean hulls, biodiesel and glycerin to markets in the United States, Canada and Mexico and across the world. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our shareholders, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that MnSP has a bright future.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Mode Global is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, Mode competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and has the potential to yield significant benefits for companies like ours, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Organic Elevator on the Union Pacific Railroad, Moshers Organic Grain Co LLC support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Organic grain rail shipping to our customers for organic Flour, Milk and Eggs. Organic customers need to have a steady supply of grain and rail is the most efficient, reliable, and cost-effective service. Trucking cost over 500 miles is costly and not dependable. Rule 11 adds to the cost of shipping from rail company to another railroad. Now most of Moshers Organic customers are on the Union Pacific. Farmers within 300 miles bring organic grain to be loaded on rail to be shipped to the west coast with the merger the east coast. A lot of grain organic or non-organic on the east coast is imported from other counties and not the United States because of Rule 11. If United States in not importing grain this will help with the farm economy. Center part of the United States is the grain belt. A railcar holds 4 and half semi-truck loads. This merger will have a befit to the farmers with lower margin rates along with new flour mills. A WIN WIN. Any time a truck can be taken off our busy highways and replace with a more efficient form of transportation is a win win. Switching from one railroad to another takes time so transit time will be faster.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longstanding Union Pacific customer, NAC LPT LLC strongly supports the proposed merger with Norfolk Southern.

Our operations rely on dependable, cost-effective rail service to transport low-level radioactive waste for clients such as the US DOE, EPA, and USACE to licensed sites in the western US. Freight rail is essential for our supply chain—offering efficient, sustainable transportation with the lowest carbon footprint per ton mile. We recognize the need for ongoing investments in rail infrastructure and innovation.

We believe this merger will deliver tangible benefits, including:

Improved Service Reliability: A unified network will provide more direct routes and flexibility, reducing service disruptions.

Shorter Transit Times: Fewer interchanges will speed up delivery, allowing us to serve more customers faster.

Greater Investment: The combined railroad can invest more in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, improving safety and capacity.

Broader Reach: Expanded network access helps us serve existing clients and reach new markets.

We encourage regulators to consider the positive impact this merger could have on our business and the wider economy.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

The National Waste & Recycling Association (NWRA) appreciates the opportunity to provide comments on the proposed merger between the Union Pacific Railroad and Norfolk Southern. NWRA is a trade association that represents private-sector waste and recycling companies in the United States, and manufacturers and service providers who do business with those companies. NWRA's members operate in all fifty states and the District of Columbia. NWRA provides safety, education, research, leadership and advocacy expertise to promote the North American waste and recycling industries, and create a climate where members prosper and provide safe, economically sustainable, and environmentally sound services.

As the Association that represents the waste and recycling industry, I want to inform you that our members depend on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of the nation. The movement of solid waste by rail is a critical part of the nation's environmental infrastructure. It is vital for the health and welfare of the public.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling faster delivery to the ultimate disposal site.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Our names are Harry K. Neal & Harry J. Griffin, and we serve as Managing Director & President at Neal Brothers Charleston, Inc. As a longstanding customer & vendor of Union Pacific, we are writing to voice our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

At Neal Brothers Charleston, Inc., reliable and cost-effective rail transportation is essential to our daily operations. We rely on rail to move industrial products to customers across the country—and in many cases, around the world. The freight rail network is the backbone of our supply chain, and its efficiency directly affects our ability to serve our customers, retain jobs, and grow our business.

We've seen firsthand the critical role Union Pacific plays in supporting industries like ours. But we also recognize the challenges the current rail infrastructure faces and the need for modernization, innovation, and expanded capacity. That is why we believe this merger represents a step forward.

From our perspective, the combination of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern stands to bring meaningful benefits, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: A unified network would offer more direct routes, helping us avoid delays caused by interchanges and increase operational predictability.
- Faster Transit Times: By streamlining routes and eliminating handoffs, we can get products to market more quickly and meet the demands of a fast-moving economy.
- Greater Investment in the Network: A stronger, combined railroad would have the resources to invest in advanced technologies and infrastructure, ensuring safer, more efficient operations.
- Expanded Market Reach: With access to a broader geographic footprint, we would be better equipped to serve our current customers and grow into new markets.

We understand that regulatory oversight is a critical part of this process, and we appreciate the Surface Transportation Board's thorough review. We respectfully ask that the Board consider the positive implications this merger could have for businesses like ours and for the national economy.

Thank you for considering our viewpoint. We are excited about the opportunity this merger presents and hopeful for the future of rail service in America.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, NEW Cooperative, Inc is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our over 12,000 farmer member/owners and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At NEW Cooperative, we transport corn and soybeans to markets domestically and around the world and bring in crop inputs from both domestic and world suppliers. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that NEW Cooperative has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime partner of Union Pacific's, Ocean Network Express Pte. Ltd. ("ONE") through its U.S. agent, Ocean Network Express (North America) Inc., is writing to express its support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

We believe that the proposed merger could yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like ONE, as well as for our U.S. - based customers by (as an example and not an exclusive list):

- Reducing Transit Times: By reducing the number of interchanges where rail cars are handed off, a process which regularly introduces a minimum of 1-2 days of transit delays, the merger has the potential to remove several days delay from existing transit times. This enables ONE and other stakeholders to deliver cargo to U.S. customers more efficiently and reliably.

- Expanding Service Base: The resulting improvement in continuity of service and transit times resulting will enhance ONE's ability to reliably serve our existing customer and expand our capacity to serve U.S. customers that require faster, more dependable cargo transportation.

We recognize that regulatory review is an important part of this process and requires thorough evaluation of the impact this merger will have on U.S. businesses and the broader economy. Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific and an operator of critical chemical storage and distribution infrastructure in the United States, Odfjell Terminals is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

At Odfjell Terminals, we handle and store bulk liquids — including chemicals, clean petroleum products, and specialty liquids — at our facilities in Houston and Charleston. From these locations, we serve customers across the U.S. and around the world. Reliable and efficient rail service is essential to our operations: it ensures that products can move safely and cost-effectively between ship, storage, and inland markets. The American rail freight network is therefore a cornerstone of both our business and our customers' supply chains.

We believe that the proposed merger will bring meaningful improvements to rail service, which in turn will strengthen Odfjell's ability to support safe, efficient, and sustainable logistics for the chemical industry. In particular, we see benefits in the following areas:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct service lanes, reducing handoffs and interchange delays that often cause congestion at terminals like ours.
- Reduced Transit Times: By removing unnecessary interchanges, the merged network can cut days from delivery schedules, enabling faster product movement and improved supply chain performance for our customers.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will allow us to serve inland and East Coast markets more effectively, making our Gulf Coast terminals even more valuable as gateways for U.S. exports.
- Increased Investment: With greater scale, the merged railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and safety, aligning with our own commitment to safe and sustainable operations.

For Odfjell, these improvements would translate into more efficient tank utilization, greater throughput, and a stronger platform for serving both domestic and international customers. For the broader economy, it would enhance the competitiveness of U.S. chemical producers, exporters, and the industries that rely on them.

We understand the importance of a thorough regulatory review, and we respectfully encourage the Board to weigh the significant benefits this merger can deliver for shippers, terminal operators, and end customers across the country.

Thank you for considering our perspective. We look forward to continuing our partnership with Union Pacific — and to the enhanced service capabilities that this merger with Norfolk Southern can bring.

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

I am writing as a long-time customer of both the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern to express our company's strong support for the proposed merger between these two railroads.

We here at Oleum Energy Solutions, LLC ("OES") depend upon reliable and cost-effective transportation for our bulk materials that ship throughout the United States. We distribute silica sands and other forms of aggregate to customers in operationally intensive industries, including but not limited Oil and Gas, construction, and manufacturing. Timely, cost-efficient, and safe delivery is paramount to our business and that of our customers. While we have originated materials via truck and barge over the years, rail origination has represented one hundred percent (100%) of our business since 2017. As such, the American freight rail network is core to our foundation.

While we understand the complexity associated with a merger of the UP-NS size, we believe that this transaction will yield notable benefits and synergies, including but not limited to:

- Increased Investment – maintaining and improving the "bones" of a massive rail network is an expensive endeavor when done properly. The combined "firepower" of the NS and UP will help to ensure that this infrastructure continues to operate well and scales for the future.
- Enhanced Reliability – by combining the NS and UP networks, there will be fewer "handoffs" (i.e., more direct routes), which will, in turn, reduce the risk of service disruption and increase the likelihood of more efficient delivery. This also helps to optimize the utilization of rail assets that we contribute to freight moves, which further lowers our cost of operation.
- Better Reach: the larger network of a combined NS and UP provides OES with an improved ability to hit markets into which we have historically be unable to enter.

Again, we very much appreciate the complexities that come with a merger of this size, and we certainly realize that regulatory review is a critical and necessary part of this process; however and for what it's worth, OES as a customer of both railroads can attest to the value we perceive coming from this proposed deal.

Thank you in advance for your consideration of our perspective.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, Overdrive Transportation is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, Overdrive Transportation competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and has potential to yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We are optimistic that the merger will lead to more competitive rail products—not only through improved service and efficiency, but also through innovation and responsiveness to customer needs. As the rail industry evolves, we believe this combination can help raise the bar for performance and value.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Endorsement of the Proposed Merger Between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern (STB Docket No. FD 36873)

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Owyhee Produce, operating in the Eastern Oregon/Western Idaho region and headquartered in Parma, Idaho, is a dedicated customer of Union Pacific. We are writing to unequivocally express our strong support for the proposed combination with Norfolk Southern.

As a primary shipper of fresh yellow, red, and white onions, our supply chain requires transportation that is efficient, dependable, and cost-effective. While we utilize multiple modes of transport, rail service is a highly important and valuable component that helps us meet customer demand and ensure the timely delivery of perishable products across the United States. Moving our high-volume, seasonal commodities by rail is a crucial and sustainable element of our logistics strategy. We recognize that the continued health and growth of the national freight rail network are dependent on new investments, and this merger represents a path toward securing a bright future for our operations.

We believe that the proposed integration of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will generate significant advantages for shippers and partners like Owyhee Produce, with the effect of enhancing competition in the broader freight market. Key benefits include:

- Accelerated Transit Times: By creating a seamless, single-line transcontinental network, this transaction promises to eliminate redundant interchanges. This reduction in terminal dwell time can cut days from transit schedules, allowing us to deliver fresher produce to more consumers, faster, thereby improving product quality and reducing logistics complexity.

- Greater Service Reliability: The unified network should offer more streamlined and flexible routing, which is essential for reducing service variability and minimizing the risk of costly disruptions to our temperature-sensitive supply chain.
- Expanded Reach and Access: A broader, single-line rail footprint will significantly enhance our ability to serve a wider geographic base of customers and access new markets across the nation.
- Increased Infrastructure Investment: We anticipate that the combined enterprise will be better capitalized and motivated to fund necessary investments in infrastructure, technology, and rolling stock, further improving overall service quality and capacity.

We urge the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider the clear, pro-competitive, and positive impact this merger will have on American agricultural businesses like ours, which rely on a world-class supply chain to efficiently deliver our products.

Thank you for your time and serious consideration of our perspective. We are confident this merger will lead to enhanced service and a stronger partnership.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Pencco Inc. is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Pencco Inc., we transport several Class 8 chemicals to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Pencco Inc. has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more our customers and our own terminals/plants, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Performance Produce LLC is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of Retail customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products. We transport fresh onions and potatoes from the Idaho region into our facility located in North Carolina on rail, then distribute to various regions.

The American freight rail network is a very useful component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail, and it is a part of our green initiatives. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation to accommodate the growing and changing needs of our company and our customers' businesses.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to rely on more consistent and timely deliveries which is critical when dealing in fresh produce.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our existing customers and help us reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-standing customer of Union Pacific, PERIN Resources, LLC is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of Trans-continental Rail customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At PERIN Resources, LLC. We transport key raw materials to numerous markets we have been working with for over 20 years now. This spreads nationwide and eventually internationally. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We predominantly work with US origin production but that production while we try and keep within the country as much as possible has a growing interest internationally. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that PERIN Resources has a bright future. Asa Whitney dreamed of a transcontinental railroad, and we connected them in 1869 under U.S. Grant. However, we have yet to see one company truly have the capability of unlocking transcontinental shipments without having to interact with competitors driving up costs typically as they cross the Mississippi. The expediency which the UP provides rail freight and the thoroughness of their systems would deem deserved to be the one to connect the oceans under one banner.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers such as us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Phoenix Park Energy Marketing L.L.C. (PPEML), a subsidiary of Phoenix Park Gas Processors Limited, is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

As one of the largest exporters of propane to Northern Mexico, our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers to ensure a safe, cost competitive and timely delivery of our products to Mexico and the United States. At PPEML we transport approximately 25,000 barrels per day of propane to markets in Mexico and across the United States. Therefore, the American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably.

Consequently, the importance of the rail and logistics services provided by Union Pacific to our employees, our products, and our national economy cannot be overemphasized. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation. This investment being made by Union Pacific will be a significant enabler to PPEML's expansion plans in the US mid-west and US north-eastern LPG markets and would add further value arising from the economies of scale that the merger provides.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific's customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.

- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster and cheaper.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure in PPEML's markets while deploying advanced technology, and modernized equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

We, at Pleasant Valley Potato, have been Union Pacific customers since we began business in 1987. In that time, we've seen many changes to the transportation industry and how it's regulated. Very few have been to our advantage. That's one reason why we're in favor of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Rail access from Idaho to the Southeastern markets has always been marked by lengthy transit delays. Most of the frustration we've had has been with the, all too often, delays caused by the handoff between the UP and NS. A merger would eliminate the interchange delay and allow for a freer flow of traffic from shipping point to destination. We also expect that, in eliminating the "handoff" of cars from one company to another, rates will be lowered, thereby making our product more competitive in all of the markets currently served by the NS.

We appreciate the opportunity to weigh in with our support of this merger and wish you the best Mr. Chairman.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Preacero Pellizzari Mexico is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Preacero Pellizzari Mexico, we transport steel structures to different US markets. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Preacero Pellizzari Mexico has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, PVP Industries, Inc. (PVP) is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our diverse customer base in Horticultural, Industrial and Commercial markets and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At PVP, we transport mined minerals from a variety of domestic locations such as Oregon, California, New Mexico and Georgia to our location in Ohio. Transporting primarily unexpanded Perlite ore for our use as a Perlite expander. This essential, but little known material, is then modified through our furnacing operation and used in a wide variety of products such as soils, hydroponic applications, loose fill insulation, castings, refractory cements, grouts, prothesis, Lithium-ion/hazardous packaging, adsorbents, and many more uses.

Our markets are primarily domestic and south-central Canada. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that PVP remains competitive in a global marketplace and has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific's customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to receive our goods in a more timely fashion.

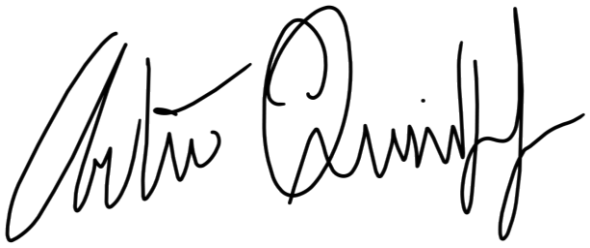
Re: Support for Union Pacific-Norfolk Southern Merger



Dear Members of the Surface Transportation Board,

I am writing on behalf of QA Pipe & Rail Service Inc., a company specializing in transloading OCTG Pipe and steel products. Our business depends heavily on reliable freight service to move these essential materials to energy, construction, and industrial customers across the region.

We believe the proposed Merger between Union Pacific Railroad and Norfolk Southern corporation will deliver significant benefits to shippers like us. By combining these two networks, we hope that this merger will improve service reliability for heavy and time sensitive shipments such as pipe and steel products, expand our market reach, enable more efficient delivery routes for our customers nationwide, reduce delays and congestion which directly impact our ability to serve the energy and steel sectors, and overall strengthen overall competitiveness in rail freight.

Our experience in the industry gives us confidence that the combined resources and expertise of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will deliver tangible benefits to the freight community and the broader economy. We urge the board to approve this merger so that businesses like ours can continue to thrive with stronger, more reliable rail service.
Thank you for considering our views. We appreciate your leadership in ensuring that the National Rail network remains competitive, efficient, and responsive to the needs of customers.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Radiant Road & Rail Inc is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, Radiant competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger has the potential to enhance competition with OTR truck in particular and has the potential to yield significant benefits for companies like ours, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We are optimistic that the merger will lead to more competitive rail products—not only through improved service and efficiency, but also through innovation and responsiveness to customer needs. As the rail industry evolves, we believe this combination can help raise the bar for performance and value.

Similarly, we appreciate the importance of maintaining flexibility and choice in the marketplace. Continued access to other carriers including CSX, BNSF, CN, and CPKC is important to our business and to the broader health of the freight ecosystem. Our support of this merger is contingent on a competitive environment enduring that provides access to the full array of railroad choices without limitations or penalties for supporting alternative options where our business sees benefit or requires it.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Re: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a 20-year customer of Union Pacific, I am writing on behalf of Rail Logix to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Rail Logix depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our clients and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Rail Logix, we handle a broad array of freight; chemicals, fuels, polyethylene, steel coils, pipe, consumer products, etc. These products are shipped to us from all over the world and are ultimately distributed to other parts of the United States, and overseas via the extensive US Port system.

The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our customers, and the US economy. We also understand that our rail networks need new investment, and a commitment to growth and innovation, so that businesses like ours can prosper.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific companies like Rail Logix. Such benefits include:

- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating unnecessary interchanges, where rail cars are handed off from one railroad to another, this merger will remove several days from our transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to our customers, faster.
- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Increased Investment: A transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our existing customers and establish new relationships.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the you to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for allowing us to express our views on this potential merger. We're strong supporters and would welcome any questions you might have.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs, Guadalupe Berlanga Martínez

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, REFRIGERADOS MONARCH, S. DE R.L.. is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of Leyendecker Supply Chain, Landstar, Ryder, Ascent, Lineager Logistics, Gondi and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At REFRIGERADOS MONARCH, S DE R.L., we transport produce Paper Roll, Automotive Parts, ,Steel Rolls to markets Mexico, USA and Canada The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that REFRIGERADOS MONARCH, S. DE R.L. has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers/partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers / consumers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, ROAR Logistics is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, ROAR competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions to our customers. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

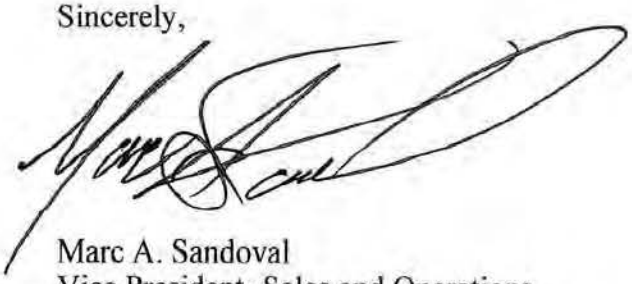

We are optimistic that the proposed merger will not only drive improved service and efficiency but will also lead to additional innovation and streamlined customer experience. As the rail industry evolves, we believe this combination can help raise the bar for performance and value.

Similarly, we appreciate the importance of maintaining flexibility and choice in the marketplace. Continued access to other carriers, including CSX and BNSF, is important to our business and to the broader health of the freight ecosystem.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Sacramento has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Salt Distributors Inc. has been a Union Pacific customer for over 3 decades and we are writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our business relies heavily on efficient, dependable, and cost-effective rail service to deliver bulk road salt to state, county, and city transportation departments across Washington, Idaho, and Oregon. The American freight rail network plays a vital role in our supply chain, enabling us to move large volumes of essential highway deicing supplies safely, sustainably, and on time.

We understand the importance of rail infrastructure not only to our operations, but also to our employees, the communities we serve, and the broader U.S. economy. At the same time, we recognize that the current network faces real challenges—challenges that require new investment, innovation, and a long-term commitment to growth. We believe the proposed merger is a positive step toward addressing those needs.

In particular, we see several meaningful benefits for companies like ours:

- Improved Service Reliability: A unified network would provide more direct routes and increased flexibility, reducing the risk of service delays.
- Faster Transit Times: Eliminating handoffs between carriers could shave days off delivery times, helping us meet our customers' needs more quickly and efficiently.
- Stronger Investment in Infrastructure: A combined, transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in the infrastructure, technology, and equipment needed to enhance service quality, expand capacity, and improve safety.
- Greater Geographic Reach: Enhanced network coverage will allow us to better serve existing customers and access new markets.

We recognize the importance of a thorough regulatory review and trust that the relevant authorities will thoughtfully consider the long-term benefits this merger offers—not only to businesses like ours, but to the wider economy.

Thank you for your attention to our perspective. We value our relationship with Union Pacific and look forward to the opportunities this merger could bring.

Warm regards,

Sincerely,

Subject: Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, Sawtooth Caverns is writing this letter regarding the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Sawtooth Caverns is the largest salt cavern storage facility for Refined Products and Natural Gas Liquids in the Western United States. Not being connected to a pipeline, Union Pacific is the lifeline for our customers to deliver and receive products in and out of our facility. Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service. U.P. is a critical part of the supply chain to ensure industry has the petroleum products necessary to provide the transportation fuel, fuel components and heating fuels necessary to keep America productive. Union Pacific is in and out of our facility reliably, multiple times per week. Our customers rely on U.P. to ensure their own operations are efficient and sustainable.

We believe that there could be benefits to the proposed merger for our customers, such as improved service reliability, time savings through elimination of interchanges between the railroads, and the ability to economically deliver products from further geographic locations. We look forward to continuing our longstanding relationship with U.P. and we wish them the best in their pending merger with Norfolk Southern. Assuming any and all regulatory requirements are met; Sawtooth Caverns does not oppose this merger.

Re: Support for Union Pacific and NS Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Sherwood Lumber has been in business for 71 years and has been a customer of the Union Pacific for that entire period of time. Sherwood Lumber strongly supports the proposed merger between the Union Pacific and the Norfolk Southern railroads.

Sherwood Lumber ships thousands of cars a year on both the UP and NS rail lines and it is essential that we receive reliable service and as well cost-effective pricing. Our business transports dimension lumber and plywood products on flat bed, A-frame and box cars provided by the UP and NS. The rail freight network is critical for our day to day business and especially for our ability to service our customers. As our business has grown over the past 71 years we have full knowledge that the rail networks must continue to invest in their own growth and innovation.

We are convinced that this merger will enhance competition within the rail industry and have far reaching benefits for Sherwood Lumber.

We are aware that regulatory review is important before any decisions can be made. I do hope that during this review process that you will consider the positive impact on customers like Sherwood Lumber and the U.S. economy as a whole.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a customer shipping completed vehicles and freight shipments, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our business to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

My business would benefit from faster, more reliable service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain and access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to help my business by delivering single-line service and offering more direct routes that increase transportation options, expand each railroad's geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, sustainability and long-term benefits to customers, and I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard these benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in its consideration of the proposed transaction.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Soufflet Malt is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Soufflet Malt, we transport barley to our production facilities and malted barley direct to our brewing and distilling customers across North America or to other internal warehouse locations on then onto North American or internationally located customers. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Soufflet Malt has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a customer shipping Beef Tallow, Lard and Palm, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our business to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

My business would benefit from faster, more reliable service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain and access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to help my business by delivering single-line service and offering more direct routes that increase transportation options, expand each railroad's geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, sustainability and long-term benefits to customers, and I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard these benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in its consideration of the proposed transaction.

Sincerely,

Tarez McNeal

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, I am writing on behalf of South Coast Terminals to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

South Coast Terminals, based in Houston, Texas, is a leading provider of bulk liquid storage, specialty chemical toll manufacturing, and logistics services for the broader chemical and energy sectors. Our operations depend on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to move large volumes of raw materials and finished products—such as chemicals, additives, and industrial goods—across the country. Railroads are the backbone of our supply chain, enabling us to serve customers nationwide and connect to global markets through Gulf Coast ports.

Our business has made significant investments in rail infrastructure, including recent projects to expand track capacity and improve railcar throughput at our Houston facilities. These enhancements, coordinated closely with Union Pacific, are designed to support increased demand and ensure safe, timely delivery for our customers. The ability to receive and ship bulk commodities by rail is essential to our competitiveness and providing an exceptional service level to our customers.

We believe the proposed merger will deliver substantial benefits to South Coast businesses and the regional economy, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: A unified network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing service disruptions and reducing the risk of delays that can impact critical supply chains.

- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges and streamlining operations, the merger will shorten transit times for bulk shipments, allowing us to deliver products to customers faster and more efficiently.
- Increased Investment: The combined railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety for industrial shippers like South Coast Terminals.
- Expanded Reach: Enhanced connectivity will allow South Coast businesses to access a broader geographic footprint, supporting growth and new market opportunities.

The continued success of South Coast Terminals is closely tied to the strength of the rail network. Railroads not only support major industries such as chemicals, energy, and manufacturing, but also drive job creation and local investment providing us with access to critical shipping hubs in a safe and reliable manner. The merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will help ensure that our region remains a hub for industrial growth and innovation.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Steelscape LLC is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

At Steelscape LLC, we manufacture and distribute galvanized and painted steel coils to markets across the United States. Our business depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet customer expectations and ensure safe, timely delivery of our products. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. As we continue to diversify our supply chain to remain competitive in today's market, our reliance on efficient rail service has never been greater.

We recognize the essential role rail plays not only in our operations but also in supporting employees, customers, and the broader economy. We also understand that rail networks require ongoing investment, innovation, and a commitment to growth so that companies like Steelscape can thrive in the years ahead.

We believe the proposed merger will strengthen that commitment and deliver meaningful benefits for Union Pacific customers such as us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will provide more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating interchanges where railcars are handed off will cut several days from transit times, enabling faster delivery to customers.
- Increased Investment: A transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, enhancing capacity, safety, and service quality.
- Expanded Reach: Access to a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve existing customers and reach new markets.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully weigh the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and on the broader U.S. economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Sublime Intertrade is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Sublime Intertrade, we transport commercial goods and hazmat products to national and international markets. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Sublime Intertrade has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more of our customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Truly yours,

SUNTRAIN

San Francisco, CA

Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

SunTrain is pioneering the deployment of battery railcars to transport stored electricity over existing freight rail corridors. Our system allows utilities, data centers, ports, and industrial customers to bypass congested transmission lines and access reliable behind-the-meter power, directly leveraging the national rail network as a parallel backbone of the 21st-century energy economy. Union Pacific has been a critical collaborator in advancing this vision, and our success depends on a rail system that is both reliable and forward-looking.

For SunTrain, the benefits of the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger are meanigful:

A more seamless energy corridor. Our projects span regions currently split between carriers, forcing unnecessary interchanges. A unified network reduces these handoffs, ensuring that battery trains carrying gigawatt-hours of energy can flow from renewable generation hubs to high-demand markets without delay.

Support for emerging freight classes. Energy storage by rail is not a traditional commodity. It requires reliable scheduling windows, secure handling, and priority routing. A stronger, integrated operator is better positioned to support innovative cargoes like ours that expand what freight rail can deliver.

Catalyst for investment and modernization. The merger's scale will accelerate adoption of advanced rail technologies, from electrification to digital scheduling. These upgrades dovetail with SunTrain's goals of safer, cleaner, and more reliable battery rail operations.

Resilience for the broader economy. By strengthening the nation's rail backbone, this merger supports not only SunTrain but also the many industries—energy, manufacturing, agriculture, ports—that depend on rail to remain competitive against trucking and global supply chain pressures.

SunTrain operates at the intersection of rail and energy infrastructure. We see firsthand the need for expanded capacity, reduced bottlenecks, and forward-looking investment. This merger is an opportunity to align the freight rail system with 21st-century priorities, from energy security to industrial resilience.

Sincerely,

Christopher D. Smith

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman
Surface Transportation Board
395 E Street SW
Washington, DC 20423

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As EVP-Operations of Superior Farms, a national company that utilizes the rail system, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to large and small businesses. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,

Shane MacKenzie

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Target Transportation is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, Target competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and has the potential to yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs

Subject: Support for the Union Pacific / Norfolk Southern Merger

Chairman Fuchs,

It was great meeting with you earlier this year. We appreciated the chance to share our perspective as a family-owned agribusiness that depends heavily on rail. Thank you for hearing our concerns and engaging in an open dialogue.

The Arthur Companies is a fifth-generation, family-owned agribusiness headquartered in Arthur, North Dakota, where we were founded more than a century ago. What began as a single country elevator has grown into a diversified grain, agronomy, and research business with a footprint across North Dakota and Idaho. The proposed merger would impact our Idaho assets in particular, positioning us to reach new markets and end-users further east. We strongly believe this would have a positive impact on our business, our growers, and the supply chains we serve.

On behalf of The Arthur Companies, I want to express our strong support for the proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern merger. A stronger, more connected rail network means better service, more reliable delivery, and new opportunities for growers. Expanded connectivity across regions will provide real opportunities for our farmers and for the customers we serve. With the right oversight, it represents a meaningful step forward for the long-term health of U.S. agriculture and supply chains.

Farmers don't have time or margin for delays. The sooner this merger is approved, the sooner we can all start seeing the benefits—fewer bottlenecks, better access, and lower costs across the supply chain. That's good for agriculture and it's good for the communities that depend on it.

We encourage the Board to move forward and approve this merger without delay.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,
As Founder and CEO of TLTerminals, I am writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

TLTerminals provides transloading, warehousing, and multimodal logistics solutions for a wide range of industries. Our operations depend on efficient, reliable, and sustainable rail service to ensure the safe and timely delivery of products across North America. Through our strategic location in Monterrey, we serve as a critical link in the cross-border supply chain, connecting U.S. railroads with Mexican markets.

We believe this merger will bring significant benefits for rail customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: A unified network will minimize interchanges and strengthen supply chain continuity for cross-border shipments.
- Reduced Transit Times: Faster, more direct connections between origins in the U.S. Southeast and Midwest with Mexico, removing days from current transit schedules.
- Increased Investment: A stronger transcontinental railroad will be able to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment that support capacity growth and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Access to a broader geographic footprint will enable us to provide our customers with new, competitive transportation options, aligned with nearshoring trends in Mexico.

Rail is the backbone of our operations, and enhancing connectivity between UP and NS networks is critical for advancing North American trade competitiveness. We respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours, the communities we serve, and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration.

TPP TRANSFERENCIAS PORTUARIAS DEL PACÍFICO

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman
Surface Transportation Board
395 E Street SW
Washington, DC 20423

Subject: Strong Support for the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of Transferencias Portuarias del Pacífico, a long-standing customer of Union Pacific, I am pleased to express our unequivocal support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company specializes in the handling and transportation of bulk commodities for international transit customers—particularly copper concentrate and coal— from key markets across the United States. We rely on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet our customers' needs and ensure the safe, timely delivery of these critical materials.

As a vital link between U.S. producers, international ports, and global markets, we understand how essential the American freight rail network is to both national and international supply chains. It enables us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We also recognize the importance of ongoing investment and innovation in rail infrastructure to support future growth, competitiveness, and resilience for companies like ours.

We are confident that the proposed merger will strengthen competition and deliver significant benefits for Union Pacific partners such as Transferencias Portuarias del Pacífico, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, reducing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are transferred, the merger will cut several days after transit times, enabling us to deliver more copper concentrate and coal to international customers more quickly.

- Increased Investment: The new transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment—enhancing service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Access to a broader geographic footprint will allow us to serve our existing customers more effectively and reach new markets.

We fully appreciate that regulatory review is an essential part of this process and respectfully urge the Board to consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and on the broader U.S. and international economy.

Thank you for considering our perspective. We look forward to continuing our partnership and to the enhanced service this merger is poised to deliver.

TRANSMODAL

Tuesday, September 23rd, 2025

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman
Surface Transportation Board
395 E Street SW
Washington, DC 20423

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Transmodal Group is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Transmodal Group, we lead intermodal logistics, adding value through security and sustainability across the supply chain. Specialized in consumer goods and wine & spirits industries to markets and then onto the rest of the world. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so Transmodal has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

TRANSMODAL

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Sincerely,

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a customer shipping food & beverage, chemical, construction & manufacturing, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our business to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

My business would benefit from faster, more reliable service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain and access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to help my business by delivering single-line service and offering more direct routes that increase transportation options, expand each railroad's geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, sustainability and long-term benefits to customers, and I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard these benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in its consideration of the proposed transaction.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, Trio Trucking is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. As an intermodal marketing company, Trio Enterprises competes directly with over-the-road trucking, and rail is a vital component of our ability to offer sustainable and scalable transportation solutions. The American freight rail network is essential to our supply chain, and we recognize the importance of continued investment and innovation to meet the evolving needs of shippers like us.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and has potential to yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We are optimistic that the merger will lead to more competitive rail products—not only through improved service and efficiency, but also through innovation and responsiveness to customer needs. As the rail industry evolves, we believe this combination can help raise the bar for performance and value.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-term customer of Union Pacific (1971), Truck-Rail Handling, Inc. is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of Customers and their consignee's to ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Truck-Rail Handling, Inc., we transload from rail car to bulk tankers a varied number of products (from petroleum, agriculture products, chemicals, minerals, etc. for manufacturing facilities in markets in the Western States as well as out of the Ports of Seattle, Tacoma and Oakland to the world. American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Truck-Rail Handling, Inc. has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance efficiencies and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific transloading companies like ours, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced/Consistent Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, will remove several days from transit times, enabling our customers to have more reliable service and control inventories better and have an overall more efficient logistics movement.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.
- Efficiencies/Lower Pricing: The efficiencies in this merger will allow the Union Pacific to provide more efficient service for less cost than the current rail shippers are seeing now. This will open up the possibility of new customers shipping rail across the country with only one railroad involved.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

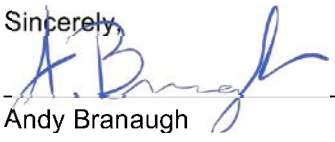
Twin Eagle Terminals & Logistics (TETL) writes to express strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. As a provider of terminal and rail logistics services with prime locations along major rail corridors, our operations depend critically on a reliable, efficient, and integrated rail network.

At TETL, we provide transloading, bulk storage, switching, inventory management, and facility operations across our terminals in Texas, Wyoming, Colorado, and West Virginia. We handle diverse commodities including refined fuels, ethanol, aggregates, asphalt, crude oil, and construction materials—helping our customers move products safely, reliably, and cost effectively.



We believe the merger will benefit shippers and terminal operators like us through:

- Greater network efficiency by reducing delays and improving connectivity.
- Improved service reliability and capacity supported by infrastructure investments.
- Cost savings and sustainability through more efficient rail movements.
- Expanded market access with a broader, more consistent network.

We recognize the importance of thorough regulatory review, but believe this merger will strengthen U.S. supply chains and enhance service for businesses like ours. We respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full consideration to these benefits.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, I am writing of behalf of UFP Industries to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

UFP Industries is a $6 billion publicly traded American manufacturer serving the building, construction, and packaging sectors. With hundreds of locations and tens of thousands of customers nationwide, we rely heavily on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to distribute our products.

We believe this merger will help advance these priorities by integrating complementary rail networks and spurring new investment in the freight rail industry, enhance competition and deliver tangible benefits for customers like us, including improved service reliability through more direct routes, fewer disruptions, and greater flexibility. It will also reduce transit times, enabling us to deliver goods more efficiently and expand our reach to new and existing customers.

The products we make help power America's infrastructure and support a stronger supply chain:

- UFP Retail – Home to top brands used by many American customers like ProWood, North America's largest treated lumber supplier, and Deckorators, a premium composite decking line.
- UFP Packaging – Provides custom crating and packaging solutions for everything from hazelnuts to batteries to vehicles. We lead the industry with 31 million new pallets produced annually.

- UFP Construction – Supports residential and commercial projects, the RV and cargo trailer industries, and contributes to iconic skylines and communities across the country.

The domestic freight rail network is critical to our ability to move large volumes of product efficiently and sustainably, and to source the raw materials used in our products. We recognize the importance of regulatory review and respectfully urge the Board to consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, U.S. Minerals is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to ensure the safe, timely delivery of our raw materials and products across the country. At U.S. Minerals, we transport abrasive products and roofing granules to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that U.S. Minerals has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Salt Source LLC dba U.S. Salt is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

U.S. Salt depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our many different customers located throughout the U.S. At U.S. Salt, we transport high purity solar salt, deicing salt and feed grade salt to various industrial and commercial markets. The Class One American freight rail network serves as the single most critical component to our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our customer base who rely on these commodities. There is no doubt that rail networks require new investments and a real commitment for growth and innovation so that U.S. Salt can continue to grow and prosper.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Rail Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.

Deware Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, US1 Logistics is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company, like many others, depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our growing customer base. US1 Logistics moves a variety of products from agricultural, manufactured, and military to name a few. We are also very excited to be at the forefront of the recently legalized industrial hemp industry. This agricultural product will be used worldwide for building materials, food products, and fiber which will play a big role in returning clothing manufacturing to the US. I personally have discussed opportunities in this field with representatives of Union Pacific and I am excited to say that this merger has the potential to bring millions of dollars in revenue to the merged rail system. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our national economy and we also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that companies like US1 Logistics have a bright future.

We believe the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific and customers like us, including:

Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.

Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail card are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster and safer.

Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

USD Group LLC, and I personally, share a longstanding relationship with all of the Class 1 Railroads, including both Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. We have been fortunate to work alongside all of our rail colleagues, developing new and unique supply chain solutions for our joint customers. A strong and efficient rail network is critical to our Country, economy and our citizens.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of joint customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At USD Group, we develop supply chain solutions across a wide range of commodities, modes of transport and transportation lanes to markets both nationally and internationally. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our business and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation.

We believe that there are many ways in which rail service can be enhanced, including actions like the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. It is critical that focus within the rail industry be squarely on growth and gains in market share through the following metrics:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating inefficient interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster
- Increased Investment: Investment is critical towards improvements aimed at debottlenecking, velocity and capacity improvements to include technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety
- Expanded Reach: More access to a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones. As a Texas-based company, we see the value in connecting the Gulf to each coast through one railroad, unlocking new markets and potential. While

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I'm writing today to express my support as a cold storage real estate developer that uses rail for the pending merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our 487,000 square foot facility, served by rail is located in Council Bluffs IA, adjacent to a Union Pacific rail yard and we'll start shipping pork on rail for a customer, Tyson Foods starting in November, 2025. We've been preparing for this for quite a while.

We're excited about shipping what is produced in the heart of America (the breadbasket of the world) to the ports and this merger will create the first transcontinental freight railroad, connecting ~100 ports across 43 states! It is much easier and faster for one railroad to handle the entire distance.

Please feel free to reach out if any questions.

Subject: Support for the merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern

Dear President Fuchs,

As a Union Pacific customer, we are pleased to support the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Railroads.

Our company Vengo Logistics LLC established in the United States since 2014, we offer 3PL services., some of our clients and potential clients have asked us for better proposals in cargo transport, for the handling of large volume shipments over long distances.

We believe that the alliance between the UP and NS railways will bring better benefits in the following aspects: coast to coast national coverage, since the fewer railways involved in a service route, the more efficient the railway operation, We also consider that both companies will be able to focus their human and financial resources in a more efficient way, which can translate into improved time and optimization of resources, with better transit times which will finally be impacted on the improvement of the economy of the United States and the final buyers of the transported products, thus improving the end consumer in the United States

For the above reasons, we hope that they will consider approving the merger between UP and NS

Subject: Comments on the Proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a long-time customer shipping hazardous waste from across North America—and a current customer of all six Class I freight railroads—Veolia recognizes the essential role that the rail system plays in supporting our economy and business operations. Reliable rail service connects our facilities to broader markets, providing not only more efficient transportation but also more environmentally responsible options for moving these materials.

Veolia's operations would clearly benefit from faster, more reliable rail service and a more efficient, resilient supply chain. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has strong potential to deliver these improvements by enabling single-line coast-to-coast service. This would create more direct routes, reduce transportation costs, and expand each railroad's geographic reach—benefits that would also extend to Veolia and our customers. With thoughtful implementation, this merger could enhance service dependability, support local economies, and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth. These outcomes should, of course, be realized in a manner consistent with the highest standards of safety, sustainability, and long-term public benefit—areas in which we trust the Surface Transportation Board will remain diligent.

In our industry, rail freight offers a substantial sustainability advantage—one railcar can replace between four and ten trucks on the highway. This shift significantly reduces highway congestion and carbon emissions, making rail a critical component of sustainable logistics. Decarbonization is a core initiative at Veolia, and expanding our rail utilization is one of the ways we are making measurable progress. The proposed merger would provide another opportunity to broaden that impact.

We respectfully encourage the Board to consider these perspectives in its review of the proposed merger.

Sincerely,

Mike Bartholomew

Viserion Grain, LLC depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to deliver agricultural commodities to our customers in both domestic and international markets. We welcome initiatives undertaken by all our rail partners to address service issues and believe the proposed merger of the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Railroads would be positive for our business.

We have a vested interest in the health of the rail transportation sector and believe that the proposed merger can enhance competition and yield real benefits for our business, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The promise of more direct routes and greater flexibility will minimize the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: We believe the combination will remove several days from transit times via the elimination of interchanges where rail cars are handed off between lines. This will enable us to deliver goods to our customers faster and more efficiently.
- Increased Investment: We expect the synergies realized from the proposed merger, would better position the Union Pacific to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process and ask that the relevant authorities carefully consider all aspects of the proposed merger, including the anticipated positive impact this merger can have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-standing customer of Union Pacific, VSS Emultech is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our business relies on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to deliver asphalt and asphalt emulsion products across California, Nevada, and Arizona. The American freight rail network is essential to our operations and to the broader economy, enabling the safe and sustainable movement of goods nationwide. We recognize that continued investment and innovation in rail infrastructure are critical to meeting future transportation demands.

We believe this merger represents a unique opportunity to strengthen the U.S. rail system and deliver meaningful benefits to shippers, communities, and the economy, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: A unified network will provide more direct routes and greater operational flexibility, reducing the risk of service disruptions.
- Faster Transit Times: Eliminating interchanges will shorten transit times by several days, helping us reduce heating costs for liquid asphalt and improve supply chain efficiency.
- Greater Investment and Innovation: A combined transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and safety enhancements, ensuring long-term competitiveness and sustainability.
- Expanded Market Reach: Broader geographic coverage will allow us to serve customers more effectively and support economic growth in multiple regions.

We understand the importance of a thorough regulatory review and encourage the Board to consider the significant positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours, the freight rail industry, and the national economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As the leading producer of construction aggregates in North America, and a long-time customer of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern, Vulcan Materials Company recognizes the vital role freight rail plays in building the nation's infrastructure. We rely on safe, efficient, and reliable rail network to transport essential materials-stone, sand, and gravel- that form the foundation of our roads, bridges, and buildings. To meet the growing demands of our country, it is critical that this network continue to evolve with innovation and investment.

We believe this merger has the potential to deliver meaningful benefits for shippers, businesses, and the broader economy, including:

- Improved service reliability/reducing transit times. By creating a more direct route, the combined network will reduce the risk of service disruptions and eliminate days of transit time. A larger network requires a strong commitment to both maintaining and improving existing service, as well as investing in new routes. The new company will be well-positioned to execute on this.
- Increasing investment. A stronger, transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in the infrastructure, technology, and assets needed to improve service, increase capacity, and focus on safety, ultimately reducing costs for shippers and positively affecting the economy.
- Expanding our reach. As one of our foundational pillars, we are committed to expanding our footprint to better serve existing customers and reach new ones. While moving aggregates by rail presents a significant freight-cost challenge, we believe that the synergies created through this merger will deliver meaningful efficiencies and cost savings for our downstream customers who are helping build America.

We encourage the relevant authorities to consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses and the broader economy. We look forward to the enhanced service and continued partnership it will bring.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of the American freight rail network, W Silver Recycling Inc is writing to express our strong support for strategic initiatives, such as the proposed combination of major rail carriers, that promise to enhance the overall efficiency and competitiveness of the rail system.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our consumers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At W Silver Recycling Inc, we transport substantial volumes of scrap metal to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these vital rail networks need new investments and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that W Silver Recycling Inc can continue to thrive.

We believe that strategically sound consolidations within the rail industry can yield significant benefits for shippers and partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: A more integrated network can lead to more cohesive operations and greater flexibility in managing logistics, thereby minimizing the risk of service disruptions that impact our critical delivery schedules.
- Reduced Transit Times: By optimizing network flows and eliminating redundancies inherent in multi-carrier routes, such combinations can reduce overall transit times, enabling us to deliver goods to more consumers faster and improve our inventory management.
- Increased Investment: Larger, stronger rail entities are often better positioned to make substantial investments in crucial infrastructure, advanced technology, and modern equipment. This enhances service quality, capacity, and safety across the entire network.
- Expanded Reach and Simplification: A broader, more integrated geographic footprint can simplify shipping logistics and allow businesses like ours to better serve existing customers and strategically reach new ones, supporting economic growth for both our company and the regions we serve.

We understand that a thorough regulatory review is an important and necessary part of this process. We respectfully encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the profound positive impact that such strategic enhancements to the rail system can have on businesses like ours, which rely on efficient rail for their very operations, and on the broader national economy.

"Recycling for the future now"

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, WE Soda Wyoming LP recognizes the importance of efficient, reliable and cost-effective rail service to meet our customers' needs and ensure the safe and timely delivery of our products. WE Soda transports soda ash and other sodium-based products to markets throughout the world, and the American freight rail network is a critical part of our supply chain. Reliable rail service allows us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably, which supports both our customers and the broader U.S. economy.

We understand that rail networks must continue to receive new investments and commitments for growth and innovation so that shippers like us can continue to grow our operations and effectively serve our customers.

From our perspective as a shipper, the proposed combination of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern could create opportunities for meaningful improvements in service. These may include:

- Improved Service Reliability: A more integrated network has the potential to provide greater flexibility by reducing interchanges, giving the railroad more options to reroute around disruptions, and improving equipment and crew utilization—all of which support more consistent and reliable service for shippers; and

- Reduced Transit Times: By reducing interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination could shorten transit times and allow us to deliver products to customers more quickly.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger could have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Wheeler Brothers Grain Co. has been a customer of the Union Pacific for many years. I'm not quite old enough to remember exactly when we started our relationship as our company was founded in 1917 and remains family owned. However, I know that 40 years ago, our company purchased a shortline railroad that interchanges with the Union Pacific for further transport of our grain to export facilities and to domestic mills.

In the past 20 years, the percentage of world wheat trade from the United States has declined significantly. This makes trade with domestic end users much more important for our company. The UP / NS merger would allow us to trade more easily and more economically into the eastern domestic markets.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific rail shippers.

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Wheelhouse Logistics is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At Wheelhouse Logistics, we transport manufactured goods to markets nationwide. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Wheelhouse Logistics has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific partners like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more customers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, Wildcat Midstream is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of refinery customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. Wildcat Midstream transports natural petroleum wax, and time is of the essence during transportation. The wax is loaded in railcars as a liquid and if transport times are too long, the wax will solidify. This requires the application of a substantial amount of energy, in the form of steam, to reheat the wax. This results in increased CO2 emissions and increased labor costs and other inefficiencies. Nationwide reduction in transport times as foreseen by the merger will expand the domestic markets available to Wildcat Midstream. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that Wildcat Midstream has a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific customers like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling us to deliver more goods to more refinery customers, and our producer customers in the Uinta Basin in Northeast Utah, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

- Expanded Reach: Our ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow us to better serve our customers and reach new ones.
- Improved Environmental Impact: These efficiencies will result in less energy consumption, less CO2 and other emissions.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a long-time customer of Union Pacific, Wilkinson Gary Iron & Metal, Inc. is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our company depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. At WGIM, we transport recyclable materials such as scrap steel to markets across the United States and ultimately the world. The American freight rail network is a critical component of our supply chain, allowing us to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our employees, our products, and our national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that WGIM has a bright future.

Subject: Support for the Proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Willbanks Metals, Inc. writes in support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. We are a consignee—not a shipper—and have been a Union Pacific customer for roughly a year and a half. In that time, we have been well-pleased with UP's service quality and responsiveness. Our facility is dual-served, and while we value the competition that dual service brings, we consistently receive better service from Union Pacific at our location. We also understand that, as part of this combination, UP will pick up several of our shippers, which we expect will streamline inbound flows to our site.

Our business depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet customer commitments and keep supply chains moving safely. We handle steel coils from our domestic producers, and dependable rail transportation is essential to maintaining inventory balance, production cadence, and downstream customer service.

From our perspective as a consignee, this merger offers clear, practical benefits:

- Improved reliability at the dock: A more integrated network and coordinated operations should reduce variability, bunching, and missed switches, helping us plan labor and staging more effectively.
- Faster cycle times: Fewer interchanges and better end-to-end coordination can cut days from transit, lowering our inventory carrying costs and improving order responsiveness.
- Expanded commercial reach: With more of our shippers on the combined network, we anticipate simpler routings and fewer handoffs, reducing exceptions and claims risk.
- Stronger investment platform: A larger, financially resilient carrier should be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment that enhance capacity, safety, and service.

We recognize the importance of the Board's review and the need to preserve competition where it matters. From our vantage point, the transaction—as proposed—supports service reliability while maintaining competitive discipline at our location, and it offers tangible benefits to consignees like us.

Thank you for considering our experience and perspective. We look forward to continued partnership and the enhanced service we expect this merger to deliver.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a former U.S. Army general officer and a national security expert, I am writing to share my recently published opinion piece, "Strengthening America's Defense Starts with Stronger Rail," which appeared in Stars and Stripes. I am submitting this op-ed for the Surface Transportation Board's consideration during its review of the merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS).

This merger will significantly enhance the preparedness and strength of the U.S. military. Through the creation of our country's first true transcontinental railroad, the unification of UP and NS stands to reduce bottlenecks and increase the speed and reliability of the enormous logistical demands of military readiness. A more expanded rail network would increase the Department of Defense's ability to transport essential military equipment, vehicles, and materials from base to base with greater security and speed.

This merger's impact extends beyond defense, as well. A unified coast-to-coast rail system would bolster our domestic supply chain, reduce dependence on importing foreign goods, and support key pillars of America's national security, including manufacturing and energy. By supporting investments in a more connected rail network, we can strengthen our country's economy and reinforce a better logistical transport system that will support our military's ability to quickly respond in a crisis.

I believe the op-ed provides an important perspective in the debate surrounding the merger of UP and NS and highlights its vital role in facilitating both our national security posture and overall economy.

Please find a copy of the published piece attached. Thank you for your time and continued leadership in analyzing how this merger can benefit the American public and strengthen our country's ability to defend itself.

Sincerely,

STARS AND STRIPES

Strengthening America's defense starts with stronger rail

By JAMES "SPIDER" MARKS
SPECIAL TO STARS AND STRIPES • August 14, 2025

The foundation of any great military power extends beyond weaponry and manpower. Good old-fashioned logistics — how we move things — is just as essential to a prepared, competitive and modern military.

From Eisenhower's Red Ball Express in World War II to today's defense supply chains, the ability to move materials swiftly and reliably across vast stretches is integral to our national security. That is why the merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern, which will create America's first transcontinental railroad, would be a gamechanger, reshaping our domestic supply chain and revitalizing our national defense capabilities.

For the first time in U.S. history, a single freight railroad with a unified organizational structured enhancing situational awareness and speed of decision making, will connect the Pacific and Atlantic coasts with uninterrupted service, linking dozens of key military facilities, defense manufacturers and ports along the way. That means faster, more reliable logistics — and a more agile, responsive military force. This merger would directly and positively impact our military force readiness.

Further, the merger is an opportunity to reknit the physical infrastructure that holds together our defense industrial base, our strategic supply chains, and our ability to surge when crisis strikes.

Currently, America's rail network is fragmented. The country has six major Class I freight railroads, operating in geographically segmented regions. That means railcars traveling from one coast to the other must switch carriers at mid-route interchanges, where the end of one company's network meets the beginning of another. Interchanges can delay scheduled shipments by days and tie a knot in precise, sequential and on-time logistical requirements. In peace, that's a costly inefficiency. In war, that's fatal.

For the Department of Defense, which relies heavily on rail for the transport of vehicles, fuel, ammunition and other equipment, inefficiencies in the system can put lives at risk. In any large-scale mobilization, military equipment must travel long distances from inland installations to coastal ports for deployment abroad. That movement cannot happen at the necessary speed or scale if the nation's rail network is a patchwork of handoffs and bottlenecks.

Other countries have recognized the economic and security benefits of a unified rail network spanning the length of a nation and connecting its critical ports and hubs. Albeit not a model of efficiency, Russia's state-owned Trans-Siberian Railway was completed over a 100 years ago (1916) and stretches from Moscow to Vladivostok in Russia's far east, making it the world's longest single track. The Canadian Pacific Railway similarly spans Canada and dips down into parts of the U.S. Mexico is also investing heavily in national rail projects to connect key ports and assets, as are Brazil, Peru and others. The U.S. is an economic powerhouse. It is time for the U.S. to reclaim its leadership position in this critical industry.

In an era of escalating competition among global powers, particularly China, the resilience of our domestic supply chains is a matter of national defense. The pandemic and recent shipping crises exposed how vulnerable America is to dependence on overseas supply chains and relies too heavily on just-in-time imports. A unified coast-to-coast rail network strengthens our ability to produce and transport strategic goods at home — from steel and semiconductors to critical minerals and energy.

The merger would also establish a rail network with the scale to effectively compete with trucking, which dominates domestic freight but relies on publicly funded highways that are aging and increasingly congested. Unlike trucking, rail is less vulnerable to labor shortages as well as conditions such as weather and road conditions. In a national emergency, rail can be prioritized, secured more easily, and provide essential goods and services to lean into a crisis and better create the conditions for a more effective transition from crisis to a new normal.

With news of the merger out, Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will now turn their attention to building their merger application for the Surface Transportation Board, the federal agency responsible for reviewing rail mergers. The companies will need to prove that their merger serves the public interest.

To date, the companies have pledged to preserve unionized jobs, improve efficiency for shippers, and invest in new infrastructure. But their case rests on something even bigger: America's ability to defend itself — both abroad and at home. It is intuitively obvious to the casual observer that this merger ensures and accelerates that objective.

James "Spider" Marks, a retired U.S. Army major general, was the senior intelligence officer for the 2003 liberation of Iraq and the former commanding general of the U.S. Army Intelligence Center. He currently serves as the director of geo-political intelligence for Academy Securities, a New York-based veteran-owned bank.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Chief Executive Officer of Advance Southwest Iowa Corporation, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy—safely moving the goods that power our industries, sustain our farmers, and connect our communities to markets across the nation and around the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for Iowa, providing efficient, reliable, and cost-effective service that enables both large and small businesses to thrive.

The American freight rail network is not only critical to economic growth but also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available—reducing highway congestion, fuel consumption, and emissions while keeping our economy moving efficiently.

The proposed merger represents a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver measurable benefits for shippers, consumers, and communities alike, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will enhance schedule dependability and reduce the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchange points will accelerate the movement of goods, helping businesses reach customers faster and compete more effectively.
- Increased Investment: A stronger, transcontinental rail system will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology, and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Market Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for Iowa's products and strengthen supply chain resilience across the country.

This merger is about far more than railroads—it is about securing the future of America's transportation network, supporting long-term economic development, and ensuring that U.S. freight rail remains a global leader in efficiency, sustainability, and innovation.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the transformative benefits it offers to our state, our region, and the national economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As CEO of the AG3 Group, LLC, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. San Antonio, Texas currently has a population of 1.5 million and is expected to add 1 million more by 2040. UPRR connects San Antonio to markets across the US and Canada, and positioned as a gateway to Mexico, San Antonio relies on UPRR for cross-border trade via Eagle Pass and Laredo. This is why it is important to have a healthy rail network in San Antonio and across the country.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.
I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President of the Aksarben Foundation, I have the privilege of working alongside business and community leaders across Nebraska who depend on strong infrastructure to support growth. Reliable rail service is especially vital to our state's economy. From agriculture to manufacturing, from rural communities to urban centers, rail connects our producers and businesses to national and global markets.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger represents an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits to the communities we serve. By creating faster, more dependable service, reducing congestion, and expanding market reach, this merger will ensure that Nebraska businesses remain competitive in a changing economy. Importantly, the continued investment in rail infrastructure also means safer operations, quality jobs, and stronger opportunities for the next generation.

On behalf of the Aksarben Foundation, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. Doing so will secure the efficiencies, investments, and opportunities needed to help our communities thrive, not only across Nebraska, but throughout the country.

Sincerely,

Subject: Comments on Proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a State Representative for Alabama House District 18, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses, and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community that relies on freight shipments would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. And our whole community would benefit from a more efficient rail network that could decrease the number of long-haul trucks on our publicly funded highways. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. And reducing highway congestion decreases the need for highway maintenance spending and improves quality of life for our residents. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Chairman Fuchs and Members Schultz and Hedlund:
As the State Representative for Alabama House District 49, a region heavily reliant on efficient national rail connectivity, I write to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Reliable freight rail service is not just a commercial matter in my district; it is an essential artery for our local economy, businesses, and the employment of hard working Alabamians.

This proposed merger represents a transformative opportunity. The creation of a unified, single-line coast-to-coast network is expected to deliver faster, more reliable service by eliminating the need for interchanges, particularly at key congestion points like Chicago. This reduction in congestion will directly benefit the producers and manufacturers in Alabama by reducing transit times and inventory costs, thereby enhancing their competitiveness on a national and global scale.

Furthermore, the commitment to continued investment in rail infrastructure—promised by a more efficient, financially stronger combined entity—will enhance both network capacity and safety within our state. This investment supports high-quality jobs and helps ensure our community remains a vital hub in a growing American economy.

On behalf of my constituents, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. This is a strategic opportunity to streamline our nation's supply chain and unlock significant efficiencies, investments, and economic growth.

Mr. Fuchs:

As the State Senator serving Jackson, DeKalb, and Madison Counties in Northeast Alabama, a region deeply tied to the movement of freight and manufacturing, I recognize the important role that freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses, and residents. Reliable and efficient rail service is critical for connecting our industries to broader markets and ensuring that our agricultural and manufactured goods reach customers across the nation.

Throughout North Alabama, rail lines serve as a lifeline for key industries such as automotive manufacturing, timber, and energy production. Our region's location near the Tennessee River and the growing industrial corridor from Huntsville to Chattanooga makes rail infrastructure particularly vital. Continued investment in modern, reliable rail service is essential to sustaining this growth and keeping our economy competitive.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the potential to further strengthen this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach, and encouraging much-needed investment in rail infrastructure and technology. Businesses in our region that depend on timely freight shipments could benefit from greater service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency, and improved access to national and international markets.

With thoughtful planning and oversight, this merger could enhance service dependability, support local businesses, and create new opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth across our region.I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal — balancing the opportunities it presents for communities like ours with the need to ensure fair, safe, and sustainable rail service both regionally and nationally.

Subject: Proposed Merger Between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Will Benefit Communities

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Many communities across Iowa rely heavily on the manufacturing jobs that sustain our local economies. Just as importantly, manufacturers and other industries rely on our communities — and the hardworking Iowans who power them. Both depend on efficient, reliable transportation to stay connected to the rest of the country. That's why I was encouraged to learn about the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

As Executive Director of the Albia Industrial Development Corporation, I've had the opportunity to work with numerous communities throughout Southeast Iowa, as well as with a broad range of industrial partners. Rail service plays a critical role in supporting not only our local industries, but throughout our region as well. It ensures the reliable movement of goods, which in turn helps employers grow, create jobs, and strengthen the communities they operate in.

Improved rail efficiency means improved business operations. The proposed merger has the potential to significantly enhance rail service, offering real benefits not just for Iowa, but for communities nationwide. With better access to new markets and a stronger transportation network, industries can expand with greater confidence. Additionally, robust rail infrastructure is often a key factor when companies choose where to locate — making it a vital asset for communities seeking to attract new investment.

On behalf of the Albia Industrial Development Corporation, I encourage the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. It presents a meaningful opportunity to positively impact smaller communities across the country, and I believe it's a step worth taking.

Re: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the Almond Alliance, I write to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific Railroad (UP) and Norfolk Southern Railway (NS) to create America's first transcontinental railroad. This combination represents a historic opportunity to strengthen the nation's freight rail system, improve supply chain reliability, and enhance market access for agricultural producers across the country—particularly those in California's Central Valley.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of California's agricultural economy. Union Pacific has long been a critical transportation partner for almond growers, processors, and exporters—safely and efficiently moving our products to domestic and international markets. California almonds are a globally traded commodity, and dependable rail service is essential to maintaining our industry's competitiveness in a challenging export environment marked by rising costs, port congestion, and evolving global logistics.

The proposed merger promises several key benefits for shippers, consumers, and rural communities, including:

- Improved service reliability through more direct routes and greater operational flexibility that can prevent disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced transit times by eliminating certain interchanges, helping California agricultural products reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased investment in modern infrastructure, advanced technology, and enhanced safety systems to support long-term service improvements.
- Expanded market reach across 43 states and over 50,000 route miles, opening new domestic and export opportunities for California's almond industry and strengthening supply chain resilience.

The Almond Alliance believes this merger has the potential to deliver tangible economic benefits for producers, processors, and communities throughout the Western United States. We encourage the Surface Transportation Board to give the proposal full and fair consideration and to recognize the importance of efficient, reliable, and sustainable rail service to the continued vitality of American agriculture.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment. Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions or wish to discuss our support further.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Union Pacific (UP) – the company President Abraham Lincoln founded through the Pacific Railway Act – has the opportunity to extend his vision of uniting the nation by rail by merging with Norfolk Southern (NS) to create the only coast-to-coast rail network under a single carrier. In my recent op-ed in RealClear Markets, I discuss the benefits of this partnership that would connect more than 50,000 route miles across 43 states and link nearly 100 ports, improving efficiency and strengthening our energy supply chains.

UP primarily serves the western United States, while NS operates in the east. Merging the two would enable petroleum products and manufactured goods to move seamlessly from the Gulf Coast to eastern markets and ports on a single rail line, eliminating costly and time-consuming handoffs. For U.S. manufacturers, including petrochemical producers, the impacts will be profound.

For example, Texas and Louisiana produce 80 percent of the nation's petrochemical supply, with Texas's yearly shipments valued at $120 billion alone. Many of these products currently depart or travel through the heavily congested port of Houston, slowing delivery times and increasing costs for manufacturers and consumers. Redirecting some of this traffic to eastern ports through a unified rail network would ease congestion, expand capacity, and strengthen export channels - resulting in improved reliability and lower prices for local businesses and their customers.

A combined network would also reduce inefficiencies in long-distance freight shipping. Rail cars often switch carriers mid-route, causing delays and adding unnecessary costs. Streamlining operations through a single carrier would improve transit times, lower expenses, and ensure faster, more reliable delivery of essential fuels and goods.

Concerns that a merger might reduce competition are unfounded. The recently merged Canadian Pacific–Kansas City Southern line is currently the only transcontinental carrier. A UP–NS merger would create a second, fostering healthy competition along East-West routes and expanding choices for shippers.

I believe this op-ed contributes meaningfully to the broader discussion surrounding the merger and provides a thoughtful analysis of why it should be approved. Please find a copy of the published piece attached.

Union Pacific/Norfolk Southern Will Be An Energy, Prosperity Boost

By Kristen Walker
October 07, 2025

Abraham Lincoln's vision of uniting the country by rail came to fruition a handful of years after his death. Now, Union Pacific (UP)—the company Lincoln created upon signing the Pacific Railway Act—once again has the chance to continue this legacy by incorporating Norfolk Southern's (NS) rail system into its network to become the only coast to coast carrier. A network that originally bound the nation together by revolutionizing mobility, trade, commerce, and economic development could further strengthen energy supply chains by improving efficiency.

The acquisition would connect more than 50,000 route miles across 43 states and link approximately 100 ports. The energy sector will greatly benefit.

UP operates predominantly to the west of the Mississippi River, NS to the east. Merging the two would allow petroleum products and manufactured goods to move from production centers along the Gulf Coast directly to eastern markets and ports on a single rail line, eliminating costly and time-consuming handoffs.

Texas is the top chemical producing state in the U.S., with shipments valued at close to $120 billion. Together with Louisiana, the two states produce 80 percent of the nation's primary petrochemical supply.

The Gulf Coast region is also one of the world's leading exporters of oil, natural gas, and other petrochemical products (plastics, fertilizers, detergents, lubricants, paint, pharmaceuticals, and many other everyday items) that depart from the heavily congested port of Houston. Shifting some of the workload eastward to other ports via one rail service would relieve some of the burden while simultaneously boosting capacity.

Shipping freight throughout the continental U.S. demands solid logistics. Rail cars traveling great distances often pass through more than one rail carrier and must undergo interchanges, which are complex processes that involve proficient maneuvering and extra resources. Not always seamless, shipments may experience delays due to congestion or bottlenecking; sometimes they are misplaced. Reducing the number of rail carriers and opening new routes will streamline operations, allow for quicker transit times, and lower transportation expenses. Essential fuels and products consumers rely on will be delivered more quickly at cheaper rates.

More efficient and cost-effective delivery methods will entice companies to utilize the rail system more often than the trucking industry, currently the predominant mode of freight transportation. The reduction in trucking means less rigs on the highways which decreases traffic, the deterioration of roads, and air pollution.

Government forecasters expect truck traffic to grow almost three to four times as fast as car traffic over the next three decades. Already tight in most metropolitan areas, the additional vehicles will continue clogging highways and neighborhoods. Making rail a more attractive hauling option could alleviate some of this stress.

Switching more freight from truck to rail will also decrease environmental harm. A truck axle carrying 18,000 pounds may be only 9 times heavier than a 2,000-pound automobile axle but does 5,000 times more road damage. More than three percent of all carbon dioxide emissions come from long-haul trucks; per ton-mile, emissions from trucking are eight times those from rail.

Despite concerns that the merger will negatively impact competition and cause price hikes, uniting the two rail carriers would enhance it, especially along East-West routes, by creating a second transcontinental operation with extensive scale and reach. The recently merged Canadian Pacific—Kansas City Southern railway is the only route serving East to West; providing an alternative carrier forces both to compete for customers.

The petrochemical industry stands to flourish with additional trade, not only here but abroad. As global demand rises for petroleum-based derivatives, improved rail connectivity would help the U.S. maintain its edge over international competitors.

The ultimate winners are the consumers who rely on quick and affordable delivery of thousands of goods to effectively run businesses and/or households. Improving the shipping process while reducing costs will boost the former and enhance the latter.

As "The Great Uniter" Abraham Lincoln can take great pride in bringing the two coasts together by rail. He would marvel at strengthening the railroad he signed into law and its potential to further unleash global connectivity and prosperity.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President & CEO of the Ames Regional Economic Alliance, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to large and small businesses. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,

Dan Culhane, President & CEO, Ames Regional Economic Alliance

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the President and Chief Executive Officer of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, representing the largest city in Orange County and one of the most economically diverse communities in Southern California, I am writing to express strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Anaheim is home to a broad spectrum of industries—manufacturing, food and beverage production, logistics, theme park suppliers, construction materials, aerospace-adjacent firms, and a robust small-business ecosystem. Many of these sectors depend directly on freight rail service to access regional, national, and global markets. In our industrial districts, numerous warehouses and production facilities rely on rail-served loading docks and rail spurs to efficiently receive raw materials and ship outbound goods. Reliable rail access is not only vital to these businesses; it is central to sustaining thousands of jobs and supporting the economic backbone of our city.

Freight rail remains one of the most critical pieces of the economic infrastructure in California. It enables workers, farmers, manufacturers, and distributors to move goods efficiently, cost-effectively, and sustainably. Union Pacific has long been an essential partner for Anaheim's business community, providing dependable service that reduces highway congestion and lowers emissions through cleaner and more efficient freight movement.

The proposed merger presents a unique opportunity to strengthen this vital transportation network. By improving network fluidity, expanding capacity, and enhancing intermodal connectivity, the merger has the potential to support Anaheim's industrial sector, improve supply chain reliability, and increase competitiveness for businesses that depend on rail transport. The benefits would extend well beyond our city—supporting economic development across Orange County, the State of California, and the broader national economy.

ANAHEIM CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

This merger is ultimately about more than rail operations. It is about securing the long-term health of America's freight system, supporting growth in diverse communities, and ensuring that major economic hubs like Anaheim retain efficient, competitive transportation options in an increasingly global marketplace.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to provide full and favorable consideration to the proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the Township Administrator of Antrim Township, I, as well as our Board of Supervisors, are keenly aware of the vital role that reliable rail service plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents and it is a necessity for the sake of public safety.

We have a relatively large, intermodal facility sitting in our Township, and we would love to see the facility utilized, especially if it can help with the traffic issues that we experience on a regular basis because of Interstate 81. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger offers an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits.

The merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion (especially along the Interstate 81 corridor) and expanded market reach for our businesses and residents. It also means continued investment in rail infrastructure – enhancing safety, creating jobs and ensuring our community remains competitive in a growing economy.

On behalf of Antrim Township, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities it will bring - connecting our communities regionally, nationally and across the globe.

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs

Washington, DC 20423

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a member of the Arcadia Lakes Town Council, I write in strong support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS). This merger represents an important investment in the future of American transportation – and one with far-reaching benefits for the state of South Carolina.

Elected officials across our state are closely following how this merger could advance both environmental and safety goals within our transportation infrastructure. By increasing rail capacity and connectivity, we can shift more freight from trucks to trains – an improvement that carries significant environmental and safety advantages. A single intermodal train can remove up to 550 trucks from our nation's congested highways, paving the way for a cleaner, more sustainable future.

The safety benefits are equally compelling. Heavy truck traffic poses a serious hazard on South Carolina's roads, where there have been 599 fatalities involving large trucks since the beginning of 2021. Transitioning more freight to rail can help reduce these numbers: truck-related deaths are 5.7 times higher than those involving rail, and trucking injuries occur at roughly 17 times the rate of rail transport. Simply put, fewer trucks on our roads mean safer highways and healthier communities.

The Midlands – including the Columbia metropolitan area – is a significant contributor to South Carolina's position as a national leader in automotive manufacturing, as well as in chemical, plastic, and rubber product manufacturing. Conveniently located between the Port of Charleston and Inland Port Greer, the Midlands is strategically positioned for continued economic expansion.

A more efficient, integrated rail network made possibly by the UP-NS merger will enhance this growth, enabling smoother and faster freight movement between key state ports. South Carolina already moves more than 60 million tons of goods by rail each year, and this merger will help strengthen the Midlands' role in that vital production network.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve the merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Beyond transforming the future of rail transportation in America, this partnership will help states like South Carolina expand their economies, strengthen domestic supply chains, and build a more sustainable, secure foundation for future growth.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

I am writing to strongly support the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. This partnership represents a significant step forward in enhancing rail connectivity and promoting economic growth, offering substantial benefits for communities and employers throughout Northeast Arkansas, the Mid-South region, and working-class communities nationwide.

Our region relies heavily on freight rail to support key industries, including agriculture and food processing, as well as manufacturing and steel production. Major employers, such as Frito-Lay, depend on reliable rail access to move goods efficiently and cost-effectively. Recent investments in rail-connected industrial parks and storage yards in Jonesboro highlight the strong link between our economic growth and rail performance capacity.

The merger will significantly enhance the foundation by better connecting east–west and north–south routes. This means less congestion and more reliable service. With these improvements, it will be easier for current employers to expand and for new businesses and investments to enter our region. Beyond the economic benefits, the combined system will also promote more energy-efficient freight movement, cutting the red tape and streamlining operations throughout our state.

The same optimism has been echoed across the country, and this merger will not only maintain our current economic trajectory but also accelerate it, ensuring continued growth for years to come.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As an elected official serving the Arkansas River Valley, I have witnessed firsthand the importance of rail connections to the success of our communities. The River Valley is a true rail hub, and a region built on hard work, manufacturing, and trade. Our ability to move goods efficiently determines how well our families and businesses can prosper.

During my time in the legislature, I have supported workforce development initiatives that equip Arkansans for success. These efforts show a simple truth: our people succeed when industry can expand. The proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern would strengthen that infrastructure, giving Arkansas employers more room to grow.

Union Pacific has already demonstrated its commitment to our state through investment and jobs, while Norfolk Southern brings complementary reach and service. Together, their merger would improve freight capacity and dependability in my community, directly supporting businesses of all sizes.

As Arkansas continues to position itself as a logistics hub, we must support measures that provide our people with opportunities to win and businesses with the competitive edge to grow. This merger isn't just about consolidation; it is designed to ensure that workers, business owners, and manufacturers can utilize a transportation system that serves their interests.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge approval of the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

I strongly support the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. This partnership represents not only a strategic advancement for our national freight network but also an opportunity to strengthen the economic foundation of Arkansas and the communities I represent with pride.

In Pine Bluff and throughout Jefferson County, the rail industry is more than just an economic driver—it is an integral part of our story. For generations, Union Pacific has provided stable, well-paying jobs, supported small businesses, and connected Arkansas products to markets nationwide. The company's long-standing presence in our region highlights the resilience and determination of our people. This merger presents an opportunity to build upon that legacy.

Looking ahead, this merger has the potential to revitalize the core industries that define our region. Pine Bluff's economy heavily depends on efficient rail services for timber, paper, logistics, and steel fabrication, which are essential for quick access to materials and markets. By enhancing Union Pacific's network through this merger, we could see faster turnaround times, increased investments in local facilities, and greater confidence from companies considering expansion and hiring in southeast Arkansas.

I respectfully ask the Board to consider the approval of this merger to help ensure that the people of my district, along with all Arkansans, continue to advance along the tracks of growth and progress.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

From large-scale agriculture in the southeast to high-tech commerce in the northwest, Arkansas relies on robust transportation systems to connect our economy to markets nationwide. During my time in public service, I have witnessed how infrastructure choices impact Arkansans' lives—from putting food on the table to scaling businesses beyond brick and mortar. Reliable rail services are fundamental to this work, and the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern merger presents a chance to enhance and reinforce them, connecting the system from coast to coast.

By combining resources, this deal will modernize rail operations, alleviate congestion, and reduce costs for shippers, unlocking nearly $3 billion in efficiencies. For Arkansas, this translates to improved access to both national and international markets for energy producers, manufacturers, and farmers–the bread and butter of the Arkansas economy–all while opening the door to new opportunities for private investment, offering more stability for job creators, and encouraging long-term growth in our communities.

This merger will enable Arkansans to reap benefits through reduced costs that can be poured right back into our businesses with the necessary tools for growth and expansion, which will contribute to the sustained strength of our economy. Having collaborated with Arkansas business leaders, policymakers, and community stakeholders throughout my career, I recognize the kinds of deals that make sense, and an enhanced rail network not only transcends mere transportation, but it is fundamentally linked to economic competitiveness.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge your support for this merger and the economic promise it holds for the people of Arkansas.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Living in South Arkansas, I truly understand how essential infrastructure is for our rural communities. It is not something to take for granted. In towns across my district, families and businesses rely on dependable transportation to bring agricultural products to market, attract new industries, and create good-paying jobs.

Education, civic engagement, and community development are my priorities, and our state depends on them. My work in the legislature has focused on supporting those who often do not have their voices heard. However, policies only succeed if the necessary infrastructure is in place to make things possible. Union Pacific knows that, and their merger with Norfolk Southern would benefit our community by expanding on the infrastructure that makes things possible in my backyard and across the country.

Union Pacific has long been a trusted partner in our state, investing in jobs and infrastructure. Norfolk Southern's reliable track record truly speaks for itself, making it a wonderful addition. When their merger happens, it would benefit supply chains, ease bottlenecks, and give rural Arkansas a better chance to shine on a bigger stage.

This merger is about more than efficiency—it is about creating opportunities for our communities to grow and thrive. With improved freight service, we can support existing employers and attract new ones, ensuring a stronger future for families in South Arkansas.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge approval of the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Chairman of the Arkansas House Transportation Committee, I have always focused on making sure that transportation benefits not just industry, but also the wonderful people and communities that rely on it every day. That's why I am glad to support the proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern merger, which I believe will bring real and positive benefits to Arkansas families, workers, and businesses.

Here in Jefferson County, we see firsthand how rail is more than just a means of moving freight—it is a lifeline for local jobs and community growth. In White Hall and Pine Bluff, the rail hub has created opportunities for small businesses, supported our farmers and foresters, and strengthened the manufacturing base that keeps our region competitive. These advancements have been achieved not by chance, but through strategic investments that have established Arkansas as a crucial connection within the United States' rail network.

The proposed merger builds on this progress by bringing greater efficiency, reliability, and connectivity to our state's rail network. For Arkansas shippers, this results in reduced costs and improved market access. For workers, it provides stability in industries that have historically supported our local economy. For communities throughout the state, it signifies ongoing growth that benefits families and promotes shared prosperity.

During my tenure as Transportation Chairman, I have observed that improving our transportation systems also enhances our communities. This merger embodies that principle, serving as an investment not only in infrastructure like tracks and trains but also in the livelihoods of Arkansans dependent on them.

For these reasons, I sincerely and firmly urge you to approve this merger, as I believe it will benefit both the people of Arkansas and the nation overall.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Rail has always been an integral part of Texarkana's identity, and it continues to play a crucial role in connecting our businesses and communities with the rest of the country. Having served Texarkana and southwest Arkansas for many years, I recognize that our region thrives when we have infrastructure that supports business owners.

The proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern aligns perfectly with these objectives. It would offer more reliable service, increased capacity, and new opportunities for employers in southwest Arkansas.

Texarkana is located at a vital crossroads, and I have worked in the legislature on measures to enhance interstate commerce and improve Arkansas's transportation networks. I understand that our community's economic growth depends on these improvements. Better rail access can significantly contribute to reaching these goals.

This merger will enable small businesses, farmers, and manufacturers to compete more effectively while also making our region more appealing to new industries searching for reliable logistics. It is not about consolidation for its own sake; it is about building the infrastructure that supports jobs, strengthens supply chains, and allows Arkansas families to thrive.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

I am writing to express my support for the proposed merger between the Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS) railroad companies. Union Pacific's ongoing investment strategies have demonstrably strengthened the economic vitality of this district and state, underscoring the critical role a reliable railway system plays for communities throughout Arkansas and the country.

Throughout my years in public service, I understand the importance of operating and maintaining resilient transportation systems—from trucking to freight rail—and how this keeps Arkansas competitive and our local businesses thriving. My work in education and workforce development has shown me the importance of connecting students to sustainable career pathways. UP has long been a partner in creating those opportunities, helping Arkansans gain the skills and environment they need to succeed.

Approving this merger will not only strengthen the existing railway network but also signal that Arkansas is prepared for the future—ready to adapt to today's supply chain realities, attract new industries, and invest in the next generation of workers. Thank you for your time and attention to this matter. I respectfully ask you to give the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger every consideration. If I can be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

I am writing to express my support for the proposed merger between the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern railroad companies. Rail infrastructure is vital to economic growth and serves as a backbone for regional development, employment, and sustained stability. This proposed merger will offer enhanced reliability in service, increased capacity, and more resilient supply chains.

South Arkansas is experiencing momentum in the timber, forestry, and manufacturing sectors. Weyerhaeuser has recently begun construction on a $500 million Timber Strand facility, which is expected to create around 200 jobs, boost annual production by 10 million cubic feet, and utilize our southern yellow pine and regional fiber resources. To match these investments, we need improved infrastructure, including rail capacity and efficient freight flows. A better-connected rail system would more reliably facilitate the movement of timber, agricultural goods, and manufactured parts, reducing delays, lowering costs, and expanding markets. For residents of Union, Ouachita, Dallas, and Grant counties, this means greater stability, more opportunities, and increased incentives for outside investment.

With this merger, Union Pacific will continue to position southern Arkansas as a logistics and manufacturing hub, making our region more competitive for new industries and jobs. Additionally, this merger can help restore and strengthen commitments to good jobs, vibrant communities, and a stronger economic foundation. Thank you for your time and attention to this matter. I respectfully ask you to give the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger every consideration. If I can be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Union Pacific has played a direct and positive role in the North Little Rock and Central Arkansas community by providing grants that have greatly benefited hundreds of youth athletes and their families. The company's commitment extends beyond its rail services, weaving itself deeply within the community's fabric.

Union Pacific is more than just a transportation provider; it is an enduring part of our local heritage. For generations, Union Pacific has offered employment, fueled economic growth, and provided opportunities for adventure to countless young Americans. I cherish the vivid memories of trips on the Texas Eagle with my grandparents to San Antonio and see the same wonder in my daughters eyes every Christmas we ride the "Polar Express". Events like the arrival of the 4014 Big Boy locomotive in North Little Rock, which drew large crowds even in adverse weather, highlight the community's enduring affection for trains and underscore their continued significance in American life.

As a stakeholder in Central Arkansas, I advocate strongly for the Surface Transportation Board to approve the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger. Reliable rail service is vital for the prosperity of our local economy, businesses, and residents. This merger presents an opportunity to strengthen regional connections and deliver lasting benefits.

The merger is expected to result in faster, more reliable rail service, reduced congestion, and increased market access for local businesses. It also promises ongoing investment in rail infrastructure, which will enhance safety, generate new jobs, and help ensure America's competitiveness in an evolving global economy.

On behalf of the Arkansas Travelers Youth Foundation and the broader community, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. By doing so, we can seize the advantages, investments, and opportunities it promises—further connecting our communities regionally, nationally, and internationally.

RE: Letter of Support for the Union Pacific – Norfolk Southern Agreement Merger

To Whom It May Concern,

On behalf of the Armourdale Renewal Association, I am writing to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Corporations. As a community-based organization whose mission is to enhance residents and businesses in the development of a strong and vibrant community, we believe this represents a transformative opportunity for our region. With Armourdale's strategic location in the heart of the country and its deep historical ties to the rail industry, we understand and support the opportunities for infrastructure upgrades, job creation, and expanded intermodal services that can help revitalize industrial corridors and attract new business to our area.

The Armourdale Renewal Association was a recipient of the Union Pacific Community Ties Giving Program in 2024, serving as a catalyst for what it is now known as the Armourdale Artwork Initiative, adding community vitality and revitalization efforts in Armourdale. We strongly support the merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern and look forward to continuing to partner with this new National Railroad transcontinental system to benefit the transportation industry with workforce development, safety, environmental sustainability and community partnerships.

Thank you,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Interim Chief Executive Officer of Arrowhead Center, Inc., I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers, and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth, it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers, and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology, and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development, and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Subject: Support for the Proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community leader in Idaho, I recognize that reliable rail service is essential to our state's economy, businesses, and residents. The Associated Taxpayers of Idaho has been a cornerstone of Idaho's tax policy since 1946, and Union Pacific has been an integral part of our economic and transportation landscape even before our founding—actively participating in shaping state tax policy as a valued member of our organization since 1946.

Freight rail is vital to Idaho's economy—safely and efficiently moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers, and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been a trusted transportation partner for Idaho businesses, providing reliable and cost-effective service that strengthens our competitiveness. Moreover, America's freight rail system remains one of the most sustainable modes of transportation, helping to reduce highway congestion, fuel consumption, and emissions.

The proposed merger represents a strategic opportunity to modernize and strengthen this network, delivering meaningful benefits for shippers, consumers, and communities nationwide, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will reduce disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Streamlined operations and the elimination of certain interchanges will accelerate the movement of goods and enhance supply chain efficiency.
- Increased Investment: A unified transcontinental network will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, technology, and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Market Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for Idaho's products and bolster national supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads—it's about securing the future of America's transportation network, supporting economic growth, and ensuring our freight rail system remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the substantial benefits it will bring to Idaho and to the national economy.

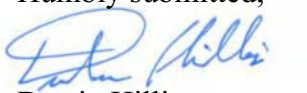
Subject: Comments on Proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,



As City Councilmember for Atlanta's District 9, home to Norfolk Southern's Inman Yard, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community that relies on freight shipments would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. And our whole community would benefit from a more efficient rail network that could decrease the number of long-haul trucks on our publicly funded highways. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. And reducing highway congestion decreases the need for highway maintenance spending and improves quality of life for our residents. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Re: Proposed Merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

The undersigned Attorneys General, on behalf of our respective States, write to express our support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. We hope the Board will give regulatory approval to the merger in a timely fashion.

America's freight rail system is the envy of the world. Our more than 140,000 miles of freight rail track power the nation's vibrant economy, safely moving raw materials, helping farmers access distant markets, and giving consumers easy and cost-effective access to goods from coast to coast. Freight rail is both economically efficient and environmentally sustainable. America's freight rail ships more six times as many ton-miles of freight each year as the 27 member-states of the European Union combined.[1] Indeed, America's railways move more than 5,000 ton-miles of freight per person per year, which is ten times the amount moved in Europe and twenty-five times the amount moved in Japan.[2] This massive volume drives more than $230 billion of economic output and supports more than 750,000 good-paying jobs.[3] And even though freight rail accounts for roughly 40% of the long-distance shipping in the United States, it accounts for less than 2% of the transportation-related emissions.[4] It only takes a single gallon of fuel to move one ton of freight nearly 500 miles; thus, on average, freight rail is between three to four times more fuel efficient than trucks.[5] That means freight rail, already "one of the most efficient ways we can move freight,"[6] can "play a significant role in reducing the transportation sector's emissions."[7] Factor in a bevy of technology-driven improvements that are even further reducing emissions and limiting other environmental impacts[8] and it becomes undeniable: There simply is no better combination of economic vitality and environmental sustainability than freight rail.

The merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will only further strengthen the efficiency, reliability, and effectiveness of our freight rail system. This merger will create the first unified[9] transcontinental railroad, bringing more than 50,000 miles of track under one umbrella, directly connecting 100 North American ports, and expanding operational access to 43 States.[10] By eliminating car touches and interchange delays, even more freight will be moved faster than ever and at a lower cost. The resulting synergies and efficiency gains will also allow for the opening of new routes and an expansion of intermodal services. These improvements are likely to lower supply chain costs for shippers, which ultimately means lower prices for consumers.[11] And it is projected that all this will increase freight rail demand and thus increase the number of jobs at the newly-formed company, which is one reason why the nation's largest railroad union has announced its support for the merger.[12] Finally, as demand for freight rail increases, more trucks can be taken off our highways and other roadways, reducing congestion and further lowering emissions.

In short, the proposed merger, like our freight rail system itself, will promote economic growth and environmental sustainability. It will be good for our individual States and for the Nation as a whole. We know that President Trump agrees; when recently asked about the merger plan, he declared that it "sounds good to me."[13] The President's enduring commitment to securing, advancing, and revitalizing America's infrastructure is well-known. It is evident that the proposed merger is consistent with the President's vision of Making (or, in this particular instance, Keeping) America Great.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a long-standing resident of Houston's East End and the founder of Barrio Dogs, I've seen firsthand how vital reliable rail service is for our community. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger isn't just a corporate deal; it's an opportunity to strengthen our local economy and deliver long-term benefits to my neighbors and our businesses.

I believe this merger will bring us faster, more dependable service, which means reduced congestion and expanded market reach for our businesses. It also promises continued investment in our rail infrastructure—something that's vital for enhancing safety, creating jobs, and keeping our community competitive in a growing economy.

On behalf of Barrio Dogs, I respectfully ask the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments, and opportunities it will bring. This is a crucial step for connecting our communities regionally, nationally, and across the globe.

Sincerely,

RE: Letter of Support for the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger
Docket Number FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community stakeholder in Morehouse Parish, Louisiana, reliable rail service is essential for our local economy, businesses and residents. The proposed Union Pacific-Norfolk Southern merger offers an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits for our area. This merger would help to ensure that our region remains competitive and would help to bolster that connectivity, improve service delivery and even attract further investments in Northeast Louisiana.

The merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion and expanded market reach for our businesses. It also would mean enhanced safety.

On behalf of the Bastrop-Morehouse Chamber of Commerce, I respectfully ask that the Surface Transportation Board approve this merger between Pacific Union and Norfolk Southern so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities it will bring by connecting communities regionally and nationally.

Sincerely,

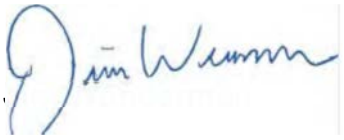
Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the Bay Area Council, representing over 350 major employers across the San Francisco Bay Area, I am writing in support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.



Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to large and small businesses. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,

Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President and CEO of the Bay City Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, I write to express strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern, which stands to deliver meaningful benefits to our region and the broader national economy.

Freight rail is a vital component of the Texas Gulf Coast economy, playing a crucial role in the transportation of agricultural products, industrial goods, and energy resources. Union Pacific has been a longstanding and reliable partner in this effort, providing dependable, cost-effective service that supports the continued growth of businesses in Matagorda County and beyond.

The proposed merger presents a unique opportunity to enhance the efficiency, reach, and resilience of the American freight rail network. Specifically, it will:

Improve Service Reliability through more direct routing and increased operational flexibility, minimizing disruptions and improving consistency in delivery schedules.

Reduce Transit Times by streamlining operations and eliminating key interchange points, allowing goods to reach markets faster and more competitively.

Drive Investment in infrastructure, technology, and safety enhancements that will not only benefit shippers but also strengthen the long-term health of our national supply chain.

Expand Market Access for businesses in rural and coastal communities like ours, opening new economic opportunities and increasing supply chain resilience.

At a time when efficient and sustainable logistics are more critical than ever, this merger represents a forward-thinking investment in the future of freight transportation. It also reflects a shared commitment to innovation, competitiveness, and economic growth across the communities served by these two carriers.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. It is a strategic step toward ensuring that American freight rail remains a robust and globally competitive component of our national infrastructure.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Chairman Oberman:

As a long-standing community partner in Houston, Texas, Big Brothers Big Sisters is deeply invested in the economic vitality and connectivity of the communities we serve. A strong and reliable transportation infrastructure is essential to ensuring opportunity reaches every corner of our region—especially for the families and youth who depend on it.

The proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern represents an important opportunity to enhance the resilience and efficiency of our national rail system. We believe this merger can deliver meaningful benefits—improved service reliability, reduced congestion, and broader market access for local businesses. It also paves the way for continued investment in critical rail infrastructure, which will support job creation, enhance public safety, and help our communities remain competitive in a rapidly evolving economy.

At Big Brothers Big Sisters, we work every day to build connections that empower young people to achieve their full potential. We view this merger as a similar investment in connection—linking communities, businesses, and opportunities across the country and beyond.

We respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger. The long-term benefits of a stronger, more integrated rail network will help ensure our communities thrive—today and for generations to come.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger offers an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits.

The merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion and expanded market reach for our businesses. It also means continued investment in rail infrastructure – enhancing safety, creating jobs, and ensuring our community remains competitive in a growing economy.

Since 1995, Union Pacific Foundation has been a loyal and steadfast supporter of Big Shoulders Fund, our schools, and the students we serve. Union Pacific and its employees have given their time, talent and treasure to help our schools thrive and ensure our students are able to receive a quality, values-based education that sets them up for success both inside and outside of the classroom. One of the most significant ways they have done this has been through their investment in our STEM initiatives, Extended Day programs, and capital improvements. These resources have provided much-needed support to our network of 90 schools and the nearly 25,000 students – 80 percent of whom identify as a person of color and nearly 70 percent whom live at below the poverty level — impacting not only our students, but their families and the communities in which they live. Our mission also benefits Union Pacific employees who serve as mentors, volunteers at our service days, and so much more! Union Pacific is a partner who believes and invests in the communities they serve.

On behalf of Union Pacific, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments, and opportunities it will bring - connecting our communities regionally, nationally and across the globe.

Honorable Fuchs,

On behalf of the Boone County Chamber of Commerce, I am writing in strong support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Boone, Iowa is a proud railroad community, home to one of Union Pacific's most critical rail yards in the region. Our city also hosts a major office hub employing nearly 600 people, serving as a center for administrative operations, rail management, and the safe movement of goods across the country.

For Boone County, freight rail is not just about transportation, it is about people, jobs, and opportunity. Rail supports our local farmers, manufacturers, and small businesses by providing the reliable and cost-effective connections they need to grow. Union Pacific has long been a trusted partner in that mission, and this proposed merger represents a historic step forward to strengthening the network for our community and our state.

The merger will bring meaningful, long-term benefits for Boone County and rural Iowa:

- Better Service for Local Businesses: More direct routes and improved reliability will help Boone County companies reach their customers with greater efficiency.
- Faster Shipping for Farmers and Producers: Reduced transit times mean our agriculture and manufacturing products can move more affordably and competitively to market.
- Investment in the Future: The merged railroad will be better positioned to modernize infrastructure, adopt new technology, and enhance safety for the people who live and work here.
- Expanded Opportunities: Stronger connections to the East Coast and global markets will open new doors for Iowa products, reinforcing Boone County's role as a hub for logistics and economic development.

For our families, this means more job opportunities, stronger businesses, and a healthier local economy that sustains future generations. For our community, it means preserving Boone's proud railroad heritage while ensuring that we remain a vital part of America's transportation backbone. For these reasons, we respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this historic partnership and the benefits it will deliver to the people we serve.

Thank You for all you do to build up our rural regions like Boone County, IA!

Subject: Comments on Proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the Borough of Greencastle in Franklin County, Pennsylvania, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific-Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community that relies on freight shipments, would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. And our whole community would benefit from a more efficient rail network that could decrease the number of long-haul trucks on our publicly funded highways. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits.

The Greencastle community is experiencing heavy truck traffic being adjacent to Interstate - 81. Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. And reducing highway congestion decreases the need for highway maintenance spending and improves quality of life for our residents. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Sincerely,

Benjamin Thomas, Jr. - Mayor

RE: Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Having served as the West Virginia Senate Chairman of the Committees on Energy, Industry and Mining, Transportation and Infrastructure, and Government Organization during my five-session tenure as the Senator for the 11th, I understand the vital importance reliable rail service plays in our nation's economy and the impact it has on local communities. As a professional civil engineer, the opportunities the "Permanent Way", our nation's railway infrastructure, has in enhancing safety on the motoring public through reduced truck traffic and reducing environmental impacts as seen in new highway transportation infrastructure will be realized.

The proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern merger promises to have positive impact on communities through faster, more dependable service, reduced highway congestion and expanded market reach for American businesses. Additionally, this merger means continued investment in rail infrastructure – enhancing safety, creating jobs and ensuring our American community remains competitive in a growing global economy.

Therefore, Chairman Fuchs, it is for these reasons and more that I, on behalf of Norfolk Southern, respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities it will bring - connecting our communities regionally, nationally and across the globe.

Thank you, in advance, for your assistance.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President of Bouchard Communications Group, based in Roseville, California—a city that serves as one of Union Pacific's largest and most active rail hubs in the western United States—I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. In Roseville, we see firsthand how Union Pacific's operations contribute to regional growth, local employment, and the efficient movement of goods that sustain our economy.

Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to large and small businesses. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a strategic opportunity to build on that legacy and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the significant benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Regarding Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Kansas City plays a critical role in the area of youth development across the Kansas City metropolitan area. For over a century, our organization has served as a springboard to success for young people. The Clubs are an access point to critical resources and vibrant opportunities, and we able to have significant impact because of strong partnerships in our community. For many years, Union Pacific has served as a strong partner in fortifying our presence and fueling our programs.

Union Pacific has invested vital resources to sustain our impact. Additionally, individuals have lent their time to supporting our mission in the Clubs. Union Pacific has provided exposure to careers to our Club members and representatives have given generously of their time to help in keeping our organization moving ever forward.

The proposed Union Pacific-Norfolk Southern merger presents a significant opportunity to further impact in Kansas City and beyond. Along with streamlined infrastructure and improved rail service, this merger offers the opportunity to further propel the reach of organizations such as the Clubs through sustained partnerships.

I respectfully request the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. The result will not only galvanize transportation, but will strengthen communities and further lift nonprofits such as ours.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community leader in Spokane County, Washington. I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

Our business community would benefit from faster, more reliable rail service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain, and access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to deliver those benefits by providing single-line service and more direct routes that increase transportation options, expand each railroad's geographic reach and encourage investment in infrastructure and technology. At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, sustainability and long-term benefits to communities like mine, and I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard those benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in its consideration of the proposed transaction.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the current Presiding Officer of the Regional Mobility Authority – Brazos County and former Mayor of the City of College Station (Texas), I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of Texas' and our immediate area's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and beyond. The growth of industry, particularly in medical research and manufacturing, automobile production and technology is evident by the newly established presence here in central Texas of Fujifilm Diosynth Biotechnology, Tesla and Samsung. The expansion of Texas' gulf ports further speaks to the need for improved rail service.

Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses, both large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen the existing network and enhance it with greater efficiencies that will deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility that will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our services businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of Bridge Strategies public affairs firm, I am writing to express my support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific Railroad and Norfolk Southern.

Bridge Strategies works to advance business friendly public policy and economic development opportunities to the benefit of the state and local communities. We work to facilitate business and overall supply chain productivity. In line with this purpose, we recognize freight rail as a cornerstone of Colorado's economy.

Union Pacific Railroad is an essential transportation partner in Colorado providing safe, reliable, efficient and cost-effective service to businesses and industry of all sizes. The national freight rail network is critical to a well-functioning supply chain, connecting our local communities in Colorado to markets across the nation and the world.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities by offering more direct routes and reducing interchange times, helping businesses to reach customers faster and with greater efficiency. Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As the founder and president of the Bull Moose Project, I have dedicated my career to revitalizing our country by advocating for America first economic principles. To that end, I am writing to share my recently published op-ed in the Daily Caller, "Trump Could Restore America's Golden Age With Iconic Railroad Merger." As the Board decides on the proposed merger between Norfolk Southern (NS) and Union Pacific (UP), I believe this op-ed offers valuable insights into how this merger would improve our national rail system and our economy.

In my article, I argue that the nation's first true transcontinental railroad will accomplish three key goals: 1) link the East and West Coasts, 2) strengthen America's supply chains, and 3) bolster domestic manufacturers across the country.

Our nonprofit, The Bull Moose Project, is modeled upon the legacy of President Theodore Roosevelt, famously a skeptic of trusts and big corporations. Which is to say that we understand the concerns of those who are wary of where this merger could lead. But we are not the only ones modeling our views and actions on President Roosevelt: the Trump administration has too, from tariffs to labor policy to antitrust concerns.

President Donald Trump has repeatedly emphasized the importance of fixing America's infrastructure and securing our domestic supply chain. He has also endorsed the merger, saying that it "sounds good."

As things stand today, the cross-country shipment of goods is overly reliant on trucking, which has an outsized impact on our nation's infrastructure and raises transportation costs for domestic producers. This merger would address these challenges head-on by eliminating bottlenecks in the rail system caused by interchanges between different companies. With a more efficient rail system, manufacturers and small businesses will be able to move goods more efficiently and at lower costs, directly benefiting consumers and boosting productivity across supply chains.

By supporting this merger, we not only can deliver prosperity today, but also secure continued prosperity for our children and future generations of Americans.

Please find a copy of the published piece attached. Thank you for your time and for your continued dedication to American railroad safety and competitiveness.

Sincerely,
Aiden Buzzetti

DAILY CALLER

Trump Could Restore America's Golden Age With Iconic Railroad Merger

OPINION

AIDEN BUZZETTI | CONTRIBUTOR

August 11, 2025 | 9:00 AM ET

The private sector is delivering on President Trump's economic agenda.

Markets have calmed since Liberation Day and have now accepted the White House's re-ordering of global trade. Companies have announced investments of hundreds of billions in domestic manufacturing. President Trump's energy-friendly policies have brought fuel prices down.

Momentum is building for the America First economic agenda. Now, a transformational merger would create America's first transcontinental railroad, revamping the domestic supply chain and empowering manufacturers across the country.

Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern – two of the largest railroads in the country – have announced plans to merge, linking the two coasts and, along with it, America's ports and supply chain. The federal government has long supported these ambitions, first beginning with Abraham Lincoln signing the Pacific Railway Act into law in 1862 and helping found Union Pacific.

The Union Pacific-Norfolk Southern merger will require approval by regulators, most notably the Surface Transportation Board (STB), a five-member panel that is currently split between two Democrats and two Republicans with one vacancy.

The vacancy allows President Trump to cement a legacy by appointing a candidate who will support his vision of unleashing American industry, re-industrializing the heartland, and fulfilling President Lincoln's vision.

President Trump has consistently advocated for fixing America's broken infrastructure and securing its supply chain. He's right – it's too expensive to move people and goods across the country. Bridges and tunnels are falling apart on our highways. Creating America's first transcontinental railroad will save shippers time and money lost to an inefficient transportation system and reduce the wear and tear on highway infrastructure.

The transcontinental railroad will also help unleash the new Golden Age that President Trump has promised. The merger will eliminate the hassle caused by interchanges, where railcars are handed off from one railroad to another. Interchanges have long been a major bottleneck for the rail industry, tying up railcars for days and creating shipping delays. The bottlenecks have slowed down the movement of goods and allowed trucking companies, who rely on publicly funded infrastructure, to dominate the freight market.

A connected railroad, by contrast, will let manufacturers move their products around the country more quickly, reduce strain on other infrastructure, and unlock millions in economic efficiencies.

The two railways have promised to preserve their unionized workforces and lower rates for shippers, meaning that workers, consumers, and manufacturers will all win with the deal. The merger boosts our domestic supply chain at a critical juncture, and puts in the infrastructure needed to support President Trump's plans to restore and revitalize American manufacturing.

It is time for a Golden Age of American prosperity. Let rail play a part.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger Project Community Impact

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community leader in Southwest Detroit, reliable rail service is essential for our local economy, businesses, and residents. The Norfolk Southern Livernois Intermodal Facility has long partnered with the community, and we look forward to continuing to develop and strengthen these connections and deliver vital, long-term community benefits. On a personal note, Norfolk Southern has been a consistent supporter of Cadillac Urban Gardens efforts to reduce food insecurity and create economic opportunities for youth in Southwest Detroit.

We understand through the diligent advocacy of our longtime partner, SDEV, that there is a proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger that has the potential to create faster, more dependable service, reduced regional congestion, and expanded market reach for our local businesses.

For the community, the most important commitment of the project is to modernize and expand capacity at the Livernois Intermodal Facility and nearby roadway intersections. This facility is a vital link connecting intermodal freight logistics between the U.S. and its international trade partners. However, the yard and its access infrastructure are in dire need of rejuvenation and modernization. Decades of unmitigated trucking pollution, noise, and fugitive dust from the facility have severely impacted the surrounding residential areas.

We feel that this collaborative project will drastically improve the livability, health, and safety of Southwest Detroit for our residents. It will achieve this by reducing noise, traffic congestion, air pollution, and accidents, while also creating new green spaces. Furthermore, it will spur economic development by affording new domestic intermodal lanes for Southeast Michigan businesses.

We urge the continuation and completion of this project as a direct result of the merger's approval.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President & CEO of the California Asian Pacific Chamber of Commerce, the largest state-wide ethnic chamber in California, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting California's economy, businesses, and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our state to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods – supporting our minority owned businesses.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach, and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. The 700,000+ Asian American and Pacific Islander–owned businesses that generate more $180 billion annually in California would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency, and access to new markets. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability, and long-term community benefits.

These benefits go beyond logistics — they fuel economic development, workforce opportunity, and community resilience. Stronger freight connectivity means more predictable delivery systems for small businesses, expanded export capacity for California manufacturers, and new employment opportunities in logistics, warehousing, and transportation — sectors that sustain working families and power our regional economies.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe, and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President of the California Black Chamber of Commerce, the largest African American non-profit business organization representing hundreds of small and emerging businesses in California, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting California's economy, businesses, and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods – supporting our businesses and consumers of color.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach, and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Dear Chairman Fuchs:

In my role as President and CEO of the California Business Properties Association and Co-Chair of the California Goods Movement Alliance, I want to convey my strong support for the proposed merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is the backbone of California's economy - moving the goods that drive our industries, sustain our farmers, and link our communities to markets nationwide. Union Pacific has been a vital partner, delivering efficient and reliable service to businesses of every size. America's freight rail network fuels growth while easing highway congestion and cutting emissions, making it one of the most sustainable transportation systems in the world.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities. This will enable more reliable service through direct routes and greater flexibility, cut transit times by eliminating interchanges, and position the railroad to invest in modern infrastructure, technology, and safety. With an expanded geographic footprint, it will also open new markets for California products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger goes beyond railroads—it's about strengthening our transportation system, driving economic growth, and keeping America's freight rail competitive on the world stage.

California Business Properties Association (CBPA) is the recognized voice of all aspects of the commercial retail industrial real estate industry in California — representing the largest commercial real estate consortium with over 10,000 industry members.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President of the California Business Roundtable, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our California's economy, businesses, and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach, and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our California business community would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency, and access to new markets. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability, and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, a policy priority for the state of California, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses, and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe, and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As chairman of California Consumer Advocates for Affordability and Safety, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the California Grocers Association (CGA), representing hundreds of grocery companies and thousands of stores across the state, I write in support of the proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger. The grocery industry depends on strong, efficient and reliable rail service to keep food moving from farms and manufacturers to distribution centers and store shelves.

The merger has the potential to enhance this network by creating more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. This expanded connectivity could reduce transit times, lower transportation costs and strengthen delivery reliability - all essential to keeping grocery prices stable and products accessible to families across California and nationwide.

For the grocery industry, where timing, freshness and cost management are critical, a stronger, more integrated rail network would be a welcome improvement. More efficient freight service means lower costs, fewer delays and better access for producers, particularly those in rural and agricultural regions that rely on rail to reach national and global markets.

Expanded rail capacity will also reduce reliance on long-haul trucking, easing highway congestion and improving overall freight movement. Additionally, the merger's commitment to workforce investment and modernization will help sustain good-paying, union-supported jobs and strengthen a dependable, resilient logistics system.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it creates for industries like ours and the importance of maintaining fair, safe and reliable rail service nationwide.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President and CEO of the California Hispanic Chambers of Commerce (CHCC), a regional business organization dedicated to empowering Hispanic entrepreneurs and businesses, I am writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of the economy, helping California workers, farmers, and businesses move the goods that sustain our communities and connect them to markets around the state and country. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses across California. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The CHCC, through our over 130 local chambers of commerce and business associations, represents over 1.8 million Hispanic & emerging businesses. The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen these business interests and deliver tangible benefits for our producers and consumers. In order to invest in minority business interests and emerging entrepreneurship, connecting local businesses through rail investment and consolidation is crucial.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it is about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development for California and our Hispanic communities, and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Mayor of Camp Hill, Pennsylvania, I am writing to express my support for the proposed merger between Norfolk Southern (NS) and Union Pacific (UP). Our region serves as a major regional hub for Norfolk Southern and is home to a diverse manufacturing base – from food and beverage production to precision metalworking – making this merger a significant economic opportunity for our community and the broader region.

Situated along the banks of the Susquehanna River, NS's Harrisburg rail facilities are among the busiest intermodal rail centers on the East Coast, with over 637,000 containers and trailers passing through Harrisburg and Rutherford Yards each year. By establishing the nation's first seamless coast-to-coast rail network, this merger will enhance the efficiency and affordability of freight rail, encouraging more businesses to choose this safer and more sustainable mode of transportation. The resulting increase in freight traffic through our intermodal facilities will stimulate job growth in the rail sector and strengthen our region's position as a prime location for manufacturers seeking reliable, accessible transportation infrastructure.

Beyond economic opportunities, the merger promises meaningful daily benefits for our residents. Increased rail efficiency will reduce the number of long-haul trucks on our highways and bridges – vehicles that place significant strain on shared infrastructure and pose safety risks to our communities. Alleviating highway congestion will save taxpayers time and money while making our roads safer for everyone.

On behalf of the people of Camp Hill, I strongly support this merger and the economic opportunities it represents for our community. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve it without delay.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

In the railroad town of Carrizozo, dependable rail service is more than a convenience — it is a lifeline for our economy, local industries, and residents. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger will build on that foundation, strengthening supply chains and ensuring long-term prosperity for our region.

This merger would bring with it faster and more reliable service, less congestion on existing lines, and greater access to new markets for businesses of all sizes. Just as importantly, it would spur continued investment in infrastructure — bolstering safety, creating good jobs, and helping our community remain competitive in an expanding global economy.

Just as importantly Union Pacific has demonstrated a long-standing commitment to supporting the communities it serves through the work of the Union Pacific Foundation. Their grant support has been critical for organizations like the Carrizozo Heritage Museum and countless other groups that preserve local history, enrich cultural life, and provide vital community services. These investments show that Union Pacific's impact goes far beyond transportation—it extends to strengthening the very fabric of the communities along its routes.

On behalf of the Board of the Carrizozo Heritage Museum, I respectfully ask the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments, and opportunities it will bring — connecting our communities regionally, nationally, and across the globe, while continuing to support grassroots organizations that make our towns and cities stronger.

- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Subject: Comments on Proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As County Executive of Cecil County, Maryland, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses, and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach, and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community that relies on freight shipments would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency, and access to new markets. And our whole community would benefit from a more efficient rail network that could decrease the number of long-haul trucks on our publicly funded highways. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability, and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. And reducing highway congestion decreases the need for highway maintenance spending and improves quality of life for our residents. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses, and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe, and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As the Economic Development Director for the Cedar City & Iron County Office of Economic Development, I am writing to express strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a historical cornerstone of Iron County's economic success. From mining and metals to manufacturing and logistics, our region's industries rely on safe, efficient rail service to move materials and products across the nation. Union Pacific is an essential transportation partner for Iron County and Southern Utah, providing dependable and cost-effective service that connects our local producers to national and international markets.

The American freight rail system plays a vital role in our economy, the region, and our sustainability goals. Rail reduces highway congestion, lowers emissions, and ensures the efficient movement of goods critical to rural and industrial regions like ours. The proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern represents a significant opportunity to greatly enhance this significant network and strengthen economic growth in Iron County and throughout the western United States. Key benefits include:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and increased operational flexibility will reduce delays and improve schedule dependability for Utah shippers.
- Reduced Transit Times: Streamlined routes will move goods faster, allowing Iron County's businesses to reach markets more competitively.
- Increased Investment: A stronger, unified rail system will attract investment in infrastructure, technology, and safety—particularly in growing regional freight hubs like ours.
- Expanded Market Access: The merger will enhance connectivity between western producers and eastern markets, strengthening Iron County's role in national supply chains.

This merger is about more than railroads—it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting continued economic development in Iron County, and ensuring that American rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the clear benefits it offers to our state, our region, and the broader national economy.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the Cedar Rapids Metro Economic Alliance, I appreciate the opportunity to share input regarding the proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger. The Economic Alliance represents a broad network of businesses and industries across the Cedar Rapids metro area and Eastern Iowa, many of which rely on freight rail to support their operations and connect to national and global markets.

Freight rail service is an essential component of our regional economy, supporting efficient goods movement, reducing highway congestion, and contributing to a more sustainable transportation system. Given its importance, any potential changes in rail operations, service structure, or infrastructure investment deserve thoughtful review.

The proposed merger may carry implications for service reliability, connectivity, and competition. We trust the Board will give these factors careful consideration, ensuring any decision reflects a balanced assessment of economic impact, safety, sustainability, and long-term community benefit.

Thank you for your attention to this matter and for the opportunity to provide perspective from our region's business community.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As the Surface Transportation Board (STB) weighs the proposed merger of Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS), I am writing to share my recent op-ed, published in American Thinker, for the STB's consideration. This merger is a historic deal that would create the first coast-to-coast freight railroad under a single carrier, improving efficiency, saving money, and strengthening American supply chains.

The combined Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern network would eliminate chokepoints like clogged interchanges that waste time and money. For cross-country shippers, a combined network means lower inventory costs and more resilient supply chains. For consumers, it means products that arrive faster and cheaper.

Critics and special interests vying for government intervention ignore the fact that Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern are not competitors today. UP and NS actually operate in separate parts of the country with little overlap and are each other's largest partners. Allowing goods to be transported seamlessly across the country without clogging terminals would be a huge boon.

Insofar as regulators are looking at the merger's impact on competition, they should do so with the broadest possible lens. There is, after all, more than one way to transport goods. Railroads compete daily with freight sent by air, by sea, and—primarily—by road. Almost 3 out of every 4 pounds of freight is carried by truck. So, if rail service falters or rates rise, shippers switch modes. That's real market discipline that requires no government intervention.

Likewise, an improvement to rail efficiency means more competition in the overall transportation market, not less.

At a time when supply chains are still fragile, a faster and more integrated rail system would make American manufacturing stronger and more globally competitive. For instance, the companies project nearly $3 billion a year in efficiency, a 10 percent boost in traffic by 2030, and billions in new investment.

Approving this merger would create a modern transcontinental system fit for today's economy. Blocking it would mean clinging to discredited progressivism at the expense of growth, efficiency, and consumer benefits.

I believe this op-ed contributes meaningfully to the broader discussion surrounding the merger and offers valuable insight into why it should be approved. Please find a copy of the published piece attached.

Approve the first transcontinental railroad for freight

By Brian Garst

Regulators love to say they're protecting consumers. But too often, "protection" really means blocking innovation that would improve efficiency, save money, and strengthen the economy. That is what is at stake as the Surface Transportation Board (STB) weighs the proposed merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. It's a deal that would create the first coast-to-coast freight railroad in U.S. history, but only if the government gets out of the way.

Right now, freight moving from the Atlantic to the Pacific has to be handed off between railroads, often at clogged junctions like Chicago or New Orleans. These transfers waste time and money. The combined Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern network would eliminate those chokepoints, cutting delivery times by up to two full days. For cross-country shippers, whether it be for agriculture, petroleum, or manufactured goods, that means lower inventory costs and more resilient supply chains. For consumers, it means products that arrive faster and cheaper.

Critics and special interests vying for government intervention warn of consolidation. What they ignore is that Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern are not competitors today. They operate in separate parts of the country with little overlap. Instead, they are each other's largest partners, exchanging around 1 million shipments per year between their networks. Allowing all these goods to transit without clogging terminals would be a huge boon.

Insofar as regulators are looking at the merger's impact on competition, they should do so with the broadest possible lens. There is, after all, more than one way to transport goods. Railroads compete daily with freight sent by air, by sea, and—primarily—by road. Almost 3 out of every 4 pounds of freight is carried by truck. So, if rail service falters or rates rise, shippers switch modes. That's real market discipline that requires no government intervention.

Likewise, an improvement to rail efficiency means more competition in the overall transportation market, not less.

This merger is also a shot in the arm for the economy. The companies project nearly $3 billion a year in efficiencies, a 10 percent boost in traffic by 2030, and billions in new investment. At a time when supply chains are still fragile, a faster and more integrated rail system would make American manufacturing stronger and more globally competitive.

The Biden administration embraced an expansive and aggressive use of antitrust powers, often treating corporate size and efficiency as inherently suspect. It threw out the consumer welfare standard, choosing instead to subject economic activity to the often-arbitrary whims of unelected bureaucrats. The result was a loss of innovation and economic dynamism.

The Trump administration has now both the opportunity and the obligation to separate itself from the failures of the Biden approach. The recent firing of an STB board member sympathetic to the heavy-handed approach is hopefully a positive sign.

America was built by railroads that connected east and west. Approving this merger would echo that achievement, creating a modern transcontinental system fit for today's economy. Blocking it would mean clinging to discredited progressivism at the expense of growth, efficiency, and consumer benefit.

The STB faces a simple test. Does this deal make our freight system faster, cheaper, and more competitive? The answer is yes. Regulators should step aside and let the market work.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of the Board of Directors and members of the Central Louisiana Regional Chamber of Commerce, I am writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Our member businesses operate in Rapides Parish, Louisiana and rely on Union Pacific to provide efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of our customers and ensure the safe, timely delivery of goods.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for our businesses and industries providing:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, allowing rail to be an even more competitive solution vs other transportation alternatives.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on our businesses and industries.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

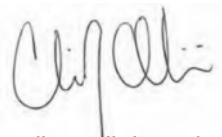
Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President and CEO of the Central Valley Business Federation (CV BizFed), is a diverse grassroots alliance of approximately 80 businesses and associations, 30,000 employers and 400,000 employees, spanning the Central Valley from Madera to Kern. I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.



Freight rail is a cornerstone of the economy, helping California workers, farmers, and businesses move the goods that sustain our communities and connect them to markets beyond the Central Valley. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses all throughout California. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

At CV BizFed, our mission is to amplify and strengthen the voices in the Central Valley in order to promote smart business policies, job creation, and economic health. The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen our network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers, and communities from the Central Valley and beyond.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it is about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development for California and our minority communities, and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

RE: Support for the Proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the Chamber of Business and Industry of Centre County, I am writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our organization's mission is to promote the economic growth and vitality of Centre County and the surrounding region. Reliable freight rail service plays a critical role in sustaining and expanding our economy, connecting our businesses to national and global markets, and supporting local job creation.

The proposed merger presents a significant opportunity to strengthen the nation's transportation network. By combining two of America's leading rail systems, this merger promises to improve service reliability, reduce highway congestion, expand market access for businesses, and enhance supply chain efficiency. Importantly, it underscores the value of maintaining a safe, modern, and integrated rail system that benefits communities across the country.

Pennsylvania, the Keystone State, holds a unique position in our nation's rail infrastructure. With more Norfolk Southern track mileage than any other state, Pennsylvania is already a hub for rail connectivity. The addition of Union Pacific's extensive network would further enhance our region's ability to move products efficiently to markets nationwide, benefiting businesses large and small throughout Centre County.

For these reasons, the Chamber of Business and Industry of Centre County urges the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. Doing so will strengthen the national rail system, protect and grow jobs, and enable continued investment in safe, sustainable transportation infrastructure.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for Chambers County, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses, large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions. It is also critical to the county's logistics and distribution cluster.
The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible economic development benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Executive Director of The Chambersburg Area Development Corp I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community that relies on freight shipments would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. And our whole community would benefit from a more efficient rail network that could decrease the number of long-haul trucks on our publicly funded highways. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. And reducing highway congestion decreases the need for highway maintenance spending and improves quality of life for our residents. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As President and CEO of the Charleston Metro Chamber of Commerce, I am committed to expanding economic opportunities and market access for our more than 1,600 member organizations. In recent years, freight rail expansion has strengthened South Carolina's economy by moving more cargo through our ports, enhancing the competitiveness of local businesses, lowering costs for consumers, and reinforcing supply chains. The proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS) offers an opportunity to build upon this.

By creating the nation's first coast-to-coast freight rail network, the merger will improve reliability, reduce delays, and drive down shipping costs – benefits that will extend nationwide, but be especially impactful here in South Carolina

For Charleston in particular, the impact will be significant. The Navy Base Intermodal Facility (NBIF), now under construction, will establish a near-dock rail connection linking Port of Charleston cargo directly to inland markets, including those served by NS. Together, this merger and NBIF will unlock transformative opportunities for our region – enabling Southeast businesses compete in global markets and ensuring Palmetto state-made goods can move seamlessly to customers throughout the country.

South Carolina is also home to world-class manufacturers like Boeing, Michelin, and Volvo. The merger will enhance these employers' ability to move raw materials and finished products more efficiently, protecting tens of thousands of well-paying jobs while fueling economic growth.

On behalf of the Charleston Metro Chamber, I strongly support this merger and urge you to do the same – for the economic growth, supply chain resilience, and expanded market access it will bring to South Carolina, the Southeast, and the nation.

Subject: Comments on the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

The Cheyenne Depot Museum (CDM) is the steward of the Historic Union Pacific Railroad Depot, a National Historic Landmark. Built in 1886 by the UPRR, it is the last remaining grand railroad station on the transcontinental route, designed by famed architect Henry Van Brunt. People visit the museum to learn about the history of Cheyenne, the Transcontinental Railroad, and the Union Pacific.

The Union Pacific Railroad and Cheyenne were intertwined from the very beginning. Built during the heyday of the cattle barons, the Depot formed a strategic point along UP's route. During WWII the shop could handle more than 212 locomotives in a day, making it essential to the war effort. In 1993, UP donated the building to the City of Cheyenne. After an extensive rehabilitation project, the building now houses a museum, a restaurant, and offices.

The CDM partners with the Union Pacific on Steam Shop and Roundhouse tours. This partnership is beneficial to the CDM, Union Pacific, and the visitors from around the world that get to experience the amazing world of the Big Boy steam locomotive. We receive requests daily from people who would love to see the UP Steam Shop and Roundhouse. These guided tours are a rare opportunity to see 1 of the 8 remaining Big Boy steam engines and showcase the UP Heritage Fleet.

The Cheyenne Depot Museum looks forward to continuing our long-standing relationship with the Union Pacific for generations to come.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Cheyenne Frontier Days has shared a proud and enduring partnership with Union Pacific since our founding in 1897. It was Frederick W. Angier, a Union Pacific agent, who first proposed the idea of a cowboy festival to the local newspaper, an idea that became the Daddy of 'em All. For many years, Union Pacific operated the "Centennial Special," an excursion train that brought visitors from Denver to Cheyenne to experience our celebration.

More than 130 years later, that partnership remains strong. Union Pacific's presence continues to be woven into the fabric of Cheyenne Frontier Days, the City of Cheyenne, and the State of Wyoming. We are deeply grateful for this ongoing relationship and proud to share in the legacy of connecting people, communities, and commerce.

The railroads have always played a vital role in Wyoming's history and progress. From the earliest settlements that gave rise to Cheyenne and Laramie to the modern transport of energy resources from the Powder River Basin, the railroads have been an essential engine of growth for our state. Union Pacific's continued investment in Wyoming helps sustain that legacy and ensures a strong future for our people and our economy.

We respectfully encourage the Board to consider these remarks in its deliberation of the proposed transaction, and we look forward to continuing our long-standing partnership with Union Pacific for generations to come.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Development Manager of the Cheyenne Frontier Days™ Old West Museum, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific Railroad and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail has long been a cornerstone of Wyoming's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, supporting our ranchers and farmers, and connecting our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has been an essential transportation and community partner for generations, providing efficient, reliable service while investing in the people and places that help preserve the heritage of the American West.

At the Cheyenne Frontier Days™ Old West Museum, our partnership with Union Pacific has demonstrated how collaboration can strengthen organizations, uplift communities, and preserve shared history for future generations. Through partnerships like these, we are able to reach beyond our walls—touching the lives of students, families, and visitors who find connection through Western culture and history. When we bring people and resources together, we all grow stronger.

The proposed merger offers an unprecedented opportunity to build upon that spirit of connection on a national scale, creating America's first true transcontinental railroad and bringing the East and West together in ways that will benefit the entire country. This merger will improve service reliability, reduce transit times, increase investment in infrastructure and technology, and expand the railroad's reach to strengthen supply chain resilience and connect more communities."

Just as Union Pacific's partnership has helped our Museum serve our community more effectively, we believe this merger will strengthen our nation by linking communities, industries, and people through a more connected and competitive rail network.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the long-term economic, cultural, and community benefits it will bring to our region and the nation.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Established in 1986, Cheyenne LEADS serves as the economic development organization for Cheyenne and Laramie County, Wyoming. The organization recognizes the important role that freight rail plays in supporting the regional economy, local businesses, and residents. Reliable rail service connects our area to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods moving through the state.

Our business community could benefit from faster, more dependable rail service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain, and greater access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the potential to help deliver these benefits by offering single-line service and more direct routes that expand transportation options, increase geographic reach, and promote investment in infrastructure and technology. It is equally important that these improvements be achieved in a way that maintains a focus on safety, sustainability, and long-term community benefit. I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will ensure those priorities are upheld.

Freight rail also helps reduce highway congestion and emissions, making it a key component of sustainable transportation. With careful planning, the merger could enhance service reliability, support local businesses, and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these considerations into account in its review of the proposed transaction.

Chairman Fuchs:

As the Alderman of Chicago's 1st Ward, I write to express my support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific Railroad and Norfolk Southern Corporation. Over my years in public service, I have enjoyed my interaction with Norfolk Southern and have found its leadership to be professional, responsive, and equitable in its dealings with the communities it serves.

Freight rail is a critical component of Illinois' economic infrastructure. It enables the safe and efficient movement of goods that power our industries, sustain our agricultural sector, and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Norfolk Southern has long been a reliable transportation partner for Illinois, providing consistent, cost-effective service to businesses of all sizes.

The proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern is a strategic opportunity to enhance the resilience, capacity, and competitiveness of the national rail system. Strengthening this network will help ensure that American freight rail remains a global leader in safety, efficiency, and innovation.

I urge the Surface Transportation Board to give favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the broad economic and operational benefits it will deliver to Illinois and to the nation.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Alderman of the 4th Ward in Chicago, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Norfolk Southern has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Re: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

For over a decade I have served as Alderman representing the 15th Ward. Throughout my entire tenure, I have worked closely with the Norfolk Southern Railroad. Reliable rail service is essential for our local economy, businesses, and residents.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger offers an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits. The merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion and expanded market reach for our businesses. It also means continued investment in rail infrastructure – enhancing safety, creating jobs and ensuring our community remains competitive in a growing economy.

I look forward to maintaining close communication and responsiveness to the needs of the communities I represent, including Canaryville, Back of the Yards and West Englewood. Their collective improvement correlates inextricably with the local leadership at Norfolk Southern.

I support the proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger and ask your favorable consideration as well. Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me. Until then, I remain,

Respectfully Serving the 15th Ward,

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community stakeholder in Southwest Idaho, I cannot speak to the proposed merger, but I want to share that Union Pacific has been a generous and meaningful supporter of the Children's Museum of Idaho. Their recent grant funding has helped us expand access to Early Education Museum Memberships for local families and advance our Train Town expansion—both of which provide hands-on learning experiences that inspire curiosity, creativity, and early childhood development.

Union Pacific's support strengthens our ability to reach children who might not otherwise have access to these opportunities, helping us create a more inclusive and educational environment for families throughout our region.

On behalf of the Children's Museum of Idaho, I respectfully ask the Surface Transportation Board to consider the positive impact Union Pacific has had on our community.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the City of Abilene, I've seen firsthand how vital dependable transportation infrastructure is to sustaining and growing our regional economy. Here in the Big Country, Abilene serves as a crossroads for commerce, education, and innovation—anchored by Dyess Air Force Base, our strong manufacturing sector, and the small businesses that define West Texas resilience. Reliable rail service plays a central role in keeping those engines of growth running.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger presents a real opportunity to strengthen these connections. Improved coordination between the two rail systems would enhance freight efficiency, ease highway congestion along key corridors like I-20, and better link West Texas producers with major national and international markets. Those improvements mean lower costs, more predictable supply chains, and new opportunities for employers across the region.

For a hub like Abilene—where agriculture, manufacturing, and logistics converge—stronger rail service is more than a convenience; it's a competitive advantage. Continued investment in rail infrastructure also signals a commitment to safety, sustainability, and long-term economic vitality for our community.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger and help ensure that Abilene and the West Texas region remain connected, competitive, and ready for the future.

sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the former Mayor of Aiken, South Carolina, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS).

When I first ran for local office, my goal was to strengthen my hometown by improving quality of life and promoting sustainable economic growth. This merger builds upon that same vision – creating broader opportunities for communities across South Carolina and beyond.

Through both my public service and experience as a third-generation business owner, I have seen how investment in infrastructure drives prosperity. Modernizing and expanding our rail network will unlock growth for businesses of all sizes, enhancing the ability to compete in an ever-moving economy.

The combined UP-NS network – spanning more than 50,000 route miles across 43 states – would provide local manufacturers greater market access, more efficient shipping options, and expanded opportunities across North America. These improvements would be especially valuable in South Carolina, where more than 6,200 businesses exported goods in 2023 – 84 percent of them being small and mid-sized businesses. Our state's economy depends on these businesses, which deserve seamless access to new markets and opportunities.

The benefits will also extend to consumers. Greater efficiency in freight transportation translates to lower costs, greater savings, and improved access to the goods and services families rely on every day. Importantly, these improvements come through private-sector investment – not taxpayer dollars – delivering economic growth without added public expense.

I urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the significant economic benefits it will deliver to American businesses, consumers, and communities alike.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Rick Osbon

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As City Administrator for the City of Altoona, WI, I understand how reliable rail service is essential for our local economy, businesses and residents. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger offers an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits.

The merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion and expanded market reach for our businesses. It also means continued investment in rail infrastructure – enhancing safety, creating jobs and ensuring our community remains competitive in a growing economy.

On behalf of the City of Altoona, which was founded on the need for expanded railroad service, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities it will bring - connecting our communities regionally, nationally and across the globe.

Sincerely,

Subject: Comments on Proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a city of Atlanta Councilmember in District 10 I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community that relies on freight shipments, would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. And our whole community would benefit from a more efficient rail network that could decrease the number of long-haul trucks on our publicly funded highways. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. And reducing highway congestion decreases the need for highway maintenance spending and improves quality of life for our residents. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a current Mayor and former State legislator, I feel firmly that reliable rail service is vital to our local economy, businesses and residents. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger presents an opportunity to fortify these connections and yield long-term benefits.

The merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion and expanded market reach for our businesses. It also means continued investment in rail infrastructure – enhancing safety, creating jobs and maintains our community's competitiveness in a growing economy. Furthermore, faster intermodal lanes will attract container freight to rail services over truck services, thereby reducing trucks on public roads which I consider essential. It is also important to note that the merger will create uninterrupted shipping serv ice between the Pacific and Atlantic coasts linking ports, military facilities and manufacturers more directly.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities it will bring - connecting our communities regionally, nationally and across the globe.

Rail Connectivity for the Growth of Augusta's Future

A recently announced merger has the power to revolutionize Augusta's future.

The Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS) merger would create America's first true transcontinental railroad, which would stretch across 43 states and bring nearly every corner of North America within reach. For Augusta, that means stronger connectivity, expanded markets, and new opportunities for growth.

As both the Mayor of Augusta and small business owner, I see every day how our city's growth depends on connections between employers and workers, between products and markets, and between Augusta, the state of Georgia, and the nation as a whole. The UP-NS merger would strength those ties, creating a more efficient coast-to-coast supply chain that lowers costs for businesses and families alike. When goods move faster and more reliably by rail, manufacturers save on shipping, businesses avoid delays, and customers benefit from affordable prices.

These efficiencies matter here in Augusta because our city was built on industry. Nearly two centuries ago, the construction of the Augusta Canal transformed us from an agrarian economy to an industrial hub. This legacy continues today, with Augusta-Richmond County ranking sixth in the state for imports and exports through the Port of Savannah. In 2023 alone, Augusta-Richmond County exported $1.2 billion in goods through the Port of Savannah the fastest growing port on the East and Gulf coasts. Local companies like Textron's E-Z-GO, John Deere, and NutraSweet all depend on reliable transportation networks to get their products to market.

Georgia's role in the global economy underscores why these connections matter. In 2024, our state ranked 12th among U.S. exporters, with $53.1 billion in goods shipped worldwide a 35 percent increase over the past decade. Those exports supported an estimated 168,000 jobs, or 6.4 percent of state GDP. Behind every one of those numbers is a worker, a family, and a community whose livelihood depends on strong, reliable supply chains.

The UP-NS proposal would not only strengthen Georgia's competitiveness, but also sustain unionized, family-supporting jobs by boosting the competitiveness of freight rail, which increasingly relies on contract labor. Strengthening rail means protecting good jobs and ensuring the people who keep our economy moving can build secure futures.

My leadership has always been guided by three principles: growth, action, and results. Success is not about numbers on a page, it's about people. And for the people of Augusta, this merger represents a once-in-a-generation opportunity to cement our role as a manufacturing leader, connect to new opportunities, and deliver lasting prosperity.

Approving this merger means more than expanding rail lines; it means investing in Augusta's future, a future where our businesses, workers, and families are positioned to thrive for decades to come.

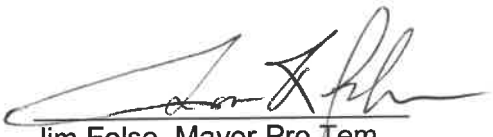
Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the City of Bay City, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.



The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the City of Big Sandy, Texas, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Our town exists solely because of the railroad. Initially called Chilton, it sat on a hill that was too steep for the train to climb, so the town moved and was named Ferguson. Land near Ferguson was determined to be too swampy for the Tyler Tap, so once again the townspeople moved to present day Big Sandy.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a longtime customer of Union Pacific, the City of Casa Grande is writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Our community depends on efficient, reliable, and cost-effective rail service to meet the needs of companies and ensure the safe, timely delivery of our products across the country. Our manufacturing and logistics companies transport their products to markets throughout the country and around the globe. American freight rail network is a critical component of their supply chain, allowing them to move large volumes efficiently and sustainably. We understand the importance of rail to our companies and to the national economy. We also understand firsthand how these rail networks need new investments, and new commitments for growth and innovation, so that our companies have a bright future.

We believe that the proposed merger will enhance competition and yield significant benefits for Union Pacific benefactors like us, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: The combined network will offer more direct routes and greater flexibility, minimizing the risk of service disruptions.
- Reduced Transit Times: By eliminating interchanges where rail cars are handed off, the combination will remove several days from transit times, enabling our companies to deliver more goods to more customers and consumers, faster.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in infrastructure, technology, and equipment, further improving service quality, capacity, and safety.
- Expanded Reach: Our companies' ability to access a broader geographic footprint will allow them to better serve their customers and reach new ones helping them to prosper and expand creating more jobs and generating additional tax revenue for the city that will enable us to enhance the quality of life of our residents.

We understand that regulatory review is an important part of this process, and we encourage the relevant authorities to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on businesses like ours and the broader economy.

Thank you for your consideration of our perspective. We look forward to the continued partnership and enhanced service that this merger will bring.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a member of the Cayce City Council, I've seen firsthand how transportation infrastructure shapes opportunity in our community. Freight rail plays a vital role in keeping our local economy moving — from supporting manufacturers and distributors to connecting South Carolina businesses with national markets.

That's why I believe the proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS) is an important step forward. This merger will improve efficiency, reduce costly interchange delays, and strengthen the reliability of our rail system for businesses of all sizes. For communities like Cayce, where the Norfolk Southern R-line and Thoroughbred Bulk Terminal are key parts of our industrial landscape, that reliability means more opportunity, more investment, and more jobs.

The merger's benefits extend beyond Cayce. A seamless coast-to-coast rail network will boost freight capacity at the Port of Charleston and expand access to markets across the Southeast. That kind of connectivity supports growth, strengthens supply chains, and positions South Carolina to stay competitive in a rapidly changing economy.

Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern have both demonstrated their commitment to safety, workforce stability, and community partnerships. This merger builds on that foundation, ensuring that progress in the freight sector continues to translate into real economic benefits for families and small businesses here at home.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve the proposed merger. Strengthening our rail system strengthens South Carolina — and communities like Cayce stand ready to help lead that growth.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Mayor Pro-Tem of the City of Cayce, SC, as well as the Chief Executive Officer and President of the Greater Cayce-West Columbia Chamber of Commerce, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS). At a moment of national rejuvenation, this merger represents a timely opportunity to strengthen the efficiency, safety, and overall competitiveness in our nation's freight rail system – while also delivering meaningful economic benefits to local businesses across the country.

It is evident that the UP and NS merger would improve operational efficiency by reducing interchange delays that often make rail risky and prohibitively expensive for small businesses. By creating an uninterrupted cross-country rail line, the combined network will enable businesses to move goods more efficiently, safely, and affordably. This improvement will not only make communities like Cayce more attractive to manufacturers but also expand market access for small and mid-sized businesses across the country.

Our community, specifically Cayce, located just outside Columbia, SC – which is home to a portion of Norfolk Southern's R-line and the Norfolk Southern Thoroughbred Bulk Terminal (TBT) – stands to benefit directly from this merger. Increased business activity will generate new job opportunities in and around the rail industry, while UP's commitment to protecting jobs ensures existing workers will continue to enjoy stable, well-paying employment. Moreover, a seamless coast-to-coast network will strengthen the Port of Charleston and the Navy Base Intermodal Facility, drive greater commercial activity, and support broader economic growth across South Carolina and the Southeast.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve the proposed UP–NS merger. This merger represents a forward-looking investment in the future of America's transportation infrastructure and in the continued economic vitality of communities like Cayce and others across the Palmetto State.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

Chattanooga is a key rail hub in our nation's transportation network for both Norfolk Southern and one of its competitors, a boon that helps feed our regional economy while also affecting how we support the evolving needs of our residents.

As Chattanooga works to attract and retain advanced manufacturers, add passenger rail service through the Corridor ID program, and redevelop blighted portions of the city, our future success will depend in part on the improvements this merger could bring: faster, more dependable service, capital investments in rail infrastructure, reduced congestion, and expanded market reach for our businesses, just to name a few.

During my time as mayor, Norfolk Southern has proven itself a reliable and accessible partner, as well as a key component of our ability to better serve our growing, changing community. I support any merger, including that of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern, that will lead to even more opportunities for community and business growth in partnership with this new transcontinental railroad. Such a railroad would benefit our country, our state, and our city.

So in the spirit of continuing the great partnership we've built with Norfolk Southern, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities that a transcontinental railroad partner will bring to the table.

A COMMUNITY OF CHOICE

The Honorable Patrick J. Fuchs
Chairman
Surface Transportation Board
395 E Street SW
Washington, DC 20423

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the City of Cheyenne, I am writing to express my support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Freight rail is a cornerstone of our economy—safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers, and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world.

Union Pacific has long been a valued transportation partner for Cheyenne and the region, providing efficient, reliable, and cost-effective service to businesses both large and small. The American freight rail network is not only vital to economic growth, but it is also among the most sustainable modes of transportation available—reducing highway congestion, emissions, and wear on public infrastructure.

The proposed merger presents a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver meaningful benefits to shippers, consumers, and communities across the country, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Streamlined operations and fewer interchanges will allow goods to move more efficiently, helping businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: A unified transcontinental network will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology, and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Market Reach: A broader geographic footprint will open new markets for regional products and strengthen overall supply chain resilience.

At the same time, it is important that these improvements continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability, and long-term community benefits. With thoughtful implementation, this merger can enhance service dependability, support economic development, and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth—all while upholding the high safety and environmental standards that define modern freight rail.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the significant benefits it offers to Cheyenne, the State of Wyoming, and the national economy.

Sincerely,

Patrick Collins, Mayor
City of Cheyenne

Re: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

I, Alderman Peter Chico 10th Ward of Chicago, Illinois, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Norfolk Southern has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses that are large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a member of the Dallas City Council, I write in strong support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern railways. This merger represents an important opportunity to strengthen our national rail network while delivering meaningful benefits to Dallas and the broader North Texas region.

Dallas is one of the nation's most important transportation and logistics hubs. Our city's economy depends on efficient rail connections that move goods swiftly and reliably across the country. By combining the strengths of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern, this merger will enhance network fluidity, reduce congestion in key freight corridors, and improve service reliability for Dallas businesses that rely on rail to move products and materials.

Additionally, a more integrated rail system will help reduce truck traffic on our highways, lowering emissions and easing roadway congestion — outcomes that align with our city's economic and environmental goals.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. The strengthened network will support economic growth, enhance supply chain resilience, and ensure Dallas remains at the center of America's rail-driven prosperity.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the City of Douglasville, I am writing to express my support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Douglasville is a proud part of Georgia's growing logistics and industrial corridor. Our city's success depends in large part on the strength and reliability of the freight rail network that connects our manufacturers and distribution centers to markets across the nation. The proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern represents a significant opportunity to enhance those connections, creating a more efficient, resilient, and competitive rail system that directly benefits communities like ours.

Our local industries — from advanced manufacturing and food production to building materials and consumer goods — rely on dependable freight service to move products swiftly and affordably. A stronger, more coordinated rail network will reduce supply chain bottlenecks, improve transit times, and expand access to markets throughout the Southeast and beyond.

Moreover, increased rail efficiency can help relieve pressure on our highways, reduce emissions from truck traffic, and support the sustainability goals shared by our city and our business community. These improvements translate into tangible economic advantages: stronger industrial growth, job creation, and continued investment in Douglasville's future.

As Mayor, I strongly support this merger as a step toward modernizing and strengthening America's freight rail system. The benefits to Georgia's industries, workforce, and communities will be substantial — and Douglasville stands ready to continue doing its part to power the region's growth.

Thank you for your consideration and for recognizing the importance of this merger to communities like ours.

Sincerely,

Rochelle Robinson

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Eddyville is a small town that consistently punches above its weight when it comes to industry and economic impact. Several major companies have chosen to make Eddyville their home—an achievement that stems from the hard work of our residents, our strategic location, and our deep agricultural roots. A key factor in this success has been our access to rail. The railroad network that serves Eddyville provides a vital link to markets across the country, enabling our local businesses to grow and thrive.

The proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern represents an exciting opportunity for communities like ours. Eddyville's business partners are the backbone of our local economy, and this merger has the potential to strengthen not only the national transportation system but also our town's industrial base. Enhanced rail connectivity will open new markets, create more direct routes, and improve overall shipping efficiency.

Reduced transportation times translate directly into business growth. Faster, more reliable delivery options will help our industries meet tight deadlines and expand their reach. Even saving a day or two in transit can make enough difference—allowing companies to compete more effectively and pursue new opportunities. These benefits will fuel further economic development in Eddyville and in communities across the nation.

On behalf of the City of Eddyville, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. This is more than a partnership between two railroads—it is a chance to strengthen America's transportation infrastructure, empower American industry, and ensure continued prosperity for towns like ours.

As Senior Assistant General Counsel of the El Paso Water Utilities I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. I am hopeful to see investment in the El Paso area, as inclusion in a transcontinental railroad would have an immensely positive impact in the region.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community leader in Falls City, Nebraska, I recognize the vital role that reliable and efficient rail service plays in supporting our local economy. Falls City has long served as a regional hub for agriculture, manufacturing, and logistics, and continued rail connectivity is essential for the movement of goods, attraction of new investment, and long-term economic growth of our community.

At its regular meeting held on October 20th, 2025, the Falls City Council voted unanimously to authorize and support the drafting of this letter endorsing the proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger. The Council recognizes that this merger represents an opportunity to strengthen critical rail connections that directly impact our businesses and residents. Improved coordination between the two rail networks would enhance service reliability, reduce congestion, and expand market reach for businesses in and around Falls City. More efficient freight service means our agricultural producers, manufacturers, and distributors can remain competitive in both domestic and international markets.

Equally important, the merger supports continued investment in rail infrastructure that promotes safety, job creation, and sustainable growth. Falls City's strategic location near key north-south and east-west rail corridors positions our community to benefit from these system improvements and the broader efficiencies they will bring.

On behalf of the Mayor and City Council of the City of Falls City, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. Doing so will help ensure that our community and region remain well-connected, economically vibrant, and positioned to contribute to a stronger national transportation network.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs and Members of the Board,

As the City Manager of Green River, Utah, I'm writing to share our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

In a rural community like ours, freight rail isn't just part of the supply chain; it's the lifeline that connects our businesses, our farmers, and our industries to the rest of the country. Union Pacific has been a steady partner in that work for decades. The reliability of that connection is one of the reasons Green River has been able to grow and attract new opportunities.

This merger offers a chance to build on that foundation. A single transcontinental railroad, linking Union Pacific's western network with Norfolk Southern's eastern reach, has the potential to make freight movement more reliable and more competitive. For towns like ours, that means fewer delays, better access to markets, and a stronger platform for the businesses we're trying to grow.

We know that when the supply chain works better at the national level, it works better for us here on the ground. For this reason, among many others across this ecosystem, we believe the merger deserves favorable consideration.

Thank you for your attention to this matter and for your work in safeguarding a competitive and resilient rail network.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the Mayor of the city of Green River, Wyoming, where the railroad is vital to our city and our history, I feel compelled to offer my support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern rail companies.

Rail has been and continues to be a significant benefit to our local and state economy. From moving the goods that power our local extraction industries, and other small and large businesses, while connecting our communities to markets across the nation and the world, Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner. The rail network is not only critical to our economic growth, but it is one that compliments other alternative transportation modes providing safe and economical options for those who use it.

The proposed merger offers opportunity to strengthen the overall network helping shippers, consumers and communities. There are tangible benefits that this merger can bring including:

- Improved service reliability through direct routes providing operational flexibility and minimizing service disruptions.
- Reduced transit times helping to improve transportation speed across the system.
- Increased investment that will help update an aged infrastructure while improving technology and safety.
- Expanded reach which can open new markets for our state's products and help ensure supply chain efficiencies.

This merger, if successful, can help secure the future of our national transportation network. It will also support development across the system all the way down to our local communities.

On behalf of the City of Green River, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to recognize the benefits it will bring across the country but especially to our state, cities, and towns, and to give full and favorable consideration to the merger proposal so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities it could bring.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Mayor of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, I am writing to express my support for the proposed merger between Norfolk Southern (NS) and Union Pacific (UP). Harrisburg serves as a major regional hub for Norfolk Southern and is home to a diverse manufacturing base – from food and beverage production to precision metalworking – making this merger a significant economic opportunity for our community and the broader region.

Situated along the banks of the Susquehanna River, NS's Harrisburg rail facilities are among the busiest intermodal rail centers on the East Coast, with over 637,000 containers and trailers passing through Harrisburg and Rutherford Yards each year. By establishing the nation's first seamless coast-to-coast rail network, this merger will enhance the efficiency and affordability of freight rail, encouraging more businesses to choose this safer and more sustainable mode of transportation. The resulting increase in freight traffic through our intermodal facilities will stimulate job growth in the rail sector and strengthen Harrisburg's position as a prime location for manufacturers seeking reliable, accessible transportation infrastructure.

Beyond economic opportunities, the merger promises meaningful daily benefits for our residents. Increased rail efficiency will reduce the number of long-haul trucks on our highways and bridges – vehicles that place significant strain on shared infrastructure and pose safety risks to our communities. Alleviating highway congestion will save taxpayers time and money while making our roads safer for everyone.

On behalf of the people of Harrisburg, I strongly support this merger and the economic opportunities it represents for our community. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board will approve it without delay.

Thank you for your consideration.

Subject: Comments on Proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the Mayor of the City of Havre de Grace, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community that relies on freight shipments would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. And our whole community would benefit from a more efficient rail network that could decrease the number of long-haul trucks on our publicly funded highways. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. And reducing highway congestion decreases the need for highway maintenance spending and improves quality of life for our residents. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As City Manager of the City of Hearne, I write to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

The City of Hearne has a deep and historic connection to the railroad industry — our community was built at the crossroads of commerce and transportation, and rail continues to play a central role in our economic vitality today. Freight rail has long been the backbone of Texas's economy, safely and efficiently moving the goods that fuel our industries, serve our farmers, and connect communities like Hearne to markets across the nation and beyond.

Union Pacific has been a longstanding partner to our city and region, providing essential transportation services that help sustain local jobs, attract new businesses, and support our ongoing efforts to develop industrial and commercial opportunities. Freight rail is not only critical to our economy — it is one of the most sustainable forms of transportation, reducing congestion on highways and helping lower carbon emissions across our state.

The proposed merger presents a unique opportunity to strengthen the national rail network and deliver significant benefits to cities like Hearne, as well as to the broader regional and national economy. The City of Hearne anticipates that this consolidation will:

- Enhance Service Reliability: Streamlined operations and expanded routing flexibility will improve consistency and minimize service interruptions.
- Reduce Transit Times: More direct connections and fewer interchanges will allow goods to move faster, giving Texas producers and manufacturers a stronger competitive edge.
- Increase Investment: A more unified transcontinental network will attract new capital for infrastructure improvements, technological innovation, and advanced safety systems that benefit communities along the rail corridor.
- Expand Market Reach: Greater connectivity across regions will open new trade opportunities, strengthen supply chains, and enhance economic resilience for communities like ours.

This merger is about more than railroads — it is about securing the future of America's freight transportation network, fostering economic development, and ensuring that cities such as Hearne remain connected to the engines of national growth and global commerce.

On behalf of the City of Hearne, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal. The continued strength and efficiency of our freight rail system are essential to the prosperity of Hearne, the State of Texas, and the nation as a whole.

To Whom It May Concern,

This letter is to indicate support of the proposed Union Pacific – Norfolk Southern Merger. This historic agreement will form America's first transcontinental railroad and Helper is, at its' heart, a rail community. This merger will enhance supply chains, ignite new economic growth and support sustainable logistics nationwide from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The increased service offerings such as single-line service and enhanced competition will also aid in addressing underserved areas and strengthen opportunities. More positives include faster transit times, increased reliability and customer visibility. In the course of this merger, all parties have committed to preserving union jobs while accelerating technological advancements. The overall objective is to create a faster and more efficient service which allows other entities to take advantage of these services in support of their customers.

Union Pacific has been a stronger supporter of our small, rural community and it is our honor to return that support for this proposed merger.

Thank you for your consideration in this effort.

As a community stakeholder in Houston, Texas, reliable rail service is essential for our local economy, businesses and residents. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger offers an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits.

The merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion and expanded market reach for our businesses. It also means continued investment in rail infrastructure; enhancing safety, creating jobs and ensuring our community remains competitive in a growing economy.

Union Pacific has invested in our community with grants and contributions to many civic and charitable organizations and I am proud to be supportive of this merger.

Thank you for your consideration. Please feel free to contact my office if further information is needed.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the City of Idaho Falls, I am writing to express my support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of Idaho's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support agriculture and connect our communities to markets. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to economic growth – rail has also proven itself to be a very sustainable transportation mode. This helps to reduce highway congestion and carbon emissions.

The proposed merger potentially provides an opportunity to strengthen the rail network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions thereby improving dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for Idaho's products and add to supply chain resilience.

Rebecca L. Noah Casper | Mayor
Office (208) 612-8235

Subject: Building a More Efficient Rail Network for America's Heartland

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

For generations, communities and businesses in Iowa have depended on rail service as a vital link to markets across the nation. As Mayor of Iowa Falls—a community built on agriculture, manufacturing, and hard-working Iowans—I understand how essential efficient rail connections are to our economic success. Rail keeps our industries moving, our farms connected, and our local economy competitive.

That's why I see the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern as a promising opportunity for Iowa Falls and for communities like ours across the Midwest. This merger would create direct access to new eastern markets that are currently more difficult to reach, opening the door for our local manufacturers and agricultural producers to expand their customer base and grow their businesses.

Equally important, the merger promises to streamline service and reduce shipping times by eliminating some handoffs between carriers. Even a day or two saved in transit can make a meaningful difference—allowing products to reach market faster, reducing costs, and helping our local industries operate with greater efficiency and reliability. In an increasingly competitive global economy, that kind of efficiency is critical.

On behalf of the City of Iowa Falls, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. Strengthening our rail network strengthens the communities that depend on it, reinforcing the foundation of American industry and ensuring that towns like ours continue to thrive.

Sincerely,

Mayor Michael Emerson

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of Jefferson City, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

This merger represents a forward-looking opportunity to strengthen our region's economic foundation and enhance the competitiveness of local manufacturers. In 2024, manufacturing generated $52.38 billion in economic impact for Missouri, making it one of our largest economic drivers. Freight rail plays a central role in this success – moving the goods that power our industries, sustain our farms, and connect our local communities to markets across the country and around the globe.

Union Pacific has long been a trusted transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable, and cost-effective service to businesses both large and small. By joining with Norfolk Southern, these companies would create America's first true transcontinental railroad – connecting our country coast to coast. For Missouri businesses, this would mean greater competitiveness, lower shipping costs, and reduced wear and tear on our roads from heavy truck traffic.

For manufacturers operating on tight margins, the logistics improvements will be game changing. Fewer rail transfers mean faster delivery times, better customer satisfaction, and dramatically lower shipping costs. What once required complex routing through multiple carriers will now be a straightforward and highly efficient process.

The benefits will extend beyond the business community to taxpayers. Heavy truck traffic has placed enormous strain on Missouri roads, costing residents millions in repairs and creating safety risks for families. A single freight train can carry the load of 300 trucks, meaning this merger could remove thousands of heavy vehicles from our highways each day while improving both safety and infrastructure longevity.

Equally important, Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern share a commitment to investing in people. Between 2020 and 2025, they have dedicated a combined $300 million to philanthropic initiatives supporting workforce development, safety programs, and the creation of vibrant spaces where people want to live and work. These efforts mirror Jefferson City's own goals of building stronger, safer, and more vibrant communities.

As America works to rebuild its manufacturing base and reduce reliance on unstable foreign supply chains, a transcontinental railroad provides exactly the infrastructure backbone our economy needs. This merger is about more than connecting rail lines – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, driving economic development, and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to Missouri and the nation as a whole.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of Keller, I've seen firsthand how vital a strong transportation network is to the success of our community and region. North Texas thrives on connectivity, from our highways and airports to the rail lines that keep goods moving efficiently across the state and nation. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger represents an important step toward strengthening that foundation.

A more integrated rail network would improve efficiency, reduce truck congestion on our already busy highways, and expand access for Texas businesses to new markets. For communities like Keller, which sit at the intersection of economic growth and transportation demand, reliable freight service helps sustain local jobs, attract investment, and support long-term infrastructure planning.

This merger also signals continued private-sector investment in the systems that keep our economy competitive. Modernized rail operations mean greater safety, improved supply chain resilience, and better support for the small businesses and industries that depend on timely delivery.

For Keller and for Texas, this partnership offers clear benefits. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve the merger so we can continue building a stronger, more connected future for our state.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the City of LaPorte, Indiana, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Mayor of Little Rock, I've had the privilege of watching our city grow stronger by investing in what moves people and opportunity—our infrastructure. That's why I support the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Whether it's expanding the Port of Little Rock, improving our roadways, or collaborating with local employers to strengthen supply chains, we've seen what happens when transportation works as it should: jobs grow, businesses stay, and families thrive.

When rail systems operate efficiently, our entire region benefits. Union Pacific has long contributed to our city's success—employing Arkansans, fostering community development, and aiding in attracting new industry to central Arkansas. Combining that legacy with Norfolk Southern's reach and service aligns well with the type of economy we're building here.

In Little Rock, we've worked hard to make the capital city a destination for logistics and innovation. We've expanded capacity at the port, modernized our industrial corridors, and attracted new companies that rely on dependable freight services. The merger would help ensure that momentum continues—making it easier for goods to move, for employers to invest, and for workers to succeed right here at home.

This is about more than two companies coming together; it's about building the kind of infrastructure that keeps Arkansas moving forward. I urge your support for the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger, having firsthand knowledge of how much stronger it can make our communities.

Subject: Strengthening Rural Iowa Through a Unified Rail Network

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Mayor of Lowden, Iowa, I write to share my support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Our town sits at the heart of eastern Iowa's agricultural economy, where dependable rail service is essential to the success of our farmers, grain processors, and agricultural co-ops. For communities like ours, rail connections are not a luxury—they are a lifeline to markets and opportunity.

This merger offers a path toward a stronger and more coordinated rail system that can meet the needs of rural America. A unified network spanning from coast to coast would improve reliability and shorten shipping times, allowing Iowa's agricultural products to reach buyers more efficiently and at lower cost. For our local co-op and producers who rely on timely rail shipments, that improvement would make a real difference.

Beyond the immediate benefits to shipping and logistics, this merger promises to enhance long-term investment in rail infrastructure. Modern, efficient rail service helps small towns like Lowden remain competitive and positions our region for future growth. It can also open new market access for Iowa goods—connecting our state more directly with national and international trade routes.

On behalf of the City of Lowden, I encourage the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. A stronger, more connected rail network will support the vitality of our local economies, the strength of American agriculture, and the prosperity of rural communities across Iowa.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the City of Marion Arkansas, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

The Marion AR Union Pacific Intermodal Facility opened in 2008. The railroad has been a great corporate citizen and a contributor to our economy. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,

Tracy Brick

Subject: Union Pacific merger with Norfolk Southern will Create Opportunity for Iowa Communities

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Marshalltown has long been an industrial hub — a community known for its hardworking residents and business-friendly environment. One reason for our sustained success has been our long-standing access to reliable railroad services. The railroad has enabled our local businesses to expand and has attracted new companies, bringing more jobs and opportunity to the people of Marshalltown.

As Mayor, I've been proud to watch our community grow and thrive. I believe that our access to rail service has been a major factor in that progress, which why I welcome the news of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. This merger has the potential to enhance service efficiency and reliability, benefiting our local economy.

Reducing transit times by an average of one to two days may seem modest, but for some of Marshalltown's largest employers, that difference can be critical. Faster and more dependable rail service would support existing businesses and make our community even more attractive to new investment. Moreover, the merger could connect Marshalltown — and other similar communities — to a broader range of markets, unlocking new opportunities for growth and expansion.

On behalf of the City of Marshalltown, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve the merger. We believe it will bring meaningful benefits not only to our city, but to communities across the country.

Sincerely,

Joel Greer

Subject: Proposed Merger Between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern will Benefit Iowa Communities

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Mayor of Mechanicsville, Iowa, I want to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Our community, like many across Iowa, depends on agriculture and the industries that support it. Rail access is vital to our local economy—helping our farmers, processors, and businesses move their products efficiently to markets across the country.

This merger represents an exciting opportunity to strengthen America's rail network. By creating the first transcontinental rail line under a single name, the combined system would reduce shipping times by 24 to 48 hours. That kind of efficiency makes our businesses more competitive and our communities more attractive for future investment and job growth.

Just as important, the merger would expand market access for Iowa producers—connecting us more directly to regions and opportunities that were previously harder to reach. With better connectivity comes greater potential for economic development, helping towns like Mechanicsville continue to grow and thrive.

On behalf of the City of Mechanicsville, I urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. Stronger rail infrastructure means stronger communities, stronger industries, and a stronger America.

Sincerely,

Mayor Andrew J. Oberbreckling

Subject: Comments on Proposed Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a Mayor in Meridian, MS, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community that relies on freight shipments would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. And our whole community would benefit from a more efficient rail network that could decrease the number of long-haul trucks on our publicly funded highways. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. And reducing highway congestion decreases the need for highway maintenance spending and improves quality of life for our residents. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger
Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Mayor of the City of Midland, Texas, I've seen firsthand how essential reliable transportation infrastructure is to West Texas. Our region sits at the heart of America's energy and logistics network, where manufacturing, agriculture, and energy production drive both the local and national economy. Efficient rail service is critical to keep those industries, and the jobs they sustain, moving.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger represents an important opportunity to strengthen that network. Improved coordination between these two rail systems would enhance freight efficiency, reduce highway congestion along major corridors, and expand access for West Texas producers to national and international markets. These improvements would mean lower costs, more predictable supply chains, and expanded opportunities for businesses large and small across our region.

Midland continues to grow as a hub for energy, logistics, and innovation, serving as a gateway for goods and materials that support communities across the United States. A more integrated and resilient rail system helps ensure the continued flow of those products safely and efficiently, while reinforcing long-term investment in infrastructure that sustains our state's competitiveness.

This merger also represents a broader commitment to modernization, safer operations, greater sustainability, and better service reliability for the industries and small businesses that depend on timely delivery.

For Midland and for West Texas, these benefits are clear. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger to help ensure that our state remains connected, competitive, and positioned for future growth.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of Millerton, IA, I know firsthand that reliable rail service is essential for rural Iowa. Our community, along with many others across the state, rely on rail connections to transport the food we grow to feed people across the globe. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger offers an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits.

The merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion, and expanded market reach for our farmers. It also means continued investment in rail infrastructure – like the investment by Union Pacific to help build a new grain elevator in town – creating jobs and ensuring our community remains competitive in a growing economy.

If it were its own country, Wayne County – where Millerton is located – would rank above 25 countries in total value of agricultural products produced each year. This massive amount of food is then shipped to customers all over the world who pay top dollar for the quality crops our farmers produce. Should the proposed merger of Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern be approved, the cost that farmers need to pay to ship their products to market would be reduced, leading to more financial security in years when grain prices are low. Additionally, the time it takes for buyers to receive their goods would be cut by several days. These increased efficiencies in shipping will lead to larger returns for family farms, sometimes meaning the difference between keeping the farm for the next generation or having to sell.

On behalf of the City of Millerton, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments, and opportunities it will bring – connecting our communities regionally, nationally, and across the globe.

Mr. Anderson:

Nephi City was excited to hear about the merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Railroad. We hope this means great things for your company and for Nephi City. This looks to be a wonderful opportunity to expand economic development throughout the nation.

Our community always looks forward to when "Big Boy" comes to the city, and we hope that will continue. Rail transportation has been and is still an integral part of the nation's economic engine. We look forward to collaborating with the expanded company after this historic announcement. Congratulations to Union Pacific, Norfolk Southern Railroad, and to the new transcontinental railroad formed with this merger!

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of New Haven, Indiana, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to further shape this network by offering more direct routes, expanding geographic reach and encouraging investment in infrastructure and technology. Our business community would benefit through strengthened service reliability, enhanced supply chain efficiency and access to new markets. At the same time, it is important that these changes continue to balance efficiency with safety, sustainability and long-term community benefits such as reduced blocked crossings, congestion, and rail traffic issues throughout our community.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider this proposal, weighing both the opportunities it may create for communities like ours and the need to ensure fair, safe and sustainable rail service nationally and globally.

Respectfully,

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of the City of North Little Rock, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Mayor of Odessa, Texas, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern railways. This merger represents a significant opportunity to enhance freight transportation efficiency, reduce costs, and strengthen our regional economy.

Odessa is a key hub for energy, agriculture, and manufacturing in West Texas. Improved rail connectivity resulting from this merger will provide local businesses with faster, more reliable access to national and international markets, stimulate job creation, and attract new investment to our community. The efficiencies and expanded service capabilities from this merger will directly benefit Odessa's economic growth and long-term competitiveness.

I urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger and help ensure that communities like Odessa can continue to thrive with a robust and efficient rail system.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

I am writing to you today to express my enthusiastic support for the proposed Union-Pacific-Norfolk Southern merger. Ever since the railroad's eastern terminus was established in Omaha, the name U.P. has been synonymous with our city. It was and remains a key catalyst in growing Omaha into the city it is today.

As the mayor of Omaha, Nebraska, I couldn't be more excited about what it would mean to see America's first transcontinental railroad, too, be created here. Jobs would come, the economy would grow, and Omaha's rising profile nationally would be further elevated. The proposed merger would further stimulate the city's renaissance and buttress hundreds of millions of dollars in public-private projects that include about 90 acres in riverfront and downtown parks and a streetcar under construction. Further, these efforts are expected to stimulate an estimated $4 billion in real estate development. A merged Union Pacific-Norfolk Southern would help secure Omaha's economic foothold in a rapidly changing environment.

But my interest extends beyond our city. This historic proposition feels like another Golden Spike moment – a transformational idea that would grow reliable rail service, create more efficient ways to move freight and otherwise streamline the supply chain at a crucial time. Other nationwide benefits would include faster and more dependable service, reduced congestion, and expanded market reach for our businesses. This would be no mere merger of two companies – it would represent a strong signal of American strength and competitiveness.

Plus, like that first U.P. rail line that grew Omaha and the American West, this proposed merger, too, would bring long-term benefits by bolstering connections and economies.

On behalf of the City of Omaha, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities it will bring - connecting our communities regionally, nationally and across the globe.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Oskaloosa is proud of being a community that builds things- not just products, but opportunity. Our manufacturers, processors, and construction suppliers have long powered both the local and regional economy. Our companies produce everything from iron infrastructure to sports lighting and agricultural goods that support families and businesses across Iowa.

We have many reasons for our success, and one is dependable transportation. For decades, access to reliable rail service has allowed our industries to compete and grow, linking us with national markets. The rail system provides ongoing economic growth for our workers and their families.

We encourage careful consideration of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. From our perspective the merger could bring improvements in speed and consistency of freight services. Some of our manufacturers operate on tight schedules and a day or two can make a difference for those relying on just-in-time deliveries.

On behalf of the City of Oskaloosa I encourage the Surface Transportation Board to approve the merger. It will help strengthen not only our local industries but the network of communities that depend on them.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a member of the Ottumwa City Council, I've had the privilege of working closely with our community's businesses, economic developers, and residents to support the kind of growth that benefits everyone. One of the key drivers of that growth — both historically and today — is rail infrastructure.

Ottumwa has long been a hub for industry, with a strong manufacturing base that continues to drive the local economy. Companies in sectors such as food processing, advanced manufacturing, and distribution rely on the city's robust infrastructure and efficient freight service to support their operations. This foundation has made Ottumwa a vital center for production and logistics in the region.

That's why the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern stands out as a promising development for Ottumwa and similar communities across the country. Improved access to new markets, streamlined routing, and fewer delays could lead directly to expansion opportunities for our existing industries and make our city even more attractive to new investment.

At the local level, we see how infrastructure decisions ripple through a community. More efficient rail service could mean more jobs, stronger businesses, and a more competitive industrial base. It's an opportunity to build on Ottumwa's rail heritage in a way that prepares us for the future.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give this merger thoughtful consideration. The benefits it could bring to our industries, workforce, and regional economy are significant — and deserving of support.

CITY OF PINE BLUFF

Office of the Mayor

Vivian L. Flowers

Dear Senator Boozman, Senator Cotton, and Congressman Hill,

I support the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern, which promises substantial advantages for both Arkansas and the nation. Reliable freight transportation is essential for delivering agricultural products, manufactured goods, and raw materials to markets. When these networks are robust and dependable, they provide local economies with a solid foundation for growth.

As Mayor and a proud native of Pine Bluff, I recognize how crucial stability in economic partnerships is. These relationships have been vital in strengthening my community and the livelihood of so many Pine Bluff families. Throughout more than thirty years in public service—as a volunteer, an executive, a legislator, and mayor—I have seen how consistent investment and reliable support create positive ripple effects in a community. Pine Bluff has been a longstanding economic center, transportation hub, and community partner that has well benefited from this stable influence.

Union Pacific has been a cornerstone for Pine Bluff for many years. Its presence has offered stable employment, helped local businesses thrive, and supported the agricultural and manufacturing industries. Pine Bluff is building toward transformational, infrastructural investments to grow jobs and strengthen the Southeast Arkansas economy. Meanwhile, Pine Bluff residents know Union Pacific —not only as a job provider but a critical partner in sustaining and growing our economy. This partnership, sustainability and growth is precisely why we are supportive of the expansion we believe this merger will ensure.

The benefits are undeniable: fewer costly delays from carrier handoffs, streamlined operations, and improved service reliability translating to lower costs for producers, more certainty for employers, and stronger long-term growth. Just as Union Pacific has been a steady force in Pine Bluff, Southeast Arkansas and the entire state; the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern promises to make safety and consistency the standard nationwide.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge your support of this merger as a forward-looking investment in Pine Bluff's economic future.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the City of Powder Springs, we write in support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. The City of Powder Springs is in Cobb County just west of Atlanta and has had a history with the railroad systems going back to the late 19th century.

Norfolk Southern's rail line passes through our city and serves as a vital link to the John W. Whitaker Intermodal Terminal in nearby Austell, one of the largest and most active freight facilities in the region. The movement of goods and materials through this network supports local businesses, attracts investment, and strengthens the regional economy that Powder Springs is proud to be part of.

This merger represents an opportunity to enhance efficiency, reliability, and connectivity across the first national rail system—benefiting Georgia communities large and small. For Powder Springs and Cobb County, a stronger and more integrated rail network will help sustain economic growth, improve supply chain access for local employers, and reinforce our role as a gateway between metro Atlanta, the Port of Savannah, and markets across the country.

We believe that a unified rail system, guided by continued investment and innovation, will advance the long-term competitiveness of Georgia's logistics and manufacturing economy while maintaining the safety and environmental standards our communities value.

For these reasons, the City of Powder Springs respectfully supports the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

RE: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As Mayor of the City of Rock Springs, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern, a historic step toward creating America's first truly transcontinental railroad. This merger stands to deliver widespread benefits to our economy, infrastructure, national security, and transportation network—while fostering innovation and competition in the freight industry.

By uniting two of the nation's most respected and safety-focused railroad, this merger will establish a more reliable, efficient and competitive transcontinental rail service. Customers across the United States—particularly in underserved markets—will benefit from enhanced access, faster service, and lower-cost shipping options. These improvements will make rail freight a more attractive alternative to trucking, helping to reduce congestion on highways, lower taxpayer-funded road maintenance costs and cut transportation emissions.

The economic implications are equally significant. A seamless coast-to-coast rail network will advance America's domestic manufacturing capabilities, streamline supply chains, and strengthen our ability to compete globally. By enhancing competitiveness against foreign imports and long-haul trucking, this merger can help re-short jobs, reinvigorate American freight and fuel long-term economic growth.

This is not just a merger—it is a transformational opportunity to modernize U.S. freight rail infrastructure, strengthen our economy, and improve service for shipper and consumers alike.

For all these reasons, I urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full consideration to the proposed Union Pacific-Norfolk Southern merger.

Sincerely,

- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As City Manager of the City of Salina, Kansas, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses, large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community leader in South St. Paul, Minnesota, I recognize the important role freight rail plays in supporting our local economy, businesses and residents. Reliable rail service helps connect our region to broader markets and provides an efficient transportation option for goods.

Our business community would benefit from faster, more reliable rail service, a more efficient and resilient supply chain, and access to new markets. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger has the strong potential to deliver those benefits by providing single-line service and more direct routes that increase transportation options, expand each railroad's geographic reach and encourage investment in infrastructure and technology. At the same time, it is important to ensure these benefits are achieved in a manner consistent with the need for safety, sustainability and long-term benefits to communities like mine, and I trust that the Surface Transportation Board will safeguard those benefits.

Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation. With thoughtful planning, the merger could improve service dependability, support local businesses and create opportunities for infrastructure investment and job growth.

I respectfully encourage the Board to take these comments into account in its consideration of the proposed transaction.

Re: Support for Proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of the Capitol City of Springfield, Illinois, I am writing to express strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. This merger represents a forward-looking and essential opportunity for our local economy, residents and businesses to further strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits.

By combining the resources, expertise, and reach of two historic carriers, the merged company will be essential to the prosperity of our communities.

This merger promises to deliver more dependable rail service, reduce congestion, and expand market access for our local communities. It will also encourage continued investment in rail infrastructure by enhancing safety, supporting job creation, and ensuring our community remains competitive in a growing economy. Ultimately, it will help build a resilient, innovative, and globally connected transportation system that serves the public interest well into the future.

For these reasons, we respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community leader in Sterling, Illinois, reliable rail service is essential for our local economy, businesses and residents. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger offers an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits.

Earlier this spring, the City of Sterling was proud to receive the State of Illinois' River's Edge Redevelopment Zone designation. The program aims to revitalize environmentally challenged properties, specifically river front properties. These redevelopment zones offer tax exemptions on building materials, potential property tax abatements, and state income tax incentives to encourage the clean-up and revitalization of former industrial sites. It's an exciting step in the long-term plans for not only our river front but the entire City of Sterling!

Working with our Redevelopment Zone designation, this merger promises faster, more dependable service, reduced congestion and expanded market reach for our businesses. It also means continued investment in rail infrastructure – enhancing safety, creating jobs and ensuring our community remains competitive in a growing economy.

Our community has been proud and honored to be designated by Union Pacific as a "Train Town USA" in 2024. Sterling was founded by immigrants who migrated along the railroads expanding west across the United Sates. The strong manufacturing history in our city has heavily relied on the infrastructure of the railroad, and we are excited for the impacts this transcontinental railroad will bring.

On behalf of the City of Sterling, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies, investments and opportunities it will bring - connecting our communities regionally, nationally and across the globe.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Economic Development Director of the City of Sunland Park, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Nearly five hundred people work at Union Pacific's Santa Teresa Intermodal Terminal, which is located along the company's Sunset Route connecting Los Angeles and El Paso. Trains move through our area efficiently and efforts to streamline the movement of goods by rail will strengthen our country's transportation network.

The intermodal facility turned Doña Ana County into an economic engine responsible for 5,000 jobs and over $1B in total output. Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers, and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Dear Chairman Fuchs:

I serve as the mayor of the City of Sunland Park, New Mexico, where Union Pacific trains travel in a safe and efficient manner every day, which is why I strongly support the company's proposed merger with Norfolk Southern. The opening of Union Pacific's Santa Teresa Intermodal Terminal 11 years ago transformed New Mexico's economy, but the company's steady community presence sets Union Pacific apart from other corporations.

Union Pacific invested $350,000 to establish the Union Pacific Industrial Careers Academy at Doña Ana Community College in Sunland Park three years ago. The academy is home-growing our workforce through fast-paced trade career programs designed to meet the employment needs of companies in the Santa Teresa Industrial Complex. This year, Union Pacific announced a $15,000 contribution to create a middle school STEM program that provides hands-on activities and field trips to Doña Ana Community College.

Even though trains operate safely through Sunland Park, Union Pacific provides emergency responders with specialized training to ensure we are prepared to respond to a potential accident. Our fire department appreciates the close working relationship with the company's local hazardous materials expert. The City of Sunland Park also has an open line of communication with Union Pacific's public affairs representative who we can call to address questions or concerns.

Railroads are an important part of communities across America. Union Pacific's continued support in our area demonstrates its dedication to helping neighbors in the communities they serve. I respectively urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to the Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern proposal.

Subject: Union Pacific-Norfolk Southern Merger Supports a Stronger American Rail Network

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

Communities and businesses in Iowa have relied on rail services for as long as the state has existed. As mayor of Tama, I have a very community-focused perspective, Iowa's small towns are the backbone of the state just as small towns across the country are the backbone of our nation. It's important to support small towns and the businesses that support them. Many of these businesses use rail transportation to ship goods out or materials in, which is why the merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern is an exciting prospect for American communities.

The merger would expand Union Pacific's network into the east, opening direct access to new markets for communities. This newfound access could spur economic development and expansion of business practices in our communities. It also speeds up transportation times by eliminating transfers. Transportation times could be cut by 1-2 days, allowing industry to work more efficiently and compete more effectively.

On behalf of the city of Tama, I would respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve the merger. Help strengthen American rail and reinforce American industry by creating a more efficient rail network.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the Mayor of the City of West Chicago, I represent a community which owes it's growth to our location on the Galena and Chicago Union (now Union Pacific) railroad. Reliable rail service continues to be essential for our local economy, businesses and residents. The proposed Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger seems to offer an opportunity to strengthen these connections and deliver long-term benefits without adverse impact on job security or price increases driven by reduction in competition.

We were heartened to see the support of the SMART-TD union for this merger and applaud UP's commitment to provide job security for rail workers. We believe that the presence of a thriving trucking industry will keep the transportation market competitive and curtail price inflation in the shipping market.

On behalf of the City of West Chicago, I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to consider this merger so we can take advantage of the efficiencies of a trans-continental railroad.

Sincerely,

Mayor Daniel Bovey

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the City Administrator of Woods Cross City, Utah, I am writing to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.
The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.

Subject: Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Chair Fuchs:

The Museum of the Oregon Territory recognizes the historic role that freight rail has played in supporting the economic development of Clackamas County and the State of Oregon. Throughout the state's history, rail transportation through carriers such as the Union Pacific Railroad has long connected communities to regional, national, and international markets, providing an efficient means for the movement of goods that support local industries and employment.

Our region depends on a rail network that ensures efficient supply chains, reliable market access, and continued investment in infrastructure and technology. Freight rail contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, serving as an important part of a balanced and sustainable transportation system.

A review of the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger will help assess its potential impacts on service reliability, operational safety, and public benefit. Continued developments in the rail industry can support local economies while advancing environmental stewardship and public safety.

Subject: Comments on Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

As a community leader in Wyoming, I am writing to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific Railroad and Norfolk Southern Railroad. Our organization, Climb Wyoming, recognizes the vital role that freight rail plays in connecting Wyoming's communities to broader markets, supporting local businesses, and fostering economic growth.

The merger presents a unique opportunity to strengthen our region's transportation infrastructure, expand geographic reach, and encourage investment in technology and workforce development. Reliable rail service is essential for Wyoming's economic vitality, and the enhanced network resulting from this merger will help our businesses access new markets, improve supply chain efficiency, and attract further investment.

We are particularly enthusiastic about the merger's potential to create new sources of economic growth and workforce opportunity. As an organization dedicated to advancing career training and placement for Wyoming single mothers, we see promise in the expanded rail network's ability to generate jobs, support workforce training initiatives, and increase opportunities for historically underrepresented groups in transportation and STEM fields.

Freight rail also contributes to reduced highway congestion and emissions, making it an important part of sustainable transportation in our state. With thoughtful planning and collaboration, the merger can deliver long-term benefits for Wyoming's communities, businesses, and workforce.

We respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to carefully consider the positive impact this merger will have on economic development and workforce opportunity in Wyoming, while ensuring that efficiency, safety, and sustainability remain at the forefront of national rail service.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the Cobb Chamber of Commerce, I am writing to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. Reliable rail infrastructure is essential to Cobb County's business community, and this merger offers an unprecedented opportunity to strengthen our county's role in regional, national, and global commerce.

Cobb County is home to the John W. Whitaker Intermodal Terminal in Austell, one of Norfolk Southern's largest classification yards in the Southeast and a cornerstone of our logistics network. This facility is not only a critical connector for businesses in Cobb and across Metro Atlanta, but also a driver of jobs, investment, and economic vitality. The proposed merger will build on this strong foundation by expanding the reach of Atlanta's and Cobb County's rail infrastructure, giving our companies direct and dependable access to markets across the United States.

For Cobb's manufacturers, distributors, and small businesses, this expanded network means faster service, fewer delays, and broader market opportunities. Just as important, it will help improve freight mobility, and support sustainable economic growth across our region. With Atlanta and Cobb County already recognized as global cities, this merger ensures that Cobb County will remain a vital logistics and business hub at the heart of a fully integrated coast-to-coast rail system.

We respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger. Doing so will allow Cobb County and the broader metro Atlanta region to fully realize the benefits of enhanced connectivity, stronger supply chains, and expanded economic opportunity.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

On behalf of the Coffeyville Area Chamber of Commerce, I am writing to express our strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

As an organization dedicated to strengthening economic vitality and workforce opportunity in Southeast Kansas, we understand how critical an efficient, reliable transportation network is to local business success and national competitiveness. Freight rail has long served as a backbone of our regional economy—supporting our manufacturers, connecting agricultural producers to markets, and ensuring that small rural communities like ours remain linked to the broader U.S. supply chain.

The creation of America's first transcontinental railroad represents a historic opportunity to modernize and enhance this network. We believe this merger will:

- Increase Service Efficiency: By reducing interchange points and creating more direct routes, businesses will experience faster, more predictable delivery times—vital for today's just-in-time operations.
- Strengthen Economic Competitiveness: The combined network of more than 50,000 route miles will open new market access for U.S. industries and create new opportunities for communities of all sizes.
- Drive Investment and Innovation: With greater operational scale, the merged system can invest more deeply in technology, safety, and workforce development that supports long-term growth.
- Enhance Sustainability: Freight rail remains one of the most energy-efficient and environmentally responsible modes of transport, reducing highway congestion and lowering emissions.

This merger is about more than connecting two railroads—it is about advancing America's supply chain, empowering our workforce, and ensuring that rural and urban economies alike benefit from a stronger, more resilient rail system.

For these reasons, the Coffeyville Area Chamber of Commerce respectfully urges the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to the Union Pacific–Norfolk Southern merger.

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

On behalf of the Coffeyville Area Community Foundation, I am writing to express our support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern. We believe this merger will strengthen transportation networks and support economic growth in Coffeyville and similar communities.

Our foundation's mission is to sustain the Coffeyville area by supporting families, businesses, and community initiatives. Reliable freight rail has long connected our region to national markets, serving industries such as agriculture, energy, and manufacturing that rely on dependable shipping.

Union Pacific has been a dependable partner for our community for many years. The proposed merger offers additional benefits, including:

- Improved reliability: Reduced service disruptions for local industries and employers.
- Faster shipping: Streamlined routes help small businesses and farmers bring goods to market more quickly and competitively.
- Community investment: A stronger rail system can attract new business investment and support local infrastructure improvements.
- Expanded opportunities: Connecting more regions can help towns like Coffeyville grow and prosper.

Efficient freight rail keeps our community connected to opportunity and growth, strengthening families, schools, and neighborhoods. For these reasons, we respectfully encourage the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to the merger, which promises a more connected, sustainable, and prosperous future for Coffeyville and communities across America's heartland.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

My name is Rob Maness and I am a retired US Air Force Colonel and current CEO and owner of Iron Liberty Group, LLC. I recently authored an opinion piece in The Defense Post titled, "Bolster American Defense With a National Rail Champion." Today, I write to share this article and to underscore why the proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS) is vital to America's national security and long-term economic resilience.

America's ability to project power abroad begins with strength at home. Every aircraft, ship, and missile that defends our nation relies on a robust domestic supply chain. One that moves steel, energy and critical minerals across our railways. Yet our rail network has been shrinking and decaying for more than a century, leaving inefficiencies and vulnerabilities that adversaries like China and Russia are eager to exploit.

The UP-NS represents a strategic solution. The merger will, for the first time, create an uninterrupted coast-to-coast network linking military bases, ports, and manufacturers. It will strengthen supply chains, reduce chokepoints, and alleviate our dependence on foreign-controlled routes. This deal is a national security necessity that will support defense readiness, spur job creation, and further American energy independence.

Rail remains the backbone of U.S. military logistics, capable of transporting vast quantities of essential goods securely and efficiently. Today, six separate Class I railroads divide the nation into regional silos, forcing inefficient handoffs that can delay critical shipments by days. In a time of crisis, such inefficiency could jeopardize missions and cost lives.

The merger would modernize and unify this vital infrastructure, enhancing defense readiness, driving job creation, and promoting energy independence. It is a forward-looking investment in America's strategic strength and industrial base.

Please find a copy of my published piece attached to this letter. Thank you for your attention to this matter and for your continued dedication to American railroad safety and competitiveness.

Sincerely,

Rob Maness
Retired U.S. Air Force Colonel

TheDefensePost

Bolster American Defense With a National Rail Champion

America's national security and military readiness depend on a stronger, more unified domestic rail network.

ROB MANESS | OCTOBER 28, 2025

American strength abroad begins at home. Every jet that takes off, ship that sets sail, and missile that deters our enemies relies on a supply chain that runs through our railroads.

Yet for over a century, our rail network has been shrinking due to neglect and a growing reliance on imports.

We can build hypersonic missiles, but moving critical goods like steel and energy supplies across the country remains inefficient. That's a dangerous weakness — one that rivals like China and Russia are eager to exploit.

Foreign Rail Giants Are Moving In

Even our neighbors are drawing closer, forging trade and security ties that position foreign rail companies at the heart of North American commerce.

The CEO of Calgary-based Canadian Pacific-Kansas City railroad was front and center at a recent summit between Canada and Mexico, highlighting this shift.

Meanwhile, America debates whether it can afford a true national rail champion of its own.

A Rail System Ill-Suited for Today's Needs

As freight has shifted from rail to highways over the past decades, our system no longer matches the needs of a 21st-century superpower.

Trucks clog highways and are far more vulnerable to disruption. While acceptable for consumer deliveries, this is a national security liability when it comes to getting supplies to our warfighters on time.

Backbone of Military Logistics

Rail, by contrast, can move massive quantities of goods quickly and securely across long distances. Historically, it has been the backbone of military logistics.

But today, our rail system is divided across six Class I railroads operating in regional silos. For shipments that cross the country, these divisions force handoffs, called interchanges, which delay freight by days as crews swap and paperwork is processed.

When the stakes are low, those delays may just be a headache that drives up costs. But in times of conflict, that could hinder American military readiness and cost lives. If tanks, ammunition, or fuel can't move from America's heartland to coastal ports without bureaucratic logjams, lives will be at risk and missions will fail.

The Case for a Unified Rail Network

The proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS) presents a historic opportunity.

For the first time, uninterrupted coast-to-coast service would connect military bases, defense manufacturers, ports, and more.

The companies project faster, more reliable service, which means a more prepared and responsive military. A modern, unified rail network would strengthen our supply chain and reduce costly choke points.

It would also lessen dependence on foreign rail lines in Canada, which already operate their own transcontinental networks.

Some railroads oppose the merger, fearing lost market share. But from a national security perspective, the UP-NS deal is a chance to reclaim dominance in a sector that underpins both the economy and military power.

Regulatory Review and National Interest

Regulators at the Surface Transportation Board will review the merger to ensure it serves the public interest.

This review must recognize the deal for what it is: a national security imperative that strengthens supply chains, fuels energy independence, creates American jobs, and ensures military readiness.

Without a strong, unified rail system, America cannot maintain global military dominance. To lead abroad, we must first build strength at home.

This is our moment to invest in infrastructure that keeps us free and competitive — reminding the world that American power is built on American steel, American energy, and American grit, moved across American rails.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger

Dear Chairman Fuchs,

My name is Tom Magness, and I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Norfolk Southern (NS) and Union Pacific (UP). As a retired U.S. Army Colonel, I understand the critical role railroads play in driving our domestic supply chains and national security. Rail accounts for roughly 28% of all U.S. freight movement. As global supply chains face increasing threats, this merger presents an opportunity to boost freight volume and expand the logistics capacity needed to strengthen our industrial base.

Railroads play an indispensable role in the defense industry by transporting the raw materials and supplies that sustain our national defense. From coal and critical minerals to steel and advanced manufactured components, our freight rail networks deliver the upstream materials needed to build and maintain the technologies that protect us from our foreign adversaries. Railroads also move military equipment through the Strategic Rail Corridor Network (STRACNET), ensuring that essential supplies and vehicles can be transported safely and efficiently when called upon – all done in a much more sustainable fashion than alternatives such as interstate trucking.

The proposed merger will enhance our nation's ability to mobilize weapons, equipment, and humanitarian aid during times of crisis. Currently, the U.S. rail system includes six different Class I railroad companies. Reducing interchange points between carriers lowers the risk of delays, disruptions, and system failures.

One of the great benefits of combining forces is shared resources. NS and UP together have the combined ability to invest billions annually in private capital that would allow for the modernization of key chokepoints, strengthened cybersecurity, and increased capacity across both eastern and western corridors.

This merger will create the only transcontinental, U.S.-based Class I railroad, enhancing competitiveness in a domestic market where two of the six major Class I railroads are headquartered in Canada. The UP–NS merger will reinforce America's economic and strategic independence in freight movement, ensuring that the backbone of U.S. supply and defense logistics remains American-led and American-operated.

Thank you for your continued leadership in protecting and strengthening America's rail system. I, along with what I am sure are many other U.S. Army veterans interested in strategic transportation issues, urge you and the Board to act on the significant benefits this merger offers for our national defense and economic competitiveness.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As Western District Commissioner for Cole County, Missouri, I am writing to urge the Surface Transportation Board (STB) to approve the proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS).

By creating our country's first transcontinental railroad, this merger would enhance transportation efficiency by eliminating interchange delays, opening new markets, and increasing competitiveness for American manufacturers and businesses.

Manufacturing is the backbone of Missouri's economy, accounting for more than 11 percent of the state's total economic output. In Cole County, manufacturers like Unilever, Quaker Windows & Doors, and Morris Packaging sustain the livelihoods of local families and keep our communities strong. With the more reliable and affordable rail service this merger promises to deliver, Missouri manufacturers will be able to depend on faster deliveries and greater shipping efficiency – bringing more goods to markets at lower prices. That's good for consumers, local businesses, and the workers they employ.

Just as importantly, both Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern have demonstrated a long-standing commitment to the people and communities they serve, contributing a combined $300 million to philanthropic initiatives. These investments – focused on workforce training, safety initiatives, and community revitalization – reflect a shared commitment to true partnership with the communities they serve and align closely with our own efforts to make Cole County safe, stronger, and more resilient.

For Missourians, this merger represents a strategic investment in our state's economic future and in the infrastructure that sustains it. I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve it without delay.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As the Presiding Commissioner of Cole County and member of the County's Workforce Development Task Force, I write in strong support of the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern (UP-NS) to create America's first transcontinental railroad. This historic agreement will connect approximately 100 ports across 43 states - including right here in Missouri - and it's potential for communities like ours in Central Missouri is transformative.

The UP-NS merger promises to transform the US supply chain, unleash the industrial power of America manufacturing, and create new engines of economic growth and workforce opportunity while preserving union jobs. For Cole County the benefits are especially significant.

Cole County is experiencing substantial growth, with expanding industrial capacity and a skilled workforce eager for new opportunities. This merger will directly connect our local businesses to national and international markets, strengthening Missouri's role in the US supply chain. As we continue investing in workforce development and helping local businesses reach broader markets, reliable and efficient transportation infrastructure remains essential to our success.

Eliminating inefficient handoffs between rail carriers will shorten shipping times, lower costs, and make Cole County businesses more competitive at home and abroad.

In April of this year Cole County opened up our CART, multimodal railroad spur out in our Industrial area and tying in to Union Pacific. It has been very successful and we are in the planning stage of doubling our spurs. We just picked up a new user, shipping out of Savannah, Georgia!

Having spent more than 40 years as a businessman in Jefferson City, I've seen how infrastructure investments can make or break local economies. I've built and managed companies through shifting markets and understand what businesses need to thrive: efficient logistics, access to markets, and a dependable workforce. This merger delivers on all three. It's a practical, forward-looking solution that aligns with the needs of business owners and economic developers alike.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to approve this merger so that communities like ours can realize the substantial economic and workforce benefits it will bring.

Sincerely,
Sam Bushman

Subject: Support for Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern Merger, Docket Number: FD 36873

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As President of the Colfax Railroad Days, an organization which celebrates the history of the Transcontinental Railroad and its impact on the Colfax Ca region, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific and Norfolk Southern.

Freight rail is a cornerstone of our state's economy, safely moving the goods that power our industries, support our farmers and connect our communities to markets across the nation and the world. Union Pacific has long been an essential transportation partner for our state, providing efficient, reliable and cost-effective service to large and small businesses. The American freight rail network is not only critical to our economic growth – it is also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping reduce highway congestion and emissions.

The proposed merger offers a unique opportunity to strengthen this network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers and communities, including:

- Improved Service Reliability: More direct routes and greater operational flexibility will help prevent service disruptions and improve schedule dependability.
- Reduced Transit Times: Eliminating certain interchanges will speed the movement of goods, helping our businesses reach customers faster and more competitively.
- Increased Investment: The transcontinental railroad will be better positioned to invest in modern infrastructure, advanced technology and enhanced safety systems.
- Expanded Reach: The broader geographic footprint will open new markets for our state's products and strengthen supply chain resilience.

This merger is about more than just railroads – it's about securing the future of our transportation network, supporting economic development and ensuring American freight rail remains globally competitive.

I respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal, recognizing the benefits it will bring to our state and the national economy.

Sincerely,
Caroline McCully

Dear Chairman Fuchs:

As a community stakeholder and non-profit organization in Greeley, CO, the Colorado Model Railroad Museum (CMRM) cannot speak to the proposed merger but do want to share firsthand experience with Union Pacific Railroad's commitment to our mission of providing a model railroad experience that educates, inspires, and brings joy to all ages.

The CMRM provides education to all ages in areas of S.T.E.A.M. (Science, Technology, Engineering, Art, and Math). In the past Union Pacific has supported the CMRM Steam Kids Virtual Classroom with a grant to provide programming during the pandemic. We have also worked closely with Union Pacific to create safety for the Steam Program visits to Greeley.

On behalf of the Colorado Model Railroad Museum, I respectfully request the Surface Transportation Board consider the significant positive impact Union Pacific has on our community.

Subject: Support for Union Pacific Merger — Docket No. FD 36873

Dear Chair Fuchs:

As Chair of the Routt County Board of County Commissioners, I am writing to express Routt County's support for the proposed merger between Union Pacific (UP) and Norfolk Southern (NS). Since 2023, Routt County has been working with UP to reintroduce passenger rail service in Northwestern Colorado. Our discussions with UP have been productive and demonstrate a genuine willingness to collaborate with local communities, giving us great optimism about the future of our partnership.

For more than six decades, freight rail has provided critical transportation infrastructure for Routt County's industries, particularly coal mining. As coal shipments decline, we see growing opportunities to revive passenger rail service, which operated on our line until the 1960s. We also continue to support freight movement along this corridor and have worked with the Colorado General Assembly to create tax incentives encouraging businesses to relocate to coal-impacted communities and use rail for shipping. Routt County is strongly supportive of maintaining and expanding the use of our local rail line for both freight and passenger transportation.

Union Pacific is an essential transportation partner for Colorado, providing efficient, reliable, and cost-effective service to businesses large and small. America's freight and passenger rail network is not only vital to our economic growth but also one of the most sustainable modes of transportation available, helping to reduce highway congestion and greenhouse gas emissions.

Through this proposed merger, UP and NS have a unique opportunity to strengthen the national rail network and deliver tangible benefits for shippers, consumers, and communities. We are confident that both companies will consider any concerns raised, including those expressed by labor organizations. For Northwest Colorado specifically, we see clear benefits in the form of reduced transit times and expanded market reach. Beyond these operational improvements, this merger represents a chance to keep American rail globally competitive and sustain good jobs for skilled workers across the country. We respectfully urge the Surface Transportation Board to give full and favorable consideration to this proposal.

Sincerely,
